CARLOADINGS GAIN IS HELD SIGNIFICANT

Fresh Uptrend for General Business Is Indicated

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor, Boston American

The carloadings index, long held the most important of all indices of general activity by Harvard and other authorities, again points upward. The gain for the week of 9647 cars was in line with the forecast made last week in this column while others were predicting that another moderate decline would be shown. State Street observers think the turn indicates a new uptrend for general business, especially as the increase in total loadings of all commodities was not confined to a few districts but was shown by all except the central western, which was off only a little.

Perusal of Wall Street financial publications for a reference to the report that the New York Stock Exchange will shortly announce rules limiting its members to one type of business can be made in vain. The denial issued by President Richard Whitney, the Massachusetts North Shore's first contribution to Wall St. leadership, while cautiously worded, appears to have been accepted in some quarters as a "blanket" denial. That a change may be in the making, perhaps voluntary among major investment banking houses themselves, was not denied. Of course Mr. Whitney was not called upon to deny such possible action.

The rumor persists that there will be eventual division into four classes, i. e., commission houses, specialists, underwriters and retailers.

What value a balance sheet? An economist who found the examination of financial reports on his own stocks a burden, welcomed an invitation to enter a joint account with a certified public accountant because of the attention to detail for which such audiors are noted. The two first drew up a list of stocks in which both would be willing to risk their money. The economist then suggested the accountant, being accustomed to studying financial statements, should examine the reports of the companies in which the investments were to be made. To his surprise, the accountant replied:

"I never look at a balance sheet. They don't mean a thing. It all depends on the method of depreciation a company adopts whether it will report a loss or a profit in any given year."

Strange to say, the account showed a sizeable profit in a relatively short period of time.

The important fact about gains in the electric power output, as we view them, is that they continue and with totals well above those of a year ago. New England continues to offer an especially fine showing. Associated Gas & Electric System reports a gain of 13.8% in electric power output as compared with a year ago.

Reading Shipments of Soft Coal Are Up

Philadelphia, Aug. 21—Shipments of bituminous coal over Reading Co. System for June, 1933, were 683,167 tons, against 643,554 tons in June, 1932.

Detroit Employment Up

Employment index of the industrial department of the Detroit Board of Commerce was 63.3 per cent on August 15, againsct 62.4 per cent on July 15 and 32.9 per cent on August 15 last year.

Effect of Code on Heavy Industries Holds Attention

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The disturbing dispatches from Washington regarding the failure of certain heavy industries to fall into the NRA line held the attention of financial circles as a new week opened. Suggestions of force by government do not receive a warm welcome from those who view the situation as serious. And there are many of the latter.

Naturally such a situation must be watched carefully as it usually results in dampening the enthusiasm of speculators. Digging down under the surface, however, reveals a certain hopefulness on the part of officials that reassures those who are prone to lose their confidence in this particular phase of the new deal.

REALIZE NEED FOR SUCCESS

None realize the necessity of stimulating the heavy industries any more than chief economic advisors of the administration. Without them there can hardly be a new deal. Stimulation of the consumer goods industries will mean very little of itself. The problem demands solution.

Because it is so important to the success of the new deal we may confidently sit back and wait a satisfactory agreement. And the scare stories about holding up orders for capital goods need not be taken too seriously by those who counted heavily on their being placed.

Patino Mines is well spoken of in many a State St. boardroom. It is called a nearly perfect hedge against world inflation. Even at current prices it is said to be all right by people inclined to wait for the list to work lower before doing their security shopping.

Followers of the wheat market are not ready to place their O. K. on the situation. For the most part they still feel that the regulated price movements resulted in preventing the liquidation of weak accounts and the upbuilding of a stabilizing short account.

Technical market men will keep a close watch over their charts this week. They expect a definite clue to future movements that will enable them to propose a market program. As it is now little is offered in support of a hurried buying campaign.

War debts are lurking in the background and are causing some concern . . . The matter must soon be fought out . . . And the usually European trick of trying to scare us is expected . . . This seems to be the favored formula for prying Uncle Sam loose from his credits.

Evans Products Is Running at Profit

Evans Products Company is now operating at a profit due largely to the new type of auto-loader introduced to the railroads late in 1932. Orders to date have been for over 3300 sets of this equipment, involving an investment of over $1,000,000. Orders are still being received in satisfactory volume, with the result that the company made a small profit the first half year of 1933 and should show a fairly substantial profit during the latter half.

It will require several months' profitable operations to recover the losses sustained during the past 2½ years.

Wallace D. Baker Dies in Florida

Fort Myers, Fla., Aug. 21—Wallace D. Baker, 72, retired Boston business man, is dead at his home in Bonita Springs, near here. His widow, a daughter and a son survive. The body will be sent to Boston Tuesday.

Dividend Changes Are Again Favorable

New York, Aug. 21 (AP)—American shareholders, grown accustomed to the increasing frugality of their dividend diet, had cause for jubilation today in statistics indicating that the three year famine is on the wane.

Signs that those halcyon days when they feasted upon liberal shares of corporate profits may be returning are delineated in the box score of dividend changes for the past four weeks. Each week of the four has shown a gain in favorable changes over the number of adverse actions.

It is the first time since American business began to feel the results of the depression that the trend has been reversed for a protracted period. Whether the improvement continues without a setback depends, of course, on business recovery, but most of the prophets in Wall Street have predicted that the rehabilitation of earnings will continue through the rest of the year.

Shareholders who had about concluded that the only refrains directors knew were "dividend omitted" and "dividend cut," have listened recently to the more cheerful strains of "dividends increased" or "dividends resumed."

Last week five corporations increased their dividends, four resumed disbursements, two declared extras and three cut their initial melon. Standard Statistics recently recently estimated that there were good prospects of the resumption of disbursements before the end of 1933 by 29 corporations and increases by nine more.

Ample evidence is at hand of how the drouth in corporate profits hit the pockets of American shareholders now estimated at more than 10,000,000.

In 1929, which marked the peak and the end of the post-war era of prosperity, 433 industrial corporations had an aggregate net income of $3,294,000,000. Of this amount, it distributed $1,638,000,000 to common stockholders and divided $225,000,000among holders of referred shares.

A gradual decline set in, and each year the rations apportioned to the real owners of the corporations have become shorter, until in 1932 they reached a low point with net profits of $201,000,000. Stockholders received $864,000,000 as companies dipped into surplus accumulated in boom years.

STEEL PICKUP AWAITS CODE ADJUSTMENT

Confidence of an Early Fall Revival Is Still Strong

Clarification of the industrial code situation, now confusing to iron and steel producers and consumers, is expected to supply a strong impetus for terminating the present intermission in buying which has reduced steel works operations three more points to 51 per cent, states the magazine, "Steel."

Seasonal influences have added some weight to the inability of purchasers to determine what effect the codes will have on costs and prices, and, as a consequence, the decline in operations has become more rapid, with prospect of further reduction in the national average this week. The rate is down six points to 48 per cent at Chicago, five to 53 per cent at Buffalo, four to 60 per cent at Youngstown, two to 77 per cent at Cleveland, two to 46 per cent at Pittsburgh, two to 40½ per cent in eastern Pennsylvania.

Confidence in an early fall revival still is strong, aided to some extent by the more rapid progress now being shown in the formulation and application of the codes.

General expectation of higher prices in the fourth quarter is bolstering shipments and to a lesser extent leading to some additional purchasing.

Finishing mill operations are slowing up as unfilled July specifications are reduced. But, in contrast with most finished steel lines, a fairly strong demand persists for sheets and tinplate. A Pittsburgh interest booked 10,000 tons of tinplate in one lot; orders for 2000 tons are frequent. Refrigerator manufacturers are nearing the close of a heavy production season, but demand for some other sheet specialties during the week increased. Argentina is in the market for 43,000 tons of galvanized sheets.

A steadily rising volume of pig iron shipments is traceable in part to orders for castings but more especially to consumers' fears that under the industrial code low-priced material, not specified before September 30, will be cancelled. Silveries and Bessemer ferrosilicons are up $1 to $1.50. Six thousand tons of Royal Dutch iron has arrived at Philadelphia. Though the movement of scrap is not so brisk, prices are strong except some grades at Chicago. Coke is easier.

Iron ore is being shipped down the Lakes at a 4,300,000-ton rate for this month. The number of carriers in service has risen 69 to 185, against 17 a year ago.

Steel's iron and steel composite remains at $30.02, the steel works composite $47.50, while the scrap figure is down four cents to $11.54.

Trade Will Precede U. S. Flag in Russia

Trade will precede the flag in this country's relations with Russia it appears in Washington today. Diplomatic recognition is taken for granted there as a development of the relatively near future, but many Americans evince a willingness to sell their goods to Russia in advance of that formal step. At least 40 applications are before the R. F. C. for loans to enable American manufacturers and agriculturalists to sell goods in Russia on long-term credits. One motor car company has an order for 1000 trucks, it is reported in Washington, and is trying to work out a financing scheme with the R. F. C. Certain manufacturers have provisional orders in hand for considerable quantities of goods.

$136,000,000 Bond Default Is Nearing

Next month approximately $136,000,000 of German dollar bonds marketed here since the war will go into default under the German government's decree of June 9 halting payments on foreign bonded debt in terms of foreign currencies. Interest due on these bonds in September amounts to less than $4,500,000 and the amortization to less than $2,250,000. State and municipal loans, direct and contingent, will head the list of German bonds to enter the default class, with a total of $75,209,500.

Westinghouse Has Loss in the Month

New York, Aug. 21 (AP)—Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. had a loss in July after reporting a profit in June, N. G. Symonds, vice president in charge of sales, said today.

Bookings last month were over the June total but billings decreased, Symonds asserted. When billings catch up with new business being taken, operations will against be in the black, he added.

Closing on Paris Exchange Is Mixed

Paris, Aug. 21—In a session of light and irregular trading today, international issues improved slightly on the Bourse. However, domestic issues including rentes weakened. The closing was irregular. The Berlin Boerse opened weak, prices declining three to four points despite large orders for agricultural machines. The market closed sustained at its low level.

Coal Consumption

By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Editor, The Econostat

The serious labor disturbances in the soft coal fields raise the question of the importance of this fuel and the possible effects of an interruption in its supply. The accompanying chart, based upon a report of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, shows industrial consumption of bituminous coal during the month of June, 1933. It shows that the greatest single consumer of soft coal is the country's railroad system.

Next in importance come the by-product coke ovens; third, electric power utilities and, finally, steel and rolling mills. These are the major consumers and the balance is distributed among thousands of commercial plants throughout the country. It is not generally appreciated that fuel still constitutes the principal source of elecric power.

During the last full year for which we have complete records, namely, 1931, 91,729,000,000 kilowatt hours of power were produced in the United States. Of this total, 30,603,000,000 kilowatt hours were produced by water power and 61,126,000,000 kilowatt hours, exactly twice as much, were produced from fuel.

Not all of this fuel is bituminous coal. There is some oil used, amounting to 8,123,000 barrels in 1931 and gas equal to 139,328,000,000 cubic feet. The relative importance of coal among the fuels used to produce electric power is indicated by the fact that the total consumption of coal and coal equivalents amounted to 47,134,000 tons and that 38,734,000, or approximately 80 per cent was soft coal.

Unquestionably the interruption in the supply of soft coal due to any protracted disturbances in the coal fields would seriously cripple not only the electric power utilities but transportation, steel and cement, and the entire field of production which exploits the derivatives of soft coal.

It is of some interest to note the number of days' supply which the principal industries have on hand. Electric power utilities have 58 days, by-product coke ovens 31, steel and rolling mills 23, cement mills 17, coal-gas retorts 63, other industrials 27, and the railroads 20 days. The average for all industrial supply is 29 days.

Live News of Active Leaders in Wall St.

WET issues staged the customary celebration of another victory for the forces fighting prohibition, with National Distillers and American Commercial Alcohol both up 4 points in short order.

Utilities Ordered to Make Rate Cuts

Explaining some of the recent weakness in public utilities, it became known today that five public utility companies serving New York city were ordered to reduce rates 6 per cent and Westchester Lighting Co. was ordered to reduce its schedules 3 per cent, effective September 1 for one year. Action taken by the Public Service Commission at conclusion of its hearings, was based on opinion by Chairman Maltbie that accumulated surpluses of the companies should be used at this time so that rates could be cut and recovery added. It is indicated that the case will be taken to court for final determination.

Associated Gas Has Deficit in Quarter

Announcement was made today that Associated Gas & Electric Co. and subsidiaries report for the quarter ended June 30 deficit of $645,522 after all charges. This compares with surplus of $176,280 in the quarter ended June 30, 1932.

Du Pont Regular Dividend Certain

Regular dividend of 50 cents a share on DuPont common for the current quarter is expected to be ordered by directors at their meeting this week. Wall Street is awaiting the action without any misgivings, due to the improvement in general business in sharp contrast to the anxiety displayed toward similar events six and nine months ago.

Of course, DuPont income from its huge General Motors investment has enabled it to show more liberality in the matter of dividends than might otherwise be the case if it had to rely entirely on profits from its own operations. On the basis of its present volume of business, estimates are that the company this year will earn about two-thirds of its $2 annual distribution on the common, the remainder being derived from its General Motors holdings.

Oil Trade Code News Stirs Group

News that the administration's oil code had been submitted to executives of the industry stirred a flurry of further buying in the petroleum issues but failed to relieve anxiety over the acceptance of the compact by all the major units. Fragmentary advices indicated the code will establish the price of a barrel of crude oil at 18.5 times the tank-car price of gasoline. This is estimated to bring crude oil prices of Mid-continental to about 74 cents a barrel.

This gives refiners the advantage in being able to control the price they must pay for crude by changing the quotation for tank gasoline. Such an arrangement might be stubbornly fought by companies primarily engaged in production with no refining or distributig outlets.

Business Recovery Is Seen on Second Lap

In its weekly summary of the general business situation, the Standard Statistics Company, of New York, currently comments as follows:—

"Business is plainly at the end of the first phase of recovery, and is looking forward to the second. Such a change in the situation is always accompanied by great uncertainty, as known factors tend to lose their importance and others, of doubtful significance, come into play. The operation of the codes, the future of prices under the processing taxes and higher labor costs, the outlook for the grain markets and fresh uncertainties over the national monetary policy, are the principal new influences which have been injected into the situation.

"In the money market, conditions remain virtually static. Judging by the return of currency to the banks, public confidence in these institutions has been increased considerably, which in turn points toward continuance of low rates, or even toward lower rates as further gradual improvement occurs. Municipal and real estate mortgage credit now constitute the main frozen areas. Railroad credit, which six months ago was at such a low ebb as to threaten a number of important receiverships, has been helped greatly by the remarkable recovery in net earnings.

"That the Administration will turn to the inflation idea, if other means of continuing the price rise should be ineffective, is widely accepted. Just what form the inflationary process will take is pure guesswork. There hardly can fail to be a substantial expansion of bank credit, if the government borrows all the money it apparently will have to borrow, though the result of this expansion on commodity prices is doubtful. Various factors indicate the possibility of devaluation of the dollar, in some form, in the near term. Not the least of the advantages would be the restoration of at least a modified gold basis, the control of exchange rates, and the establishment of conditions relatively favorable to the marketing of security issues by the Treasury."

'ELECTRIC EYE' NOW CONTROLS ELEVATORS

New Westinghouse Invention Is Put Into Operation

Pittsburgh, Aug. 21—Although they travel at speeds which make them the fastest passenger elevators in the world, "electric eyes" stop them exactly at floor levels, an unusual control feature of the Westinghouse Electric Elevator Company's installation in the RCA Building at Rockefeller Center.

In testing the elevators, executives of Rockefeller Center and New York City officials travelled at the rate of 1400 feet per minute in one of these elevators going from the first floor to the 65th of the RCA Building in 37.1 seconds. Yet these cars are levelled exactly at any floor by two little "electric eyes"—photo electric cells.

These cells, which resemble, in external appearance, the radio vacuum tube, will be entrusted with stopping, exactly opposite floor levels, the 38 high speed elevators in the 69-story Rockefeller Tower in Radio City, New York, according to an announcement today by the Westinghouse Company in whose engineering laboratories this latest type of automatic floor levelling control was developed.

Electric eye control marks a return to the use of "eyes" as a means of judging the stopping of elevators. Years ago, magnetic control replaced human eyes which had served through the early decades of the elevator industry's existence.

Up and down the 850 feet of darkened elevator shaft, two electric eyes will ride each fast moving car. The photo tubes' cold calculating stare will bring the car to a stop level with any desired floor. This accuracy surpasses that of all other types of automatic control, according to Westinghouse engineers.

Originating in research laboratories long ago, the photo electric tube was greatly improved in the impetus given to tube development by radio following the World War. In making possible today's talking movies, it achieved its first commercial importance.

The photo electric cell's usefulness is due to its peculiar reaction to light.

Commodiy Prices of Week Off a Bit

Washington, Aug. 21 (INS)—Wholesale commodity prices declined one point last week according to today's index of the National Fertilizer Association. The latest index number 66.4 is nine points lowe rthan ti was a month ago.

Five of the 14 major groups in the index advanced, five declined, and the remaining four showed no change. Thirty-two commodities showed higher prices while 37 showed lower prices.

American Dollar Is Quiet in London

London, Aug. 21 (AP)—The United States dollar lost ground in a quiet market today on light offerings. Opening at $4.50 to the improved to close at $4.52, compound, the rate touched $4.53 and pared with Saturday's $4.49¼.

Gold currencies were steady. The French franc was 84.40 at the close, unchanged from the opening.

Closing on London Exchange Is Steady

London, Aug. 21 (AP)—Trading on the stock exchange was moderately active today. International issues weakened after early firmness while oil shares improved on developments in America. Home rails were cheerful in anticipation of favorable traffic reports and giltedged securities were sustained despite a slackening of investment demand. The market closed steady.

Japanese Cotton Business Hard Hit

New York, Aug. 21 (AP)—The New York Cotton Exchange service estimated that Japan in July exported 167,000,000 yards of cotton cloth compared with 179,000,000 in June and 195,000,000 in July, 1932.

"Tariffs recently imposed by India and China," says the service, "have cut sharply into imports of Japanese cotton cloth into these countries."

Dividend Resumed for Sanford Mills

Sanford Mills, manufacturer of upholstery and other pile fabrics, has declared a dividend of 50 cents a share, payable Sept. 1 to stock of record Aug. 19. Last prior dividends was 25 cents a share, paid in January, 1932.

Average Trader Is Seen Unlikely to Profit as Bear

By WALL ST. SPECTATOR

This week opened with the outlook still clouded and with the stock market back where it started. This is somewhat encouraging, since events in the grain markets between last Monday and Friday were not calculated to spur speculators for the advance.

Short selling is very likely to prove unprofitable for the average amateur trader.

The market is extremely thin and it takes very little stock on either side to cause wide fluctuations.

WHEAT KINGPIN OF SITUATION

Wheat continues to be the kingpin in the current market situation. The grain is at present in the position where accounts have been greatly impaired and the professionals are unwilling to step in with real money until the technical position is straightened out. We don't think last week's fiasco will be permitted to occur again.

The Labor Day holiday and the date for the traditional upturn in business is too near for the administration to allow its program to be endangered by a slump in the grain and stock markets.

Rumors of inflation, which do not come from Washington, are bringing disappointed long selling. Nevertheless inflation is already upon us in various forms.

Merchandising shares are being talked up in anticipation of fall business, which undoubtedly will be better than a year ago.

Auto Sales Higher in Month, Says Polk

The estimate of new passenger automobile sales in July was increased 10,000 units by R. L. Polk & Co.

Basing its computations on complete registration reports from 31 states, it estimated July sales conservatively at 185,000 units, against sales of 174,190 in June and 104,189 in July, 1932.

Total registrations in 31 states reporting were 106,941 or 6.10 per cent better than 100,789 in those states in June and 83.46 per cent ahead of a year ago.

New truck sales in July were estimated at 30,000. Complete reports have been received of registrations in 29 states, showing 16,626 units. This is 27.60 per cent greater than 13,030 in June and 124.25 per cent more than July, 1932.

Dress Strike Holds Garment Interest

New York, Aug. 21—Virtual stoppage of activity in the dress industry, due to strike conditions, has paralyzed all branches of the trade, according to the weekly survey by the resident buying agency of Ben F. Levis, Inc. It reports manufacturers are without stock for immediate delivery and will be forced to increase prices or else produce their garments to conform with the prices now established.

Other branches of the wholesale apparel trade are featured by a rather heavy demand for cloth coats with preliminary reports of sales highly encouraging.

National Supply's Half Year in Red

Report of National Supply Co. of Delaware and subsidiaries, including Spang, Chalfant & Co., for six months ended June 30, 1933, shows consolidated net loss of $1,956,142 after depreciation, interest and guaranteed dividends on Superior Engine Co. preferred stock, but before dividends on Spang, Chalfant & Co. preferred stock, which were not declared. In the first six months of 1932 net loss was $2,218,996 after dividends on Superior Engine Co. and Spang, Chalfant & Co. prefered stock.

NRA PROGRAM IS FOUND WORTHY OF BACKING

Success Is Essential, Says Forbes' Study of Conditions

By B. C. FORBES

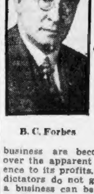
Irregular progress.

That is the best that can be recorded.

* * *

NRA's hectic activities monopolize front pages. Its administrators are becoming more and more dictatorial. The big stick is being brandished over the heads of basic industries that have hesitated to abandon rights heretofore regarded as inherent under the American Constitution.

The prospect is, however, that NRA will insist upon its commands being obeyed implicitly regardless of objections on the part of those called upon to foot the bills.



B. C. Forbes

The steel and motor industries (among others) are deeply disturbed over NRA's attitude towards unionization. Management feels that labor leaders are now in the saddle.

Industry and business are becoming disturbed over the apparent official indifference to its profits. They fear that dictators do not grasp that unless a business can be conducted at a profit, it cannot continue to pay high wages or wages of any kind whatsoever.

Everybody is guessing as to what will happen after Labor Day, when ordinarily it is possible to obtain a line on how the fall will go.

Much, it is reasoned, will depend upon how far NRA success in winning the co-operation of industry, and how far coercion will be carried. If the co-operation of both employers and workers can be won, the outlook will be regarded as distinctly less disturbing than if the big stick is freely applied.

After all, dictators cannot themselves fill pay envelopes. Nor can official decree make possible wage disbursements in excess of profits.

Happily, every thoughtful citizen realizes that it is essential to do everything possible to make the Roosevelt program operate successfully.

Every thoughtful persons realizes also htat unless satisfactory results can be achieved along present lines the President will not refuse to try outright inflation, an emergency measure not generally relished.

That higher prices will be brought about, either by NRA's methods or by drastic currency inflation, is accepted as a foregone conclusion by many speculators. Hence the periodic sharp rebounds in quotations after spells of pressure.

Some who are not fond of speculation reason that, in view of looming inflation, it is better to own common stocks, commodities, raw materials, etc., than idle dollars which may shrink severely.

The stake is so tremendous that it is to be profoundly hoped that no one group, no one clique, no one class will become overly-rambunctious, overly-anxious to take advantage of the present emergency to entrench itself unduly at the expense of the nation as a whole; this is a time for enlightened sacrifice rather than for short-sighted self-aggrandizement.

Adjustment Act Seen Aiding Cooperatives

Washington, Aug. 21—Chester C. Davis, director of the production division of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, sees a broader opportunity for farmers' co-operative associations than they have ever had before. He thinks the Agricultural Adjustment Act will probably do the co-operative movement more good than an act directly fostering co-operative marketing would have done.

When the Adjustment Act gets into full operation, it will be possible, for the first time, for co-operatives to promise only what they can do. By taking over jobs that form, and relieving the co-ops of responsibility for surpluses and prices at this critical time, Mr. Davis holds that the Adjustment Act will be of very real service to the farmers' organizations themselves. It will enable the co-ops to specialize in jobs that they are already well fitted to do.

He emphasizes that the Agricultural Adjustment Act aims to control prices through the control of the co-operatives cannot yet perproduction, but has nothing to do with market prices directly. One of the things he thinks may be very important for the co-ops to do in the future is to exercise a moderating influence on speculation by regulating the flow of commodities to market.

Another step toward the commercial preparation of orange juice that tastes like the true fruit and keeps well has been achieved by two chemists of the United States Department of Agriculture. H. H. Mottern and H. W. Von Loesecke, of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, have developed, on a laboratory scale, a process for preserving citrus fruit juice having none of the cooked taste that so far has characterized bottled or canned orange juice. The secret of this new method, the chemists say is deaeration and rapid pasteurization.

Heating in the presence of air and localized overcooking, they explain, are responsible for objectionable flavors usually present in commercially prepared orange juice.

MODERATE RISE IS RECORDED BY LEADERS

New York, Aug. 21—Rallying tendencies prevailed throughout most of today's session of the New York Stock Exchange with a moderate rise recorded for numerous leaders. Wet shares broke away on the upside with gains running from 3 to 5 points for active issues.

Gains of one to three points were scattered through the oils, rails and industrials.

Liquor shares were stimulated by the Missouri repeal victory and the oils by the signing of the petroleum code over the week-end.

Utilities ran counter to the trend, depressed by the rate cut ordered here. Losses were small, however. Woolworth was another heavy spot.

Wheat and other commodities started off higher but wheat quickly went into a dive which carried it down 2 cents ab ushel. Rallies later recovered part of the loss. Corn showed independent serength.

While Wall Street continued to discuss the various angles of inflationary possibilities, the feeling was fairly widespread that no radical measures would be taken by the administration in the immediate future. It was pointed out that Washington is centering all its efforts on the NRA program and any sharp upturn in prices generally, before the wage-raising plans have time to take hold, would not be consistent with the program.

In the first hour wet stocks celebrated the latest victory of the repeal forces with gains speedily running to 4 points in National Distillers and American Commercial Alcohol. This brough gains of one to three or more points over a broad list, with rails notably strong

Quick repeal votes by 22 states in unbroken sucession, topped by Missouri's 3-to-1 ballot, showed the ossibility that the Eighteenth Amendment could be voted out of the Constitution within 78 days.

Union Pacific was up over 3. Atchison, Southern Railway and Lackawanna lifted a point or better. There was quick profit-taking that lowered some of the early gains and stocks ended the initial period in a drifting market a little elow their best prices of the hour.

Gains of 2 or more points appeared for du Pont, U. S. Steel preferred and some of the wet shares.

Rises of a point or better showed for U. S. Smelting, Industrial Rayon, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Great Western Sugar, Corn Products, Commercial Solvents, J. I. Case, Anaconda, Allied Chemical, Atlantic Refining, American Water Works and Auburn Auto. U. S. Steel churned around up fractionally.

Sales to 11 a. m. approximated 440,000 shares.

Fluctuations narrowed further during the second hour and trading interest dwindled to the extent that the stock ticker paused at intervals. Santa Fe eased slightly by midday.

Gains continued to outnumber setbacks by a very wide margin. Shares up a point or better embraced Case, Allied Chemical, Auburn, Consolidated Oil, Continental Can, Commercial Solvents, Delaware & Hudson, duPont, International Business Machines, Industrial Rayon, U. S. Steel preferred, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Sears-Roebuck.

Woolworth sold down a point. Union Pacific was up 3, and National Distillers up over 2. Du Pont was aided by declaration of the regular dividend.

Sales to noon approximated 640,000 shares.

In the third hour the market continued to drift under the earlier highs but with many of the advances largely retained. Pullman ran down over a point.

U. S. Steel crept up as it sold for major fractional gains over Friday's close. Strength in the wet shares continued. Schenley Distilling sold up 3 points, National Distillers was up nearly as much and U. S. Industrial Alcohol was up almost 2. Crown Cork added 1⅛ points. American Commercial Alcohol was 3 higher.

Sales to 1 p. m. approximated 820,000 shares.

In the fourth hour activity picked up somewhat as the wet shares extended their gains. American Commercial Alcohol was up 5 points, National Distillers almost 4, and U. S. Industrial Alcohol 3⅛. Owens-Illinois mounted 4. Schenley was up 3⅛.

Shares up 2 or better included Western Union, du Pont, Commercial Solvents, Auburn and U. S. Steel preferred. J. I. Case was up 3, with further spreading of the rumor that United States recognition of the Soviet is coming.

Bethlehem, New York Central, Lackawanna, Westinghouse Electric, U. S. Smelting, Lackawanna, Chrysler and American Can all rose a point or more, with Chrysler at its year's peak.

The agreement on the steel code on Saturday was a helpful influence on the steel shares and helped offset a further decline in operations. Rails were supported by the increase reported in Saturday's loadings statement, which was contrary to most previous estimates.

Sales at 2 p. m. approximated 1,050,000 shares.

California's Oil Output Is Lower

California oil production averaged 505,475 barrels daily the week ended August 19, off 1275 a day from preceding week's total of 506,750. This decline came in face of increased production at Huntington Beach, which averaged 50,750 daily, against 49,000 the previous week, and new flush oil from late-in-the-week completions, which raised Los Angeles Basin totals to 245,750, against 242,850 the previous week. Offsetting these gains were a drop of 1759 to 59,950 at Kettleman Hills and 1000 in the rest of the unlisted fields. A year ago California crude output averaged 473,900 daily.

Cotton Exports Are Greater

Washington, Aug. 21—Exports of raw cotton from the United States during July amounted to 692,000 bales, valued at $36,455,000, compared with 615,000 bales and $28,999,000 in June and 449,000 bales and $15,716,000 in July, 1932, representing a substantial gain over the June figures and a large gain over those for July of last year, according to analysis of export figures by the Textile Division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Hemphill, Noyes & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, announce that Melville P. Merritt has been appointed manager of their Boston office, 10 Post Office sq.

Wheat Pool Buying Seen

Chicago special says concentrated buying of wheat on the Board of Trade by a local commission house on orders said to have originated in New York, caused revival of reports that a pool had been formed to operate in wheat. Leading interests disclaimed knowledge of such a pool. Many traders say that the whole trouble with wheat is temporary lack of buying power, the result of the break that carried prices down nearly 39 cents a bushel within a month. Once confidence is restored, they feel, fundamental bullish conditions will again determine the trend of the market.

Branch Offices Increase

As a result of increased activity on New York Stock Exchange in recent months, members increased their number of branch offices by 39 in July.

LIQUOR SHARES UP ON CURB

New York, Aug. 21—Strength in alcohol shares featured a moderately improved curb market session in dealings today.

Hiram Walker ran up sharply in the wet group, reaching 46 for a gain of 3 points. Distillers Seagrams rose 1⅛ to 28⅞; Distillers, Ltd., was up ⅛ to a new top at 21⅛, and Canadian Industrial Alcohol A gained ⅜ to 17⅛.

Electric Bond & Share was in the forefront of a quiet and firm utility group, recording a gain of ⅜ at 25¼. Brazil Traction moved up ⅛ to 13⅛ and Niagara Hudson was up ⅜ at 9⅝.

Atlas Corporation was in demand among the investment trusts, showing a gain of ⅜ at 15.

Standard of Indiana was firm in the oils, with a gain of ½ to 29½.

Cities Service common held unchanged at 3⅛, while the debentures were up ½ point at 35⅝.

Swift & Co. was up ½ point at 19¼ in a dull specialty division.

Cotton Steady in Liverpool Trading

Liverpool, Aug. 21 (INS)—Spot cotton was quiet and steady at the opening today. Receipts totaled 3200 bales, all American.

At midday middling fair was quoted at 6.85d; strictly good middling, 6.40d; good middling, 6.10d; strictly middling, 5.80d; middling, 5.65d; strictly low middling, 5.50d; low middling, 5.30d; strictly good ordinary, 5.10d, and good ordinary, 4.80d.

Futures opened steady, with October at 5.43d; January, 5.50d; March, 5.54d, and May, 5.59d.

Ethyl Fluid Sales Gain Is Reported

Although no late figures are available, a sharp recovery is understood to have been registered in sales of Ethyl Gasoline Corp., which sells to its refining licensees ethyl fluid for use in high-specification gasoline. It is owned jointly by Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) and General Motors Corp.

The pick-up has been due to the price reduction July 28 and more liberal use of ethyl fluid.

EVIDENCES OF IMPROVEMENT ARE CITED

Encouraging evidences of recovery in the general economic situation of the country are appearing in various forms, M. A. Linton, president of the Provident Mutual Life Insurance Company, told leading agents of the company today in the opening session of their annual convention. Market values of securities owned by the company have shown an encouraging increase in recent months, Mr. Linton stated.

"Whereas market values a year ago represented a depreciation of 15.3 per cent of the book values, present market values represent a depreciation of only 6.8 per cent. If securities were valued at actual market prices instead of the commissioners values the company would still have more than $11,000,000 of surplus over and above all liabilities.

"A very gratifying trend is noticeable in the sharp decrease in applications for policy loans and cash surrenders which were less in July than any month since September, 1930. For the first seven months of the year, they showed a decrease of 32 per cent from the 1932 figure.

"Sale of annuities has increased tremendously in the first seven months of the year, single premium annuities having increased 160 per cent over the corresponding 1932 figures."

Officials of the company have no concern about the ultimate value of foreclosed real estate, Mr. Linton stated. He pointed out that only 3.5 per cent of all the company's investments were in foreclosed real estate. During the panic of 1893, the figure rose to 5.2 per cent, but because of the conservative selection of loans, real estate acquired in that period actually worked out at a profit, he said.

Cotton Steady in New York Trading

New York, Aug. 21—Cotton futures displayed a steady tone today with the run of contracts at midday holding about a point or two above the previous closing levels. With Liverpool 6 to 10 American points higher than due, the market opened 5 to 11 points higher but slid back moderately in the later trading. Late prices were up 1 to 3 points with October up 3 at 9.43, December up 2 at 9.63, January up 1 at 9.75 and March up 2 at 9.92.

Easthampton Tax Off $9

Easthampton, Aug. 21 (AP)—A tax rate of $32, representing a decrease of $9 from last year, was announced today.

Gains in Export Trade Are Cited in Late Reports

Washington, Aug. 21—Gains for United States exports are cited in late U. S. Department of Commerce reports.

In the five weeks beginning June 1 American agents booked more business in British Malaya than during the previous several months. This favorable development was the result of rising prices due to the favorable exchange situation. The increase in demand for American products was noticeable especially in the automotive accessory line and estate supplies such as axe handles, saws and similar articles.

A generous proportion of Great Britain's import trade in petroleum products is of American origin, it was revealed in an official report made public by the Department of Commerce.

During the five months period ending May, 1933, American shipments to Great Britain accounted for 16.2 per cent of the gasoline imports, 23.3 of kerosene imports, and 67.8 per cent of the lubricating oils. Imports from the United States of crude oil and fuel oil are negligible.

The appreciation of the peso in terms of the American dollar has resulted in renewed interest in Chile in American automobiles and tires. Nineteen hundred and thirty-three models are finding a new demand, particularly for low and medium priced cars. The demand for tires is rising steadily.

BUILDING GAIN IS REVEALED

Washington, Aug. 21 (AP)—A 30.1 per cent increase in the number of residential buildings constructed in 345 bigger cities during last July as compared with the same month a year ago is reported by the bureau of labor statistics.

The value of the structures also is said to be 43 per cent greater in these cities of more than 25,000 population.

But for 778 places having populations of 10,000 or more residential construction operations dropped 6.9 per cent in number and 8.8 per cent in cost from June, 1933, to July.

These same cities of 10,000 or over showed a 10.6 per cent drop in number and 11.3 per cent slump in value of all building operations from June to July.

BANK PROGRESS EASES TASK OF U. S. TREASURY

Washington, Aug. 21 (AP)—The Treasury today continued trying to reorganize the nation's banking structure, its task made more clear cut by official figures showing that 4902 financial institutions had emerged from the hectic March holiday with available resources of $20,860,491,000.

That was the condition of the banks last June 30. Since then, more banks have re-opened, some few have closed again. But at the end of June, the additional 985 national banks still closed or operating on a restricted basis had assets of $1,441,436,000.

It was the Treasury's job to put more concentration now on these so they may be re-opened or reorganized and their total deposits of $1,028,347,000 made available.

Figures like these regularly are gathered by the comptroller of the currency, who issues periodic calls at times he selects for condition reports on national banks. June 30 was the last. The latest before that was Dec. 31, 1932; there was another on June 30, 1932.

In December, 6016 national banks reported assets of $23,310,374,000; on the last day of June a year ago, 6150 reported assets of $22,367,711,000.

Untermyer Urges Boycott on Germany

New York, Aug. 21—Samuel Untermyer, noted attorney, has sent a cablegram to the Zionist congress at Prague, Czechoslovakia, urging its support of a boycott against German goods promoted by the Jewish World Federation.

In the message, addressed to Chairman Louis Lipsky, Untermyer expressed the hope the congress would "unequivocally . . . join forces with the Jewish World Federation . . . in promoting a world boycott."

Hundreds in N. Y. Watch Century Plant

New York, Aug. 21—Just as the fans are losing patience, the century plant in the Bronx botanical gardens is getting ready to oblige. Hundreds and hundreds of people stood around yesterday—as they have for the past three Sundays—waiting for a blossom that did not unfold.

Cotton Industry Is Above Normal Level

Cotton manufacturing has led the way out of depression, and is actually running well above the average level for a normal business period, states the New York Cotton Exchange Service.

Cotton mills have operated at an extraordinarily high rate relative to general manufacturing the past 12 months and are still running far above industrial operations on an average. Activity of domestic spinning plants the past cotton year has been particularly impressive since spinners have had to pay more for raw material the past 12 months than the previous year, while the general commodity price level has been lower.

Even during last month, when cotton cost much more than two years ago and when commodity prices in general were slightly lower than at that time, cotton mill operations averaged about 50 per cent higher than the earlier period.

During July cotton mills ran at 122 per cent of average level the six years from 1922 to 1927 inclusive, while manufacturing establishments on an average ran about 97 per cent. In the cotton year ended July 31 cotton mill activity averaged 95 per cent, while general manufacturing activity was 69 per cent. In the previous cotton year cotton mill operations averaged 75 per cent and general manufacturing activity 67 per cent.

Position of the cotton spinning industry has become sounder than for many years by an extraordinary reduction of surplus manufacturing capacity and excessive mill operations. Spindles in place have been reduced from about 37,900,000 in 1925 to 30,900,000. Under leadership of the Cotton Textile Institute hours of operation have been cut to 40 hours a week a shift with no mills running more than two shifts.

Assurance that operations will not again become excessive is given by the fact that the present limitations on working hours are embodied in the code adopted, the cotton industry being the first to adopt such a code.

CHANGE IN BANK ACT PLANNED

By JOHN A. KENNEDY,
Universal Service Correspondent.

Washington, Aug. 21—Changes in the deposit insurance features of the new Glass-Steagall banking bill are to be recommended to Congress by the Roosevelt Administration.

Senator Carter Glass (D.), of Virginia, and Prof. A. A. Berle, Jr., one of the administration's financial experts, are working up suggestions for broad changes in the law by which they hope to make its insurance provisions more acceptable to bankers.

There are two provisions for insuring deposits under the new law. One, of a temporary nature, goes into effect Jan. 1, unless previously ordered by the President. It provides a 100 per cent guarantee on the first $2500 on deposit in all banks coming within its provisions.

Dividends

E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co. declared regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the common, payable September 15 to stock of record August 30.

Every night from now until Saturday will find a New England governor speaking over Yankee Network facilities (WNAC) to voice important NRA messages throughout our Down East section of the U. S. Beginning this evening with an address by Gov. Ely at 8:30, the schedule carries on at 7 p. m. thereafter.

* * *

Tomorrow night brings Gov. Wilbur Cross of Connecticut to the microphone. Wednesday night is reserved for Gov. John Winant of New Hampshire. Thursday night it will be Gov. Theodore Green of Rhode Island. Friday belongs to Gov. Louis J. Brann of Maine while the Saturday spot is allotted to Gov. Stanley Wilson of Vermont. All six state chieftains will review the NRA program progress to date and point out detailed benefits enjoyed in their respective dominions under the Blue Eagle wing spread.

BROADCASTING WITH BEN

Ben Bernie is giving thought to the "guest artist" idea it seems. Tomorrow night the subtle and slick "Ole Maestro" is introducing Sophie Tucker to his regular (WEEI) weekly audience at 9 o'clock.

* * *

By the way, after Ben concludes his genial carrying on tomorrow evening, swing over toward WBZ-WBZA territory if you like stirring dia- drama. An air episode of the new Robert W. Chambers story, "Operator 13," is holding forth for a half hour between 9:30 and 10 o'clock.

George M. Cohan certainly scored sharply last night (WBZ) at 9 o'clock, especially with that original and catchy "New Deal" song he introduced. Some showman!

* * *

Old time tune lovers will want to hear "Singin' Sam" tonight over WNAC at 8:15 when the big voiced basso minstrel offers "After the Ball" among his selections.

CONCERTS CONTINUE.

Enthusiastic response to the first few programs by the Milton Post American Legion Band, have resulted in arrangements being made for the outfit to continue on the air lanes hereabouts every Monday night from 9 until 9:30 p. m. WNAC is the station.

Where There's Oil There's Money

And Where There Is Money Men Will Go

DIGGING A TRENCH TO BRING OIL

Who knows much about the Kingdom of Iraq in far away Mesopotamia, where the Tigris and the Euphrates once made fertile the seat of early civilization until ignorant vandals destroyed the canals?

The average American does not know much about Iraq, but Standard Oil and Shell Oil, of England, know ALL about Iraq and, especially, about the "illimitable resources" of the Iraq oil fields.

This picture shows a trench-digging machine that will travel across deserts, over hills and mountains, SIX HUNDRED MILES, digging trenches for two oil pipe lines. One will bring crude oil from the Kirkuk oil fields of Iraq to the Mediterranean, the other taking oil to Palestine.

The "Iraq Petroleum Company" is an operating company which belongs to the Shell Company of England and Holland, the Standard Oil of America, with some minor interests.

Here you see an interesting labor-saving device. Think how many men it would take to dig a deep ditch six hundred miles long to hold pipe lines. Thousands of men would work for a long time to do what half a dozen do now with the power of machinery, cutting through the earth like a knife through cheese. Here and there hard rocks require blasting, but generally it is easy cutting.

Nations that cut each other's throats, labor unions that quarrel about their rights and others can learn a lesson from great capitalistic organizations that are digging this ditch, bringing oil six hundred miles to where they want it. Those big organizations COMBINE and "amalgamate." They don't waste time, money and energy fighting, except once in a while when one of them decides to annihilate another.

Paper Suits

Cool, Comfortable, Cheap

American men seem to be blindly groping toward comfortable clothes for the Summer.

Our more prosperous or courageous fellows boldly appear in whites, even though the city grime soon makes a duck or linen suit look like something the cat dragged in.

The wearers deserve credit, nevertheless.

They are the pioneers in a new movement to make men as comfortable as women in the hot months.

Eventually, perhaps, they will convert the rest of their sweltering brethren. If they do it will be a blessing not only to half of our population, but even more so to the cotton business and the laundry business.

And speaking of Summer clothes, we wonder why none of our stores or clothing factories go in for paper suits.

These garments are an old story in South America.

They are cool, they weigh only a pound and they are so cheap that even the poorest of us could afford them.

It is true that they present a problem when it rains.

But they might be accompanied by a cellophane mackintosh or something on that order.

The idea is offered free of charge to any enterprising firm up here that wants to experiment with it.

Wine Helps Temperance

Whiskey Does Not

The only good thing that can be said about prohibition, we think, is that it taught a large number of Americans to drink wine.

Before, generally speaking, there were only two drinks—beer and whiskey.

It is true that the "noble experiment" taught many young people to drink whiskey who otherwise would not have learned, and it taught millions of all ages to drink gin.

In spite of these handicaps, however, the wine industry flourished in its many guises or disguises, and a vastly greater market for light wines has been built up as a result of the Eighteenth Amendment than existed when it was passed.

Beer and light wines promote temperance, spirits do not.

In our view the spirits tax should be as high as the traffic will bear, by which we mean high enough to yield the maximum revenue without encouraging bootlegging.

The wine tax, on the other hand, should be as low as is compatible with revenue needs.

The tariff on foreign wines is a different matter.

This country can produce excellent light wines and its grape growers and wine makers should have protection from competing foreign brands.

Worthy Institution

When you are in the mood to do something worthwhile and when you have the means to do it, look into the North Bennet Street Industrial School.

This school is supported entirely by donations. It performs many useful services in this community. Not the least of these are to train boys to useful vocations and to find employment for grown men who are out of work.

The school is on North Bennet Street. You will be welcome to see what it has and to be told what it does. You need not go there with a million dollars in your pocket. Your gift will be accepted no matter how little it may be.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21—Diary of a modern Pepys: Betimes to find an autographed volume of Harold Bell Wright's latest Ozark story. The Mall in Central Park is not only the playground for children of the rich but the foliating ground for much juvenile snootiness. Interlopers with their mothers are outside the pale. To be really swank one must have one's own uniformed nurse. Nurses also regard mothers who drop around at intervals to see how their children are getting along as "snoopers" and often, in such instances, quit their job.

One of Montague Glass's stories concerns a young reporter who recently took to himself a bride. The next day he went to lunch with his rather Czarish boss who observed casually: "You have nerve to marry on your salary. Has your wife money?" They had only a few dollars between them. But to put up a front: "O, lots of it!" As a result the next day he was fired. That was six months ago and he hasn't had a job since.

Mrs. Bennett is the "D." who appears so frequently in the later volumes of Bennett's journal and as such is the object of much lorgnette curiosity. She is a striking beauty, tall, statuesque, and hopes to bring the production to the Rialto this fall.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

"The Pilgrim Soul—"

TIRED? . . . Disgusted? . . . Discouraged?

Feel you've made a mess of everything?

Always made a mess of everything—

One blunder after another — all your life—

Until nobody believes in you any more . . .

If only somebody understood . . . realized how hard you'd tried—

Elsie Robinson

But they don't—the won't. All they see are the failures. If they could look beneath . . . see how much you wanted to make good—

For you did—didn't you? All your life you've wanted to make good. Not just play safe—pile up a profit—but really do something splendid . . . something lovely—

But who would believe you if you tried to tell them that—with a messed up record like yours?

I'LL BELIEVE YOU, STRANGER?

My record's messed up, too. And all my life I've wanted to make good, just as you have, yet blundered instead. And many and many a time, these dark moods come to me as they come to you. Moods when my pride is in the mud . . . when I hate myself . . . when I wonder if it's worth while, trying to go on—

And then I'll remember a verse I once heard—

"How many loved your moments of glad grace,
"And loved your beauty with love false or true,
"But one man loved the pilgrim soul in you,
"And loved the sorrows of your changing face."

. . The "pilgrim soul"—why do folks like you and I, stranger, dream so nobly—then fail so terribly? That's why—

SOMETHING IN US WON'T STAY PUT.

Something in us can't be satisfied with the things that satisfy so many others. And once—I despised that "something" in me—as you're despising that something in you, now. Once I wished I "could be like other people" . . . comfortable, respectable, successful people—

People who always succeeded in what they started to do—

People who never blundered, never ravelled out, never made fools of themselves—

How I envied those people! How I wished I could share their comfort and safety!

But I don't any more. I know, now, that I couldn't be like such people if I would. And I wouldn't if I could! For in me, as in you, there's a "pilgrim soul." And it's the gypsy fires for us, who are made like that.

Not much to look at—a gypsy. Ragged weary, hungry and broke—usually. No place he can call home. Mighty few he can call friends. No more social standing than a woodtick. And all the world giving him the ha-ha . . . or cursing him out for being a common tramp. And yet—

There are points about being a gypsy, too.

There are visions in those wistful eyes, which the satisfied ones never see! There are songs in those listening ears, which the successful ones never hear! There's a flame in that foolish, floundering heart which the smug ones can never feel!

Pilgrim souls—gypsy hearts—don't be discouraged, stranger, if you belong to their clan. After all, Life's pretty much of a gypsy herself. Ever think what a lot of wandering life has done . . . what a lot of blunders life has made . . . what a lot of energy and treasure she has wasted on her way?

YET THE OLD GIRL'S STEPPING RIGHT ALONG!

And maybe just "stepping along" . . . struggling, blundering, reaching, falling, yet somehow never quite losing sight of the stars . . . maybe that's as well worthwhile as stacking up a million. Sometimes I think it is—

So don't be too disgusted if you're just a pilgrim, old dear. Take it from me, you have a lot of company!

Just Folks

Girls of the Chorus

They dream so much of greatness. Poor tired girls
Who dance for hours upon their weary toes.
They would make famous those false yellow curls
By pleasing people in the theater rows.

I watch them struggling for the throng's acclaim
And wish them well, but oh, their path is hard!
I pity them because the gate to fame
I know against the most of them is barred.

They keep their printed notices in books,
Spin dreams of splendor which are mostly vain;
Suffer great hardships for the crowd which looks,
And seek applause with weariness and pain.

And always as I see them dancing there,
Struggling for favor ere they grow too old,
I seem to see the failure and despair
That wait nearby to crush the dreams they hold.

Recovery Plan Based on Prosperity of Farmers

By James T. Williams, Jr.

One of the major objectives in the war which the Roosevelt administration is waging to drive out the enemy of depression involves directly 30,000,000 Americans living on farms East and West, North and South.

This objective, in the words of the President, is:

"To increase the purchasing power of our farmers and the consumption of articles manufactured in our industrial communities; and at the same time greatly to relieve the pressure of farm mortgages and to increase the asset value of farm loans made by our banking institutions."

If this fourfold purpose can be accomplished, more than the one-fourth of our population living on farms will benefit. Other beneficiaries will include millions of Americans living in cities and towns who sell to the farmer and all those who hold his mortgages.

If only the net income of American farmers can be increased, the deflation of farm values can be checked, the farmer can buy more from his fellow citizens living in cities and towns, pay his bills, and the interest on his mortgage, and begin to reduce the burden of debt under which he has been staggering in recent years.

HOW TO HELP

None of Mr. Roosevelt's fellow Americans has a keener appreciation of the accuracy of his estimate of the agricultural situation today than the Federal extension forces of the Department of Agriculture, and the state and county agricultural agents who co-operate with them in helping the farmer to help himself.

Many illustrations are given by these extension agents who are helping the farmer today in 2400 of over 3000 counties of the benefits that will accrue to the average business man living in the city or of the town if only the purchasing power of the average farmer can be increased.

R. W. Gilbertson of Minnesota, the able senior extension agriculturalist of the Department of Agriculture, can cite you case after case where enabling the farmer to buy more enables the business man and the manufacturer to sell more.

For example, he will tell you that reducing the average cost of raising wheat by 10 cents per bushel or increasing the selling price of wheat by the same amount, will make it possible for each wheat farmer in the United States to get $1.40 more per acre for his wheat.

What will this mean to the wheat farmers in Kansas? The buying power of every one of them will be increased by $190. In other words, the wheat farmers in each county in Kansas will have $160,000 more with which to buy what they need and pay their debts if the cost of raising a wheat crop can be reduced 10 cents a bushel or the selling price increased by the same amount.

AIDS TOBACCO GROWERS

In the state of Kentucky, more than $90 can be added to the purchasing power of each tobacco grower if he can be helped to net only three cents more per pound for his tobacco crop. This will add almost $100,000 to the purchasing power of the tobacco growers in each of the 120 counties of that state.

Three cent more per pound for cotton in Mississippi, made possible in part by lowering the cost of production and in part by increasing the selling price, will add $263,030 to the spending money of the cotton growers in the average county of that southern state.

Adding 1 cent per quart or 50 cents per 100 pounds for milk sold each year in the state of New York will add more than $440,000 to the buying power of the milk producers in the average county of the Empire state. And that will mean an increase of $27,000,000 to the annual income of all milk producers in the state of New York.

It was said of Abraham Lincoln that he always "saw the union whole." When Mr. Roosevelt mobilizes the agricultural extension forces North, East, South and West to help the farmer increase his buying power, he knows that he is also helping to increase the selling power of the average business man and manufacturer in every city and town in the United States.

Human Side of the News

Soldiers of Fortune Flock to Paraguay—Four Divide Wendell Millions—Tichborne Case

By Edwin C. Hill

Soldiers of fortune—White Russians impoverished and alienated by Bolsheviki, English younger sons and American adventurers are fighting for plucky little Paraguay against Bolivia in that savage war down in South America. Lean Yanks who really haven't been happy since the Great War are taking ship, eager to hop into any scrap that isn't strictly private.

The two South American republics are fighting over a great strip of wild land called El Grand Chaco. There is no region's on God's footstool more mysterious, less mapped. It consists of a tropical jungle as big as New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania combined. It is almost in the center of South America. An awesome place, this Chaco, with feriocious, demon-worshipping Indians in its jungles and the savage piranha in its waters. The pihanha is an 18-inch fish with razors for teeth, and the most savage scrap of life that walks, swims, crawls or flies.

Stranger than the piranha and the demon-worshippers, even, are the dog-snake and the alligator-cat which, so the Indians vow, are in the jungle and which the white man has yet to disprove. Fifty years of dispute over El Gran Chaco led to the war which has been raging more than a year and which has cost probably 20,000 lives.

* * *

In the background of the conflict looms a figure of world celebrity. It is the figure of Senor Simon Patino, who donated fifteen airplanes to the army of his native Bolivia. Indeed, the story of El Gran Chaco is no stranger than the story of Simon Patino. The turn of the century found him a small shopkeeper in Bolivia. Today you and I, and almost everybody else in the world, contribute a mite to his great fortune, for he is the world's tin king, the world's greatest producer of tin; owner of banks, oil lands and ranches, with a palace in Paris which is the despair of artists and the amazement of hoi polloi.

Other palaces, scattered about the earth, are held ready for Senor Simon's occupancy. All this he has because he risked all. He put everything he owned—his country store, his own savings and his wife's money, into an expedition to go into the Bolivian mountains and prospect for tin. And he found it—huge, incalculably rich stores of tin. Then he had to capture and corral the beasts of burden to bring his tin to civilization—llamas, the pack animals of the Andes.

And now he is rated as a billionaire, richer than Ford or Rockefeller. So little Paraguay, with her million and a quarter of population finds herself up against Bolivia, with 3,000,000 people, and also combatting the enormous wealth of the Tin King of the world.

* * *

Four fortunate human beings divide, by Surrogate's decree, the lion's share of the wealth of the departed Wendells of New York, eccentrics who piled up a vast fortune over the course of a century's increase in the real estate values of the metropolis. That strange imposter, Thomas Patrick Morris, whose story—the true one—probably has never been revealed—failed in his bold and stubborn effort to prove himself a legitimate son of John G. Wendell, last of the male Wendells. Not in 65 years have the courts had to deal with such an amazing example of imposture.

Not since the famous Tichborne case, whose romantic and exciting episodes made rich reading for our grandfathers and grandmothers. The Tichborne case stands as the classic example of ingenious scheming to win riches by stealing the shoes of a dead man. Roger Charles Tichborne was the 10th baronet of his line, of a very ancient family of Hampshire, England. His mother, a Frenchwoman, hated England and brought her son up in France. He became more of a Frenchman in speech and personality than an Englishman, but he returned to his native land and went into the army. After an unhappy experience in the service, he quit the colors and sailed for South America. His ship was lost at sea in 1854, all on board perishing.

Everybody except his mother, old Lady Tichborne, was convinced that he was dead. But she stubbornly refused to accept the fact and welcomed to her home at Tichborne Park every tramp and wastrel that turned up.

* * *

And then, one day in 1865 she learned that a butcher in Queensland, Australia, answered to the published description of Sir Roger Tichborne. She wrote to him and he replied. The letter was plainly from the mind and hand of an illiterate person, but so fixed was the obsession of Lady Tichborne that she sent money for the butcher to come to England. He arrived with a group of hangers-on who had invested money in his chances and who, indeed, had cooked up the whole bald scheme of impersonation. Lady Tichborne met the Australian butcher in Paris and promptly accepted him as her lost son in spite of the fact that he could speak not a word of French and bore only the vaguest resemblance to the man he claimed to be.

Finally the case went to court and was fought out for years until, in 1871, it was proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that the claimant was a fraud. He was tried for perjury and, like Patrick Morris, sent to prison for a term of years, but not before various trials had cost a million dollars, nearly half a million of which had to be paid by the Tichborne family. Even then thousands of Englishmen regarded the man as a persecuted martyr. An almost incredible instance of human credulity.

More Cotton Than Ever
Mussolini's Swim
To Let Whiskey Pay
Mr. Klinger's Good News

—By Arthur Brisbane—

THE BEST LAID PLANS, as men and mice know, sometimes go wrong. Government said to cotton farmers:

"You grow too much cotton, the price is low, you can't make a profit. Plow under one-quarter of your cotton and government will pay you, in cash, enough to make up the difference."

The farmers said: "Yes, indeed. Thanks." Plowed up the cotton, and then what?

Then THIS: The money given by a generous government has been used to buy fertilizer for the 75 per cent cotton crop remaining. Farmers have cultivated the diminished crop more carefully than ever, and wise cotton men predict that the cotton crop this year will be bigger than last year, because production per acre will be more than 25 per cent greater.

Government is now persuading wheat farmers to cut their crop for next year, and promises to indemnify them in cash. Will they find a way to get more wheat out of less land?

Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria, small, determined gentleman who fights Hitler and his Nazi business, was sailing his yacht on the blue waters of the Adriatic. Mussolini, 50 years old, jumped into the water from the Italian shore, swam to the yacht and climbed aboard. Europe believes he and Dollfuss have come to an agreement that will interfere with some Hitler plans.

As interesting to Europe as the possible agreement is Mussolini's swim. You can imagine how enthusiastic Italians will be about it.

John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, could, but will not, say to them:

"That is nothing. My predecessor, Richard Croker, used to dive overboard from Senator Murphy's place on the Jersey shore, and swim out of sight of land, paying no attention to the old senator from Troy, sitting on the dock shouting: 'Richard, come back.'"

And Croker was over 60, and had not had an easy life.

Wets predict repeal of prohibition by Nov. 8. That is not impossible. Twenty-two states of the necessary 36, have already voted to get rid of prohibition.

When prohibition goes, various taxes will be repealed, the nation relying on whiskey drinkers to take care of expenses.

Some foreign nations rely on lotteries to pay government costs, and we shudder, because a lottery means gambling.

But a lottery doesn't eat out the insides of citizens' kidneys, or make them commit murder while drunk, or, as Thomas Jefferson said of whiskey, "destroying the fortunes, the bodies, the minds and morals of our citizens."

In New York, Mr. H. J. Klinger, vice-president and general sales manager of Chevrolet, tells 300 Chevrolet agents from 10 states to prepare for a boom in automobile sales.

William M. Packer, the energetic young gentleman in a small car who beat a fast Southern Pacific express train, "The Lark," from Los Angeles to San Francisco, to sell a car to this writer, says the boom is already booming on the Pacific coast.

There is no better news than good automobile sales news, for that is the surest index of prosperity. Any intelligent man, who can, gets an automobile.

Newspapers have printed a statement, not confirmed, that a young Mr. Rockefeller returned from the West accompanied by a well-armed man, accustomed to shoot quickly.

If false, the report will do no harm. Nothing discourages kidnaping as effectively as the kidnaper's knowledge that the reward of an attempt at kidnaping may be a bullet in the stomach, instead of a ransom.

More such armed protection and more "bullets in the stomach" would be beneficial.

In Russia, 100,000 small children are "gleaning" in the grain fields. They go into corners of fields and glean any grain left by the machines. Many bushels will be gathered by the 100,000, ranging from kindergarten to 16 years of age.

The little gleaners, unlike "Ruth, when sick for home, she stood in tears amid the alien corn," will work together in joyous bands, and probably enjoy it. Poor Ruth worked all alone. Fortunately she met Boaz.

Somewhere in this is a moral or some important lesson:

In Chicago flies ate and spoiled the food of animals in the Lincoln Park Zoo. Director Young got revenge. Fly screening, highly charged with electricity, was put in front of the cages. An attractive scent lured the flies to the wire. As they fell they were scooped up and fed to the fish. What valuable lesson would you, or your bright child, draw from that?

MRS. CROSBY IN FEAR OF 'FRAMEUP' ARREST

Admits She Bought Arsenate of Lead; Tells of Will

ISLAND DRAMA

2—Assertion by Mrs. Crosby that her husband's will was drawn up two years ago following reports he had made it at her suggestion and in her favor when he was ill in a Bar Harbor hospital.

3—Constant watch being maintained over Mrs. Crosby by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Stanley, to prevent any possible attempt to end her life.

Cleveland Garment Workers Walk Out

Cleveland, O., Aug. 22—Jacob Roberts, organizer for the Cloth, Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers International Union, announced a strike of Cleveland's 800 millinery workers would start today.

McCoole Plays 'Solomon' in Unchecked $500,000 Will

Suggested advertisement for a trust company or for a lawyer—when professional ethics get around to sanctioning advertising:

"Let us check your will and save Judge Joseph R. McCoole of Norfolk Probate Court the job of playing Solomon."

And here's the happy inspiration for the potential ad:

In a will that disposed of a $500,000 estate, more than $175,000 of which went to various charitable institutions throughout the commonwealth, Miss Mildred Johnson, a Dedham spinster, set aside $5,000 for the "Community Service of Dedham."

Now, there is no such organization in Dedham.

But there is a "Social Service Board of Dedham" and a "Dedham Community Association." And both, of course, claimed the $5,000.

A month-long hearing left the matter in Judge McCoole's lap. Today he awarded the bequest to the Social Service Board. In reaching this decision he was guided by the testimony of Mrs. Howard Wilkes, sister of the dead woman, who said that was the intent of the will.

But it would have been much easier, his honor admitted, if some one had checked the will when it was drawn.

RIBBON USED TO MURDER BABY

Mystery still shrouds the death of a baby, found wrapped in newspapers on the Wellesley golf course a few weeks ago, although Judge E. Dwight Fullerton, in Norfolk county court at Dedham, today filed the report of an inquest.

His verdict was that the infant had been strangled to death by a person unknown. A bit of pink ribbon had been used to choke the baby.

The body was found in the rough along one of the fairways by a caddie. He called police. It had been dead almost a week.

SET CROWLEY RITES FOR FRIDAY

Police Head Is to Rest Beside Wife in Old Calvary Cemetery

Twenty-four hours had ticked off on the clock at police headquarters today to measure the span between the return of Supt. Michael H. Crowley from his vacation, and the solemn announcement that arrangements had been completed for his funeral.

He died at 12:57 this morning in Sylvester Hospital, Hull, after being stricken with coronary thrombosis, a blood clot in the valves leading to the heart, while on the way from police headquarters to his summer home.

A requiem high mass will be chanted for him Friday morning in St. William's Catholic Church, at Dorchester ave. and Belfort st. The exact hour for the funeral service has not yet been set, but it is expected to be 10 a. m.

BURIAL BESIDE WIFE

Burial will be in Old Calvary Cemetery, where the superintendent's wife was interred only four months ago.

Meanwhile Supt. Crowley's body has been removed from the undertaking rooms of C. E. Colbert, 28 Savin Hill ave., to the family residence at 49 Bakersfield st., where it will lie in state until a short time before the funeral mass.

The death of the superintendent came so suddenly that the hands of the clock ground half way through the morning before the officers and men at headquarters fully realized what those two flags at half-staff, limp with rain under the drab skies, really meant.

There was an unusual quiet in the marble corridors of police hedquarters. Voices were lowered, sounds subdued.

DIES IN HARNESS

Only a few hours before his long and honorable career came to its conclusion, Supt. Crowley himself had been in those corridors, joking about the coat of tan he acquired during his vacation.

Even as he had lived, the veteran police head died "in the harness," dictating orders from his deathbed in the Sylvester Hospital at Hull.

Both sons were at his bedside at the end Arthur J. Crowley, Suffolk County court officer, and

Jessie in Battle to Lift Censors' Ban in Two Towns

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Jessie Costello was back in a police station today—but not in Peabody, where she once was booked on a charge of murdering her husband by poison.

She was in Salisbury police station, arguing—successfully according to well-founded predictions—to be allowed to make a public appearance tomorrow night in the Oceanial Ballroom, Salisbury Beach.

It was one of several arguments she may have to make, because while Waltham and New York officials have okayed her projected public appearances, town fathers of Marlboro and Somerset, following the lead of Salisbury selectmen, have banned her—Marlboro definitely and Somerset leaving it hanging, partially, in the air.

RAFTER ARGUES

While Jessie and her chief defense counsel during the murder trial, Francis E. Rafter, argued with the Salisbury selectmen, other of her representatives were exhorting Somerset officials to allow her to open her public career as a show-woman tonight at Wilbur's-on-the-Taunton—a ballroom.

Jessie, attired in a gray crepe dress and accompanied by Atty. Rafter, arrived in Salisbury at 10:15 a. m. and ran the gauntlet of several scores of curious to enter the police station.

Here, for nearly two hours, she and Rafter talked with the selectmen Chairman Harold F. Congdon, acting chief of police, Joseph M. Daley, and Atty. George R. French, and the group perused a typewritten copy of the speech she will make at her ballroom appearances.

DODGES CURIOUS

When the conference was over, Jessie slipped out the police station into the police garage, entered her car which had been ensconced there, and avoided the hundreds of curious who had gathered in front of the station.

Meanwhile, however, she has been given an official sanction in Waltham and in New York, her theatrical jumpoff being scheduled for Saturday in Manhattan.

Jessie will open her theatre showings at the Academy of Music in East 14th st., New York—a movie and vaudeville house doing six a day—and her "act" will be one principally of talking, according to her contract holder, Sam Shribman.

"It'll be a routine of polite

NEEDHAM BANS 'BEANO' GAME

Brig.-Gen. Daniel Needham, Commissioner of Public Safety, today revealed that he was denying requests of beach resorts and other places to conduct "beano" games on Sunday.

He said that in his opinion it was a game of chance and not of skill, the decision of a Suffolk County judge to the contrary notwithstanding.

"Beano" is a "number" game in which the players depend upon a little ball to settle in a numbered slot. Whoever picks the right number wins a prize.

N. E. Cotton Rate Asked for West

Washington, Aug. 22 (AP)—J. C. Penney, Inc., New York City, today filed a complaint with the Interstate Commerce Commission that westbound railroad rates on less than carload lots of cotton goods were higher than eastbound and asked that eastbound rates be put into effect on westbound traffic.

The complaint said cotton goods from New England to California cost $3.40 a hundredweight while the eastbound charge would be only $2.40.

MULLONEY HELD IN WALKER QUIZ

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—Daniel C. Mulloney, former president of the closed Federal National Bank of Boston, and Russell T. Sherwood, former agent of James J. Walker when the latter was mayor, were called again today before the federal grand jury which is investigating Walker's tax affairs.

Mulloney was accompanied to the federal building by a lawyer. This lawyer declined to disclose his identity but said he had been commissioned, by a Boston law firm to ask the federal attorney's office to postpone further questioning of Mulloney so the latter might return to Boston "to attend to matters there." He did not say what these matters were.

The request for immediate postponement was denied and Asst. United States Atty. Joseph Sharp said Mulloney would have to testify today. The attorney then said that Mulloney would return to Boston "as soon as the examination here is over."

Yesterday was Mulloney's first appearance before the grand jury which had been investigating Walker's affairs intermittently since June 1. Sherwood, who disappeared to avoid testifying about his alleged financial connections with Walker before the Hofstadter legislative committee, has made 10 appearances before the grand jury and has been upheld in his refusal to answer some questions.

There has been no announcement as to what information the grand jury expects to obtain from Mulloney.

2 Die in Fight for Girl

OTHERS FACE CHARGES IN COLLAPSE

Limitations Statute Beaten by Quick, Secret Action

Daniel C. Mulloney, its president, is the Federal National Bank officer indicted yesterday by the federal grand jury in the government's probe of the institution's $20,000,000 collapse.

This was revealed today in New York where Mulloney was located and served with a capias ordering his appearance in federal court in Boston to answer to two indictments.

Mulloney will be returned here for arraignment on the indictment charges, which are secret.

His indictment was speeded up by the federal probers in advance of the main grand jury investigation scheduled for next month to foil his escape from prosecution for several transactions which would have been outlawed by the three-year statute of limitations had another month elapsed.

HELD HIGH POST

Besides being president and director of the Federal National Bank for many years, Mulloney was president and director of the Federal National Co., director of the Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co., director of the State National Bank of Lynn, trustee of the Union Savings Bank and president and director of the Washington & Devonshire Realty Co.

At the time of the Federal National closing he predicted depositors would be eventually paid 100 cents on the dollar.

The indictment, it was learned today, constitute merely a forerunner of what might be expected next month when the jury probe of the closed bank is expected to be completed.

After the appearance before the jury of Asst. United States Atty.-Gen. Irving T. McCann and Asst. United States Atty. James A. Wharton, the jury was excused until Aug. 31. Other witnesses in the probe awaited in the corridor under summons but were not called to the sudden session.

Federal officials were satisfied today that the indictments set at rest the widespread rumors that every sort of pressure and influence was being brought at Washington to halt or at least retard the government investigation into Federal National Bank affairs.

SCORES FACE INDICTMENT

They brought to light, too, that Atty. McCann and his associates have worked practically night and day since June in order to speed the charges before the statute of limitations balked their efforts.

Scores of indictments are expected before the end of the

LEHMAN WILL SIGN DRASTIC KIDNAP BILL

Death Penalty Placed in Law Passed in N. Y. State

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 22 (INS)—New York State was ready today to place a drastic anti-kidnaping law on its statute books, one that will empower juries to impose the death penalty where the victim is not returned alive at the time of the trial.

Both Houses have approved the measure, recommended by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman. The executive will sign the bill as soon as it reaches his desk.

Under the new law, kidnaping will be punishable by from 20 years to life imprisonment instead of 10 to 50 years as at present.

Families or other persons who withhold information from the authorities in kidnaping cases would be guilty of a felony, punishable by from five to 15 years.

As originally recommended by the Governor, the bill proposed to make it a felony to pay a ransom, but that provision was stricken from the measure in the Senate codes committee.

The new statute also requires a district attorney to move a kidnaping case for trial within 30 days.

Only two dissenting votes were cast against the bill, both in the lower house by two New York city Republicans.

When the measure came up for final action, Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier (D.), declared in favor of the death penalty for every person convicted of kidnaping.

"Why," said Cuvillier, "I would even be in favor of lynching because the person who would commit such a crime is not fit to live."

RETAIL TRADE IS WARNED

Washington, Aug. 22 (AP)—A declaration that the NRA would not countenance unreasonable price increases was made today by Administrator Hugh S. Johnson in addressing retail dealers in opening a hearing o ntheir code of competition.

The retail trade was urged by Johnson to resist price increases in the near future from jobbers who supply them with their goods.

"I say," Johnson said, "resent these price increases and w will support you."

He asserted that so far as speculative price rises were concerned his adminitration considered it our duty to see that there is no runaway market."

He said the National Recovery Act would increase prices to meet new costs imposed by compliance with the trade charters, but just because of this "there is no reason to go way beyond reason. If you do this you just kill the goose that lays the golden egg. The house that we are trying to build will collapse like a house of cards."

CONVICT GOODS FACE RETAIL CODE BAN

5,000,000 Employes Affected Under "New Deal"

Washington, Aug. 22 (INS)—A new deal for 1,500,000 retail stores throughout the country was proposed today as the National Recovery Administration prepared to open hearings on a code of fair competition for the retail business.

Abolition of "cut throat" competition and sale of convict goods are among the proposals made by the retailers to cure long standing ills, and pave the way for shorter hours and higher wages for employes.

LARGEST INDUSTRY

Although National Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson was struggling to complete the coal and automobile codes, and thus bring the major manufacturing industries under the recovery law, the retail code embraces the largest single employing class in the country.

More than 5,000,000 wage earners will be affected, directly or indirectly, by the retail code, officials said. There are 1,499,720 retail concerns.

CODE TO ROOSEVELT

The retail code was proposed by retail furniture, hardware, mail order, clothiers and furnishers, shoe and dry goods associations.

Adopting the recovery law provisions allowing unionization, the code proposes a general 40-hour week, with exceptions, and minimum wages ranging from $12 to $14 a week.

The coal code was expected to be sent to President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, within the next day or two. Johnson labored most of the night in an effort to bring the operators and labor into agreement.

The automobile code was being shaped into final form for use in conferring with leaders of the industry.

She was rushed to the hospital but died of her injuries a few hours later. Diskin told police rain and darkness prevented him from seeing Mrs. Abbott before it was too late to avoid her.

She is survived by three children, two sisters and a brother. She was descended from John Adams and John Quincy Adams, second and sixth Presidents of the United States.

FRENCH FEAR DUCE; BEG AID OF BRITISH

Prospects of Central European Fascist Alliance Alarms Paris

Paris, Aug. 22—Premier Mussolini of Italy looms today in French eyes as "arbiter of Central Europe," and an alarmed France is begging Britain to join it in reviving the Anglo-French entente cordiale as "more than ever the surest and only guarantee of peace."

FRANCE IN TERROR

It is hardly possible to exaggerate the concern manifested here after the meeting between Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria and Mussolini at Riccione, near Rimini, Italy, Sunday. Every report concerning what transpired at the meeting is eagerly devoured and in each new detail France finds only confirmation of its fears. These are:

1—The Anglo-French protest to Berlin against attempted Nazification of Austria proved a boomerang and a wider way is being opened for German and Austrian demands for revision of the World War peace treaties.

2—A Fascist band across Central Europe, including Austria, Italy, Hungary, and Germany, is crystallizing and will cut France off from her allies, the little entente and Poland.

TREATY REVISION SEEN

Pessimistically analyzing the trend of events, the Nationalist Journal, Desbats, emphatically states:

"The four-power pact (negotiated by Mussolini) was inspired by a wish to prepare for treaty revision, beginning precisely in central Europe. It is incompatible with any energetic policy directed against Hitlerite Germany.

KELVINATOR
PRICES GO UP
SEPTEMBER 1st

BARGAIN DAYS will soon be gone..buy NOW and SAVE

THE big bargain days are almost over! Ever since the 21st of last March, Kelvinator prices have been sensationally low—the result of rock-bottom depression costs.

We knew these unheard of prices couldn't last. We said so when they were first announced; we've said so repeatedly ever since. A small increase was necessary on June 28th; now a greater one is coming September 1st.

Costs have risen from 22% to 102% on many materials used by Kelvinator. That means that times are better—it means more money in circulation—more jobs—returning prosperity.

But it also means that, after September 1st, your opportunity to buy a full-sized, full-powered, standard Kelvinator at today's "bargain" price will be gone, probably forever. That's why we say to you: "If you can possibly do so, buy your Kelvinator now. We don't know of any other sound investment you can make that will pay such a big dividend so quickly."

You will save all the way from $12.50, on the beautiful standard Kelvinator which now sells for $99.50, to many times that amount on some of the larger models.

Let us make this plain: Kelvinator is not boosting prices to a new high level on September 1st; they are simply restoring the prices that were in effect early last March before conditions made it possible to make a sensational but temporary reduction.

These old established prices were, and are, exceptionally low for the quality that is built into every Kelvinator. Except for the temporary prices that will be withdrawn September 1st, they are the lowest in the entire nineteen years of Kelvinator history.

BOSTON TOURISTS ON LINER IN HURRICANE OFF BERMUDA

DOCK SAFELY AFTER RIDING OUT STORM

Nine Dead, 20 Missing Along Seaboard; Brings Rain Here

Nine persons were dead today and 20 missing in a storm sweeping the eastern seaboard since Sunday and reaching hurricane proportions around Bermuda, where many Boston tourists were delayed.

Today the storm near Bermuda started westward and the wind dropped to 38 miles an hour at Hamilton, making it possible for ships which were hove to all yesterday to make port this morning.

The same storm is the one which has given dripping skies to Boston and New England since Sunday, but today the sun began to peep out, in spite of a prediction that inclement weather might hold over through tomorrow.

Under convoy of the coastguard destroyer Acushnet, the Boston fishing trawler Illinois was reported limping toward Boston under her own power, regardless of a cracked thrust bearing which she suffered in the high seas.

The Acushnet met the trawler 125 miles off Highland Light after being detached from routine patrol duty.

The cruise liners Monarch, Southern Cross, California and Franconia, with former Lt.-Gov. Edward P. Barry on the Franconia, were forced to anchor some miles off Hamilton and ride out the storm.

One of the points hardest hit was southern New Jersey, where on Sunday 100 small vessels were driven like chips in the wind, and nine were overturned, dumping crews and passengers into the sea.

So violent was the storm that bathing was forbidden at Ocean City, N. J., and other places.

In a few hours the deluge of rain in Atlantic City measured 4.73 inches.

Young Rockefeller was scheduled to arrive here yesterday with Carroll E. French, director of personnel, who will be his superior, but poor weather conditions prevented their plans to come by plane.

It is expected the young man will be engaged here for about a month and that during that time a detail of police will be assigned to guard him.

Bodker has suffered from his "ailment," whih he believes is due to radio waves, for the last two years. He has yet to find a scientific explanation of his trouble or a permanent cure.

Bodker came here from Enumclaw, Wash.

FOREST PLAN TO AID JOBLESS

A plan for reclamation of 25,000 acres in the Quabbin Reservoir area, providing employment for 2500 men for the next two years, has been presented to the Metropolitan District Water Supply Commission by Atty. Harry T. Talty.

Atty. Talty, who represents a group of Worcester and Hampden County business men and property owners, outlined the plan to the commission and pointed out that it could be performed in conjunction with the building of the $42,000,000 Quabbin Reservoir.

The plans call for the work to be awarded to contractors who bid in open competition and provides that the labor be performed by men now on welfare lists of cities and towns. They would be paid the prevailing wage rate and be housed and fed at cost.

MELLON LINKED BY COUZENS IN BANK PROBE

Ex-President Hoover May Be Called by Prosecutor

Detroit, Aug. 22 (INS)—While Prosecutor Harry S. Toy prepared to ask former President Herbert Hoover to come here and testify, Senator James Couzens today resumed the witness stand at the one-man grand jury investigation of the Detroit bank crash which precipitated last spring's national financial crisis.

The name of Andrew Mellon, Hoover's Secretary of the Treasury, was early brought into the Senator's testimony.

"What particular thing," asked Atty.-Gen. Patrick O'Brien, "did you most object to in the conduct of the Treasury Department under the greatest secretary since Alexander Hamilton?"

"It would take volumes to answer that," Couzens replied.

"You objected strenuously to tax rebates to prominent individuals, didn't you?" Ryan asked.

"That is true, but there was no prejudice. My objection was to the interpretation of the law—that is one of my objections here. There were too many favorites," Couzens replied.

The Rev. Fr. Charles E. Coughlin, whose public criticism of officials of the two closed banks attracted widespread attention last winter, will be the next witness to appear before the jury. He is expected to take the stand Wednesday morning.

Beating Only Least of His Bad Luck

Clinton, Aug. 22—Two black eyes peeped at the judge in district court today as Chester Palmer, 26, of Rantoul st., Beverly, received a sentence of six months in the House of Correction for assault and battery and one month for larceny.

Palmer, who was also held in $3000 for the grand jury on a charge of breaking and entering in the night time, got into a difficulty last night, it is alleged, when he wriggled through a bathroom window into the apartment of Harold C. Smith.

After he had been severely beaten, he was arrested—which made it, all in all, a very disagreeable evening.

Miss Hayes Quits Films to 'Save Dying Stage'

Star Leads What She Hopes Will Be March Back to the Theater

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—Helen Hayes has renounced Hollywood, at least temporarily, and has issued a challenge to all other theater-trained movie stars to do likewise.

"Hollywood should be made to pay its toll to the theater," she said.

"There are scores of actors, actresses and authors in Hollywood who owe their expensive contracts to successes they received in the theater. They have cashed in on that success in motion pictures.

"To keep the scale balanced they should voluntarily pay a tax to the theater, by returning to it regularly, even at the cost of high Hollywood salaries. The citizens pay a tax to maintain schools, and the theater has been our school—our mother— everything. We shouldn't let it struggle alone, now that death threatens it, without us."

Miss Hayes' decision cost her four weeks' salary—a sum in four attractive figures—offered her to make "Wicked Woman."

"The loss of that bonus is part of my tax," she said. "I hope to make Hollywood pay the rest of its toll by using my 'movie name' to lure into the theater many people who will attend a play only to see a 'movie star.'

"If the George Arlisses, the Ann Hardings and the Lionel and John Barrymores should do the same thing, there would be no need of worrying about the rejuvenation of the theater."

HUNT THREE IN NURSE SLAYING

Exeter, N. H., Aug. 22 (AP)—Local and county authorities today pushed forward the investigation of the slaying of Mrs. Louise Bostelle Palmer, 50-year-old nurse, whose dismembered body was discovered in a roadside ditch in Hampton Falls last week.

Sheriff C. L. Spinney and Police Chief Thomas R. Chrysler conferred after each had pursued separate trails of the crime.

Spinney had been in Boston several days consulting experts in an attempt to trace the paper in which parts of the nurse's body had been wrapped, and hrysler investigated clues in Haverhill, Mass., where it is known Mrs. Palmer went July 3, the day she disappeared.

On that day she was seen in a garage in Farmington with three men.

Authorities believe she was taken for an automobile ride from Haverhill with them and are attempting to establish their identities.

Snow and Hale at Bar Conclave

Los Angeles, Aug. 22—Those who take their puns without a chaser will have plenty to say about Southern California weather when tht American Bar Association convention opens at Grand Rapids, Mich., late this month.

Chauncey E. Snow, Jr., and Dr. William G. Hale, the latter dean of the University of Southern California law college, have been chosen delegates to the conclave by the Los Angeles Bar Association. HELEN HAYES AND BABY

BURKE TO SEEK OFFICE AGAIN

With a challenge that he will meet all opponents in open debate on his present administration, Mayor John H. Burke, of Medford, definitely announced himself a candidate for another term today.

The mayor charged that his announcement came a little early, because of a "propaganda squad" that he says has been quietly touring his city in the interests of another candidate.

The announcement carried with it a review of the present administration and included the reminder that Medford, even during the bank holidays, had no payless paydays.

"In this campaign I shall speak only on the facts and from public records, and I now invite those members of the propaganda squad to debate in the open any subject that they have tried to make the people believe," the mayor challenged.

LEGION HEAD DEMANDS U. S. ECONOMY

Johnson Tells 4-Point Plan to Obtain Fair Treatment for Vets

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 22 (AP)—A plea to support governmental efforts to restore "normal and reasonable li[illegible] conditions for those willing to work" and a demand for economy in places "where it is worse needed" than "at the expense of the veteran" was voiced here today by Louis A. Johnson, national commander of the American Legion, at the convention of the Michigan department.

Johnson presented a four-point program which he said would go before the National Convention in Chicago Oct. 2-5.

He opposed cancellation of foreign debts and urged enactment into law of the principle of drafting resources as well as man power in time of war.

"ABOLISH TAX EXEMPTION

Charging half the wealth of the country is invested in tax-exempt securities, Johnson said:

"If we are going to have economy then let the government call in these tax-exempt securities, so that the dollars of the rich man shall be taxed pro rata with the dollars of the poor man in carrying this government on."

The program Johnson outlined is:

"1—A governmental policy of equal treatment for veterans and widows and orphans of veterans, of all wars.

U. S. RESPONSIBILITY

"2—Permanent classification of benefits for all veterans of all wars and dependents that both government and veteran shall know what the benefits shall be and reduce to a minimum discontent from maladministration and misadministration.

"3—A governmental policy of adequate provisions in periods of normal economic conditions for all veterans with war service-connected disabilities without regard to financial status of other means of support.

"4—A governmental policy recognizing that all incapacitated veterans are, when without means of support, charges and wards of the federal government and not of state and local governments or public and private charity."

In order to add Farley's name it has been necessary to plane down one entire panel.

CURLEY-FOLEY CONFERENCE SURPRISE

Developments in the campaign for election in November of a successor to Mayor Curley seemed more complicated than ever today.

While supporters of Congressman John W. McCormack of Dorchester were announcing he would enter the fight either tomorrow or Friday and friends of Chairman Theodore A. Glynn of the municipal street commission were predicting that Glynn would be in the contest before Saturday, Dist. Atty. William J. Foley was preparing for a conference at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon with Mayor Curley.

The Foley-Curley conference announcement came as a complete surprise to the various other contenders, and campaigners for former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell charged the district attorney was making a direct bid for indorsement of the Mayor. Such indorsement is expected by their own candidate, it was stated.

CLAIM BY O'BRIEN

Followers of former Dist. Atty. Thomas C. O'Brien, who is scheduled to begin his campaign with a radio address over Station WHDH at 7:45 o'clock this evening, said he would be the Curley candidate.

Meantime political observers were keeping sharp watch on Francis A. Campbell, clerk of Suffolk Superior civil court, and it was expected an announcement of his candidacy would be forthcoming within 48 hours.

Chairman John W. Newman of the Democratic city committee, who has remained quietly in the background during the past several weeks, was drawn into the campaign again today, when a group of O'Connell workers called on him at his law office and demanded that his organization give immediate indorsement to their man.

CITY COMMITTEE NEUTRAL

Newman informed the group that he and his associates were still neutral and that no date had been set for a meeting of the committee. The visitors informed him that the O'Connell campaign would formally get under way tomorrow, with the opening of central campaign headquarters in the Parker House. Young men supporters of O'Connell opened headquarters in Scollay sq. last week.

While the various candidates were discussing the possibility of obtaining indorsement of both Mayor Curley and the city committee, former Mayor Nichols was continuing to enroll campaign workers in every precinct of the city. Nichols is scheduled to open campaign headquarters within a week.

Daughter Causes Arrest of Mother

Worcester, Aug. 22—A Holden daughter was responsible for the appearance in district court of her mother.

Mrs. Emily Bakulla was the daughter, who brought about the arrest of her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Fedokowicz. The daughter charged that her mother was living illegally with one Boleslaw Senis, who was also arrested. The death of the mother's husband, a year ago, was cause for an investigation by the district attorney.

Salem, N. H., Aug. 22 (AP)—The selectmen announced today that the tax rate for 1933 would be $32.50, an increase of 50 cents over the rate of 1932. Operation of the Rockingham Park race track, it was explained helped keep the tax rate down.

HALT BOOST IN BREAD PRICE

Washington, Aug. 22—Dr. Frederick C. Howe, consumers' counsel of the agricultural adjustment administration, today announced that increases in bread prices have been checked "at least temporarily."

With the announcement he added a warning for consumers to watch out for any lowering of the quality of bread.

"Already there seems to be a tendency on the part of some stores to discontinue higher priced brands and substitute lower ones," Dr. Howe said.

"This substitution suggests the introduction of poorer quality, a form of profiteering as injurious to consumers as unreasonable price increases."

Standard Oil Grants Pay Raises

Chicago, Aug. 22—Although the oil code is not effective until next month the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana increased wages in all its refineries to comply with code terms officials announced here. The increases total approximately 13 per cent at each refinery.

LAMSON CHIEF WITNESS WEDS

San Jose, Cal., Aug. 22 (INS)—The Lamson murder trial, featured by another out-of-court sensation, was to go into its second session today with the ears of David A. Lamson, the defendant, ringing with the state's campaign to demand his death on the gallows.

The Stanford University publisher, charged with bludgeoning his young wife, Allene, to death, prepared for another day of arguments in an attempt to agree on a jury.

The public was torn between the court session and news that Dolores Roberts, 19, nurse maid in Lamson's home, had been secretly married to Warren Sorenson, her school sweetheart.

Miss Roberts was tending the Lamson's baby daugheer previous to the alleged murder.

Second Snake Dance Brings Rain

Flagstaff, Ar—, Aug. 22 (INS)—The rain gods came through and the Hopi Indians are happy. Their first snake dance last Thursday was a flop. All the Indians received was more dust—and higher temperatures.

So yesterday the Indians, carrying writhing rattlesnakes in their mouths, put on another dance with more enthusiasm.

After the strange ceremonial was over the Indians rested. Then the heavenly water supply department got busy.

All was well in the kivas and on the mesas of Hopiland.

Socialists Warned of Fascism Strength

Paris, Aug. 22 (AP)—Socialists of the world were warned today to "face the facts" and act to halt fascism and dictatorships instead of ineffectually waiting for the ideal state.

Sixty-one French deputies and senators carried the split of the party in France, one of socialism's last strongholds, into the Congress of the Second International by presenting a statement in which they declared it was better to participate in government than to be "revolutionaries without a revolution."

U. S. Hens Start Farm Crisis

Washington, Aug. 22 (AP).—The hen, by doing her duty, has caused another farm adjustment administration crisis.

It's the old story—large supplies and low prices to farmers. The hen has contributed her part. Cold storage supplies of eggs and poultry have increased 40 to 50 per cent.

Chickens and eggs sell for almost a billion dollars yearly, but are not considered basic agricultural products in the farm adjustment act. Consequently the control plan applied to cotton and wheat, by which a tax is levied to raise money for payments to cut production, cannot be used to reduce the number of chickens and eggs.

Marketing agreements may be the solution. The Farm Administration is trying to work out a plan. The administration said the number of chickens is estimated at 370,000,000 and that 2,000,000,000 eggs are laid yearly.

CONTROLS THE ENZYMES

WHAT is an enzyme? It is a mysterious substance put by nature into all living cells—in your mouth—in your stomach—in malt, hops and yeast.

Enzymes are nature's digestive agents. They digest the food you eat. They digest malt, hops, and yeast into solution—which we know as beer. Louis Pasteur, the famous French scientist, probed the mysteries of enzymes seventy years ago, but he left no formula for their control.

When enzymes are uncontrolled, they run wild—and yield beer that is rank and indigestible.

SCHLITZ has evolved a secret enzyme control that encourages the enzymatic action to exactly the correct point.

Thus does SCHLITZ effect complete fermentation at the brewery in Milwaukee—not in your stomach.

That is the answer to SCHLITZ full-bodied flavor, to its brilliance, to its healthfulness—for SCHLITZ is a predigested food.

It is never green—never turbid—never flat. It is mildly exhilarating. It flushes and tones the system properly—and at bedtime it induces sound, restful sleep. It is good and good for you. The Brown Bottle protects its purity from the brewery to your glass. Try it today! You'll like it!

By the case or in the attractive SCHLITZ Handy Six. Ask your dealer.

CROWLEY ROSE TO HIGHEST POST BY SHEER MERIT

Career Inspiration to Police Rank and File; Charity and Forbearance Tempered His Iron Hand

The sudden death of Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley early today brought to a close the notable career of one of the most efficient and lovable public officials Boston has ever known

It was almost 45 years ago that a 22-year-old six footer was one of 17 young Boston men appointed as reserve patrolmen. From that position, by dint of constant application and noteworthy exploits he finally attained the highest position the department could offer him.

For many years he served as a patrolman and, as he later said, often became discouraged when other officers were promoted over him.

He never complained and his efficiency and courage finally came to the attention of the then Police Commissioner Stephen O'Meara, who had him promoted to a sergeantcy.

WORLDWIDE REPUTATION

It was only eight years later that he was appointed superintendent to succeed William H. Pierce, who had retired. And he remained as superintendent from that day in 1915 until his death, his fame increasing and his ability gaining recognition not only in Boston but throughout the world.

He remained the same kindly figure in his days of success that he had been in his earlier days as a route officer

Many a grown man today owes his position in life to the wise and kindly advice of the "Super." Many a youth, whose feet had strayed in the wrong path and stumbled, was able to see the error of his ways after he had been interviewed by the "Super."

NAPOLEONIC ADVICE

Many families can thank him for many a Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner

It was to the hundreds of men under him that he was always a real friend. He could be "hard boiled," but he could also govern this stern streak by his inherent kindliness. Many of his men had their own little troubles solved by the "Super."

Like Napoleon, that other leader of men, who told those who followed his dream of empire that teh baton of the marshal of France was in the knapsack of even the common soldier, he always pointed out to them that the superintendent's baton might be found in the kit of every officer

FROM LOW TO HIGH

And how could they dispute it? For he had the most immediate example in his own person He rose from the lowest of the ranks and in his rise there was nothing but sheer merit

His handling of department affairs and police detail was also recognized as foremost among the big cities of the nation

It was at the time of the Garrett case that this was most convincingly demonsrated During the attorney-general's hearing on the probe of Garrett's conduct of the liquor squad, veiled charges were made against the superintendent

He took the stand in his own defense and his testimony was a classic of simple and straightforward fact, leaving all who heard it convinced that they were listening to an honest man who knew his duty

He reached the retirement age of 65 on January 18, 1931, but Mayor Curley refused to sign his retirement papers. He also declared at the time hat he was in good health and was willing to serve as long as the "police and the people of the city wanted him."

Superintendent Crowley was born 67 years ago in Athens st., South Boston, one of 13 children. He was brought up and educated in the schools of that district and at the age of 12 had his first job, that of a Western Union messenger.

Later he became an office boy for the C. C. Converse Company in Devonshire st., and subsequently went to work for the Old Colony Railroad being ambitious to become an engineer

HIS FIRST ARREST

His entrance into police ranks was the result of the dare of a friend Frank O'Brien, who was appointed with him and has since died They studied together for the examinations and Dec 18, 1888, both were appointed reserve patrolmen

On his first night of duty the future superintendent arrested a clothesline thief. In this arrest as throughout his career he did not draw his club or gun.

After eight years at the East Dedham st station, he was assigned to the old liquor squad for two years, and then returned to East Dedham st., where he remained until 1903, when a shake-up sent him to the Dudley st station

He was disappointed at the transfer but it proved the turning point in his career. In 1908 he was promoted to sergeant by Commissioner O'Meara and it was in September of that year that he worked up his biggest case, the Jordan trunk murder Through his efforts Jordan was apprehended and later executed

In 1910 he became a lieutenant and in 1913 was promoted to a captaincy, going to the Fields Corner station. Two years later the youngest captain in the department became superintendent of police

He was a former president of the Massachusetts Police Chiefs Association and during the past year was president of the International Police Chiefs Association

During the many years of his career he was always interested in sports and theatricals and numbered some of the best known athletic figures and stage and screen stars in the country among his close friends.

Newsboys Honor "Super"

No class will miss Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley more than the newsboys in the Scollay sq section

The "Super" was known personally to every newsboy in the square.

Samuel Massell, in charge of the Scollay sq. newsboys for 30 years, today paid tribute for his co-workers, he said:

It was a frightful shock to me. I knew the "Super" for 25 years, and will never forget the splendid deeds he did for the newsboys.

The newsboys will miss the "Super's" big machine in Scollay sq. Supt Crowley acted as judge and adviser for the newsboys of Boston and many a case was kept out of court by the fatherly advice of him

CROWLEY DIES SUDDENLY

Contiued From First Page

Harry A Crowley a Boston salesman. Deputy Supt. James McDevitt, who had just taken the final orders from his chief, paced the hospital corridor with others high in police circles

SHOCKS FATAL

Death came with the second of two shocks, the first suffered while the superintendent chatted with Sergt Charles Wallace on a Nantasket boat, the two police officers bound to their summer homes at Nantasket

With the dogged determination that had marked his 45 years of police service, the superintendent refused to be carried from the boat at Pemberton. He leaned on the arm of Sergt Wallace and collapsed when he reached the waiting automobile of Vincent Crowley, one of his nephews.

Doctors at Sylvester Hospital, where the police head was taken immediately, diagnosed the cause of collapse as coronary thrombosis, the blocking of a heart valve by blood clots.

The superintendent lapsed into unconsciousness when he reached the hospital Sedatives restored him and his first thought was of the department he headed for 18 of his 45 years' service

DISCUSSES PROBLEMS

Deputy Supt. James McDevitt was in his Roxbury home, preparing to leave for a vacation in New Hampshire when he received word that Crowley had been stricken. He hurried to Hull and reached his chief's bedside before he lapsed into a coma.

Realizing that McDevitt would have to take his place for a while, at least, the superintendent devoted his almost last conscious moments to instructing his deputy how to "carry on" in the department

And it was in compliance with that death-bed order that McDevitt reported at headquarters this morning going back to the desk that he had occupied during Crowley's month-long vacation

His very first order was that the national and state flags on headquarters be lowered to half-staff as a sign of respect for the stricken chief

Police Commr Edward Hultman telephoned the hospital several times after being informed of Crowley's condition. Augustine Gill, his personal secretary, and Leo Schwartz, his legal aid, hurried to the superintendent's bedside.

GIVEN LAST RITES

Lieut. James Blaney Crowley's secretary, also went to Hull as did Rudolph Lieber, Francis Gannon and Timothy Sullivan stenographers attached to his office

Death came in the midst of a coma, which set in shortly after last rites of the Catholic Church were administered by a priest of St. Anne's Church at Waveland.

That the superintendent was well aware death was at hand was testified to by Dr. Charles P. Sylvester, head of the hospital, and Dr. E. A Harvey, resident physician. He told them he knew it was "all up," they said

The police head recognized both sons before his death, but was unable to speak to them. They had made a hurried trip from Boston, Harry from his home, adjoining that of his father in Bakersfield st., Dorchester, and Arthur from the home of Jamaica Plain friends, with whom he had been visiting

Leaders Pay Crowley Tribute

Expressions of regret and sympathy over the sudden death of Supt of Police Michael H Crowley were widespread and general today

Men prominent in every walk in life were agreed that Boston suffers an almost irreparable loss in the passing of the superintendent. Men prominent in public and civic affairs were not loathe to express their admiration for the character of the superintendent.

Among those who paid tribute to the memory of the superintendent were the following

COMM EUGENE C HULTMAN:

"This is one of the greatest tragedies that has ever happened in the police department of Boston. The city is robbed of its most valued public servant. Superintendent Crowley was always an amiable and willing police officer He had endeared himself to the people of Boston and to his men. I shall be hard pressed to find a man to fill his place."

MAYOR JAMES M. CURLEY:

"The death of Michael H. Crowley is one of the keenest shocks I have ever suffered. The Superintendent exhibited both skill and ability coupled with genuine humanity and humility. With his passing we shall miss a just and kindly gentl man."

GOVERNOR JOSEPH B. ELY:

"This is a terrific shock I didn't know what to say. The superintendent was a splendid man and a great public servant."

DEPUTY JOHN M ANDERSON:

"The news is the most terrific shock I have suffered in years. I have known Michael H. Crowley intimately for more than 30 years. There was no man in this department or in the entire country, to my knowledge, who was so well fitted as he to head the police department"

EX-CONG. J. F. O'CONNELL:

"It is always sad to contemplate the loss of a faithful public servant It is doubly sad to consider the passing of the late superintendent of police whose outstanding ability, coupled with his intense humanity made him a leader in his field The city could ill afford to lose him at this time."

CONG. JOHN W. McCORMACK:

"The entire life of Superintendent Crowley was devoted to the services of his fellow men. He typified the highest type of police official Fearless in the performance of his duty, he always administered it with ability and humanity. His acts of kindness and mercy to those less fortunate than himself will always be remembered Mrs. McCormack and I, are deeply grieved and extend our heartfelt sympathy to his family"

JUDGE MICHAEL J MURRAY:

"The death of Superintendent Michael H Crowley is a distinct shock to me. I had the honor of knowing him for a period of 30 years. When news came to me that he had died, it not only caused general sorrow in my own home, but throughout the city.

"I had known the superintendent intimately, and I have known of scores of wonderful deeds that he has done for friends who were less fortunate than he was. He was a friend to everybody, and he sure will be missed in this great city of ours."

DIST. ATTY WILLIAM J. FOLEY:

"Boston has lost one in whom all of its people had confidence. I knew him well, and had been speaking with him only a week ago at Mr. Lomasney's funeral. It comes as a shock to me as I know it must to all his friends. We have lost a friend and Boston has lost a conscientious and able public servant

DEP.-SUPT. JAMES McDEVITT:

"There is little I feel I can say. I am so deeply shocked. The sudden end of the superintendent has stunned me. I never found a man any better to work for, any squarer or more honorable than he"

POISON HUNTED AS WIDOW IS QUESTIONED

By ARTHUR J. QUINN

investigator for Atty. Gen. Clyde R. Chapman, undertook the search in the presence of the widow and her parents. Mrs. Crosby, he said, would be subjected to lengthy questioning whether or not the poison, arsenate of lead, were found.

Cooper said he had also been ordered to seize a medicine, sodium amatol, which the yacht skipper had been taking in capsule form on prescription of a mainland physician.

SHE HINTS SUICIDE

Mrs. Crosby told the American reporter yesterday that she bought a one-pound tin of arsenate of lead during the summer of last year and that this poison was somewhere about the house at present. It was on the strength of her story to the American that Cooper's search was instituted.

A suggestion that Capt. Crosby may have ended his own life because of his suffering from a mysterious ailment was advanced by Mrs. Crosby to Cooper before the search started.

Arsenates are being sought in the organs of the victim's body, which was recently exhumed following gossip concerning his death, which occurred last January.

Another surprise assertion by Mrs. Crosby was made to the reporter today, when she stated that she was being made the victim of a malicious frameup and that she would not be surprised if she was taken into custody when the investigation had been brought to a definite end.

WILL ANGLE BARED

It was apparent that the 39-year-old widow will not be surprised if some sort of poison is found in the organs of her husband's body.

At least six times during an interview today she stated "If they find poison in his body I didn't put it there."

Another angle of the investigation that attracted considerable attention on the part of investigators was a report that the dead captain's will naming his wife as beneficiary of his entire estate valued at $4700 was written, by him, at her suggestion, while he was a patient in the Bar Harbor Hospital.

Mrs. Crosby denied emphatically that her husband's will was drawn in the hospital shortly before he died. She stated that the will was written two years ago, adding "that is one thing I can prove. That's more of the gossip that's been sent out about me."

Mrs. Crosby described in detail the last hours of her husband's life, how she insisted that he eat a piece of cream pie so that he would get his strength back and how she stood and watched him die, powerless to get aid, because a northeaster raged.

"I want the public to withhold their judgment," declared Mrs. Crosby, "until this investigation is ended. I had nothing to do with my husband's death. If they find poison in his body, I didn't give it to him.

BALKS AT AUTOPSY

"You know, when the authorities came here and asked me if I would let them exhume the body, I said 'no'. They said, in very ugly tones, 'well, whether you like it or not we can do it, and we are going to do it,' and I said, 'well, I suppose there is nothing I can do about it.'

"I asked them why they wanted to take his body. They said something about poison, and I said to them, well, if you find any poison in his body I didn't put it there, and I didn't.

"I am innocent of any wrongdoing in connection with my husband's death. This talk about me not having a doctor and not having an undertaker the day he died I can explain.

"I had been sitting up with Clarence all night. There was a terrible storm out. The wind was howling and the rain and sleet was beating against every window in the house.

"At 7 o'clock that night I said to him, 'are you going to have something to eat.' He said, 'I don't want anything, I can't eat. Give me a cigaret.' I said, 'you will have to eat if you want to get better, you can't get your strength back without eating.'

"He said to me then what are you going to eat and I told him that I had some cream pie in the house and that he could have a little of that. I said to him it wouldn't hurt you and you ought to eat something.

"He said then 'well, let me have the cigarette first' and then he said 'Oh my chest hurts me. I don't want anything to eat now.'

"My husband took the cigarette and I lighted it for him but he only smoked it a second and then he said 'give me a little of the cream pie.' I had to feed it to him and he only ate about a spoonful of it.

"As the night wore along I was at his bedside rubbing his chest with liniment. It seemed that was the only thing that gave him relief. He didn't have any temperature but I supposed he was suffering from dry pleurisy.

"I wanted to get out and get someone to call a doctor but he kept saying 'please don't leave, Vida, I'm too sick. Stay here with me.' I went and got a light and I put it in the front window hoping that someone would see it and come to my aid. I set it there to serve as a distress signal. I needed help and I couldn't get it.

"Shortly before 7 o'clock he started to choke and gasp for breath and I felt then that he was going to die before I could get help.

"I kept holding his hand and rubbing his chest and pretty soon after 7 o'clock he became unconscious and he was breathing heavily. I called to him several times to speak to me and once I think he heard me and tried to open his eyes.

UNABLE TO GET DOCTOR

"Just before half past seven he stopped breathing and he was still. I felt he was dead then but I shook him a number of times. I had hoped he had gone to sleep but when he didn't respond and he was laying so still I realized he was dead.

"The first one to come in was Leslie Rice and Charles Stanley. I told them my husband was dead and I wanted to have them get Dr. Tapley to come over.

"They said the doctor couldn't help and that it was too stormy for the doctor to get across. I said I wanted him to get here just the same and Leslie Rice said he would call him.

"I waited from 7:30 o'clock until noon time when I called him. He said that he started over to the island but that he was told that Clarence was dead and that he didn't think it was necessary to go across then. He told me that it would be all right to lay him out and bury him."

Late in the afternoon Charles Stanley and Leslie Rice came back and laid him out in the bed. We had to wait until Sunday afternoon for the casket, and when that came they placed him in it.

"I wanted a Masonic service, because Clarence had always been a member, but because the members didn't come across from Southwest Harbor, the folks here on the island didn't carry out the service.

READY TO SHOW POISON

"The funeral was held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, and he was buried beside my first husband. You know, I am the victim of malicious gossip. No one knows what I have gone through these months. I don't know how I have stood it.

"It is true that I purchased some arsenate of lead. What of it? That doesn't prove anything.

"He was with me when I bought the arsenate of lead and he carried it home. I can't tell you the name of the man I purchased it from but I could identify him if I saw him again. I think I got it in Alexander's drug store in Ellsworth.

"If the investigators want that lead I can show them where it is. About four months after my husband died I found it in a closet and I took it out of the package and I put it into a can and it is still over to the house.

"When they check up on that, if they do, they will be surprised to learn that my husband made out his will two years ago and I have three witnesses to prove it.

"I know that they are going to frame me. I know that they will probably take me off to jail, but I am innocent. If they find any poison in my husband's body I didn't put it there.

"Why my husband could have committed suicide. You don't know the agony he suffered. Anyone suffering as he did might get hold of something to kill himself and end his agony.

"If the world will only withhold its judgment of me until this matter is settled, I am sure I will be vindicated. I never did anything that would cause my husband any illness or cause his death like the people around here want to make the world believe.

"We had our quarrels like anyone else during our married life but we were happy together and I know that if Clarence could come back here he would clear me of all these slanderous charges that have been made.

"I defy anyone to come forward and prove that he ever said that he was being poisoned or that he expected to die soon. I know that if they find poison in his body I didn't give it to him."

Several persons stated that they had heard the dead sea captain say, "I'll never go back to the hospital. I would rather die than go through what I have suffered during the last three months."

Poison Death Probe Launched -:- By Rich Yachtswoman

DRAMATIC EXPOSE LOOMS IN TRAGEDY

What was the cause of death? That's what high Maine authorities and police are striving to answer. Here is Capt. Clarence Crosby's picture—the victim of the tragedy. He was the skipper for wealthy summer vacationists. He was buried during a howling nor'easter that seemed to blot out any suspicions there may have existed as to his death on lonely Cranberry Island. But rich summer residents in Southwest Harbor became suspicious. Now they're hunting poison his wife bought, as she charges "frameup."

MRS. EADS WILLIAM H. EADS

THEY LAUNCHED MYSTERY DEATH PROBE

It was Mrs. William H. Eads of Downingtown, Pa., shown with husband, who insisted that the death of Capt. Crosby be probed. The Eads had a high regard for the skipper and the suddenness of his death after they had received a cheerful letter from him while they were traveling in Europe roused her suspicions.

Story on Page One

Employers Had Probe Started

Southwest Harbor, Me., Aug. 22—It was revealed here that the probe into the mysterious death of Capt. Crosby was brought about by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Eades, of Downington, Pa., when rumors that the death of their yacht captain was suspicious.

'beacon hill'

By Betty Alden

RAYMOND MOORE GAVE US A DELIGHTFUL dramatic treat in the second from the last offering at the South Shore Playhouse last evening . . . The play, Survival, with Bert Lytell in the leading role was good old drama at its best . . .

The selection of plays for these series at Cohasset has been very interesting and diversified . . . a little of comedy, tragedy, music and withall not the old hackneyed stuff; several of the plays handled the time old situations with quite a modern touch . . .

ADA DEWSON

At this time, when Admiral Byrd is about ready to start off on his Antarctic expedition, next month, we believe, this play Survival is most timely . . . the rigors and hardships of the explorers is most realistically portrayed in the first scene in a dugout amid the snow and ice of the polar regions . . .

Six men dying of starvation cling to life by a mere handful of food each day, just enough to keep body and soul together . . . and one of them is a thief. What happens to him and his revenge from the grave furnish the story . . .

Bert Lytell was excellent as the head of the exploring expedition . . . back in the days of silent movies we remember Mr. Lytell, a matinee idol if there ever was one . . . how the girls thrilled when he made love to Viola Dana or Clare Windsor . . .

We believe they would still thrill to their idol as he has matured . . . he is still very youthful in appearance and the signs of the years only serve to make him more attractive . . . we think

There was a great chance to overact in this play, by Mr. Lytell and by Gloria Holden, the heroine and sole woman in the cast, but they held themselves in most expertly and made a very convincing situation, with a happy and logical solution. It was very enjoyable to have a touch of the power of human emotions on the stage . . . being blessed with a few ourselves, we like to emote now and then, even if it is only from the spectators seat.

Mrs. French Wears Gown of Blue Lace

THE LARGE AUDIENCE WHO ATTENDED . . . . large, that is for a rainy night and the fact that a forecast of rain can at any time send New Englanders ino their cyclone cellars, not to emerge until, like the groundhog, they can again see their shadows . . . . was most enthusiastic in their appreciation and applause . . . .

The two beautiful Dewson sisters, Delinda and Ada, good troopers always, were in their seats early . . . . one in turquoise blue chiffon and 'tother in green velvet . . . .

On hand when any theatrical first night is happening, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Bradley French motored down from Boston . . . . Mrs. French wore a bright light blue lace over which was thrown a rose velvet wrap, very handsome and becoming . . . .

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Keene, veteran first-nighters, were seen . . . . Mrs. Keene in flowered chiffon trimmed with blue fox . . . .

Beautiful and blonde Ann Whipple attended with her pretty brunette friend Charlotte Curtis . . . . we deplore the fact that there are not more young people at theatre openings. Does it mean that this generation cannot appreciate the art of the stage . . . .?

Mrs Hugh Bancroft Wears Black Satin

MR. AND MRS. HUGH BANCROFT brought their dinner guests as usual . . . . Mrs. Bancroft very sweet in black satin with turquoise blue scarf . . .

Lovely Mrs Frank Sawyer was in black and white, attended by her good-looking husband, Mr. Frank Sawyer . . . . they had Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Aronson in their party.

Mrs. R. Waters

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Waters with their son, "Dick," enjoyed the show, and Mr. and Mrs. Delano Wight were glimpsed in the throng . . . .

In a rose velvet wrap, Mrs. Royden Loring attended with Mr. Loring . . . we remember the last time we spotted the Lorings was at the Casa Madrid of the Yarmouth Beach Club . . .

Mrs. Horace Drinkwater was with her two daughters, Mrs. William Rice and Mrs. Edward Pinkerton . . . .

The James Currys of Scituate came over for the Survival and we noted Mrs. Robert Prouty supporting this swell project as usual . . . .

In black lace, Mrs. Charles Gammons ventured in the rain, and Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Osborn, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Benson and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Howes were interested spectators . . . . No one was sorry they braved the stormy weather to see this good play.

Mrs. Gorham Brooks Entertains

MRS. GORHAM BROOKS has been entertaining Mrs. Robert Winsor over the week-end at her estate in Dublin, N. H. On Friday evening she gave a birthday party for Mrs. Mildred Stribling of that colony and among her guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Warren, Mrs. Charles Milliken of St. Louis, Mrs. Warren's sister, Mr. and Mrs. Winslow Pierce, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hoar . . . Mrs. Milliken has been president of the St. Louis Junior League for the past two years.

Next Wednesday evening, tomorrow, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thaw are giving a dinner dance for Mrs. Stribling to celebrate her birthday . . . the Wyman Whittemores will give a large dinner preceding the affair .

On Friday evening Edward Thaw, Jr., will be host for a dance at The Country Club in Dublin, with the popular Jack Marchard at the baton . .

On Sunday, Sept. 3, Mrs. Gorham Brooks and Mrs. Mildred Stribling will be among those promoting a community dance for members of the summer colony and their friends . . . Meyer Davis and his New York orchestra, who have been playing at the Dublin Country Club all season, will provide the entertainment.

Latest Notes on Styles Worn by the Fashionables

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

THE LATE SUMMER INDICATIONS FURNISH THE INFORMATION that this is to be an autumn of richness in costume, rather one of sumptuous simplicity, velvets, brocades, laces and furs used with graciousness and deftness.

Mrs Frederic Cullen of Brookline and Scituate has already stressed the smartness of early fall furs with a grey fox collar, high about the ears and adding a sumptuous touch to her horizon blue tweed coat.

Another young society matron who has achieved an early fall frock that is the envy of all eyes is Mrs. Philip Wrenn, Jr., with a gown of the new cire satin, high neck and cape effect, and that nifty new visored hat of the same fascinating material. Her silver fox fur completes the outfit

Miss Priscilla Phelan is sporting a fur trimmed affair that suggests the nippy mornings of early fall. It is soft grey trimmed lavishly with high grey fox collar and sumptuous cuffs.

Mrs. Robert Ogden is looking especially trig this season in a good looking navy outfit that is very becoming to her

Mrs. Ernest B Dane glimpsed in town the other day looked charming in a blue and white print and attractive navy blue matching hat

Miss Anne Warren of Essex is always the center of an admiring group whenever she sallies forth all gaily frocked and tailored. In her early fall rig of snappy and colorful Scotch plaid, with a black hat coyly drooped over one eye and her beautiful golden brown hair peeping from beneath the brim—she is the last word in style and good looks. Her neatly fitted black coat adds a tailored and smart touch.

The sumptuousness of the evening clothes is outstanding this season. Miss Barbara Percival showed a lovely pink frock trimmed with gorgeous black lace and her evening wrap was especially smart, black velvet heavily trimmed with white fox, not only furred cuffs and collar, but the bottom trimmed as well

Mrs. Joseph W. Woods, tall and blonde, can make any costume look appealing. Her charming afternoon frock of cire satin offset by a gorgeous silver fox fur, is a striking ensemble.

Miss Rachel Warner is wearing a neat fitting brown and white ensemble, the brown to compliment her splendid summer tan and the white to add the chic touch

Seven Wonders

—By Joseph Auslander—

Who decided what artistic and architectural marvels would become, officially, so to speak, the seven wonders of the ancient world? The epigrammatist, Antipater of Sidon, in the second century before Christ, gave a list which, supplemented by the compilation of an unknown Byzantine, has been the accepted record. But Antipater took his list from older books to which he refers, books which are now lost, and it is quite probable that these older lists did not agree. It was a consensus of opinion that ranged the Seven Wonders as follows. The Pyramids of Egypt, the Hanging Gardens of Babylon, the statue of Zeus at Olympia, the Temple of Artemis at Ephesus, the Mausoleum at Halicarnassus, the Colossus of Rhodes and the lighthouse at Alexandria, or, as one historian says, the walls of Babylon.

But surely there were seventy times seven wonders to choose from. Such an enumeration makes its own confines, and must, perforce, be arbitrary. The Parthenon the temple at Jerusalem, the Sphinx, the temple of Karnak, the heroic statue of Rameses II and the gates of Mycenae might as well have been members of that galaxy

In the modern world, with our wide expansion over the earth's surface, and with more than two thousand years of civilization behind us, it would be even more difficult to choose seven wonders which would eclipse all others by their uniqueness, by the adaption of their forms to the uses for which they are intended, by their beauty of line and mold, and their permanence against the destructiveness of storms and centuries and men. There is the Taj Mahal, the temple of Ankor Vat, the Empire State Building, the Eiffel Tower, the gardens at Versailles, the Cathedral of Notre Dame, a list which might be continued indefinitely.

Within America there are, again, 70 times seven architectural wonders. Now, any listing becomes only personal opinion, for the growth of the country is too fresh in our minds for us to make

And so we begin making lists before the work is done. Today it would be almost wholly a matter of individual taste to decide what seven architectural accomplishments of the United States are most unique and artistic and important to the greatest number of people. Such a list might be something like this: The Panama Canal, Radio City, the Empire State Building, Boulder Dam, the colossal statues which Gutzon Borglum is carving out of the living Dakota rock, the botanical gardens at Lincoln Park in Chicago, the bridge that will be built across the Golden Gate. Those works, as well as any others, may be the ones which a hundred years from now will be called the Seven Wonders of America.

HANDS THAT TIE KNOTS IN MODERN MAN'S HEART HAVE MORE THAN IDLE BEAUTY

Slim Fingers Are Enhanced by Almond-Shaped Nails and a Faultless Manicure

By Therese Deschamps

YOUR HANDS tell secrets about you. Perhaps you would rather wear gloves all the time than have us parade a few facts against your pet manicure. But when it comes to the point that a young woman loses her job because she wears her nails like a jig-saw, and her boss hasn't the courage to tell her to cut, clip and de-Chinese the tips of her fingers, it seems to me that somebody had to do something about it.

"And she could spell," this particular boss lamented. But when it came to a choice of the spelling vs. the nails, the spelling didn't rate.

We don't know whom to blame for this claw effect found on some otherwise nice girls. Perhaps, in an effort to have "the tapering finger," the nail file is diligently applied to point the nails, and the result is far from fetching, attractive or good taste (awful phrase).

Almond Shape

Nails should be almond shaped and worn fairly short. They should always be immaculate, polished and the cuticle well trained so the moon at the head of the nail is well defined.

And since we are feeling a little disagreeable about hands today, we might jump up and scream at the men who have their nails polished. Never, Never, NEVER—unless going to a masquerade party where no one will see or know you.

Equally disagreeable is the man who does not give his hands the attention they require to put them in the "hands of a gentleman" class. On "the hands of a gentleman" one finds nails neatly filed, thoroughly brushed and a firm and healthy cuticle which is not at all in evidence.

A Last Word

The lecture is almost over, but we have one last word (wouldn't she though) about children and their usually grimy little paws. Boys reach an age where they feel they are in the sissy class unless they are intelligently approached on the subject of the tidy fist, even unto the nail. A good nail brush, an equally good orangewood stick, and a little encouragement to use the rough surface of a bath towel to keep the cuticle under control (and avoid hang-nails) does not take much effort and is worth every ounce of breath spent in a good cause.

Little girls do not usually give conscientious mothers the same number of headaches over nails that little boys do. The best plan with the gentler sex is to endow the young ladies with a complete and interesting manicure set and let nature take its course. You may see the young woman posing with her hands until you want to scream, but that will wear off, and the final chapter should read "success."

If you want suggestions as to the kind of manicure sets to give young or to indulge in yourself, we will send you the information, if you drop us a line, and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Therese Deschamps, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square. This column is continued in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Beauty Queries and Answers

For Thin Face

Question: Please give me your advice. My face is very thin and everybody seems to talk about it. I hate a thin face very much. My body is fine. I have a pink spot on my nose.—Miss S. T. K., Cambridge.

Answer: Massage your face, or have it massaged, with lanolin or some rich nourishing cream. It is possible to fill a face out if one keeps at it. Also, place your rouge out toward your ear—from about the cheekbone out. Also comb your hair so that it fluffs a bit about your cheeks and ears and have the hairline give as horizontal an effect as you can manage. These things should help.

The Marry-Go-Round; Tailor 'Maids'

By HELEN ROWLAND

LIFE IS becoming as dizzy and bewildering as a Virginia reel.

* * *

You never know, when you open your morning newspaper, what new shock or surprise you will find in the first few pages. Or on which side of a question either of the sexes has taken a brand new stand over night.

Helen Rowland

* * *

One morning we learn to our amazement that the men are going back to the Gay Nineties for their fall styles. And that Marlene Dietrich, the leader of the trousers-for-women crusade, has doffed her pants and is going in headlong for frills and petticoats and feathered hats.

Two bolts right out of the blue—in one newspaper!

* * *

It will be rather quaint and intriguing to see our modern he-men all dolled up in Ascot ties, Piccadilly collars, gay-colored waistcoats, gold watchchains, spats and boutonnieres. And will they wear red underflannels and carry canes and go in for charming manners to match?

* * *

Clothes DO affect one's manners somehow. No girl can be the same wild, daring Amazon or giddy jazz baby in a long, trailing, ruffled skirt than she was in a pair of slacks or a flapper frock. There is something about those skirts which impels her to modesty and femininity and even inspires her to coquetry.

* * *

And we doubt that a man wearing spats and a tailcoat and pearl-gray gloves and a boutonniere could have the heart to make himself look silly by putting on a paper cap and playing clown with a rattler and a penny whistle. Or by mauling a lady and kissing her on the ear on the way home in a taxicab.

* * *

So far as I am concerned, Marlene can doff her pants without bringing a tear to my eyes! I rejoice that the trouser fad never really "took." Next to a tight shoe or a steel corset, the most uncomfortable garment ever invented by man is PANTS!

* * *

Still, I trust that the trouser mania has done its bit by bringing back the smart tailored styles, which struck the town last spring. Somehow, a woman never looks quite so well groomed and perfectly gotten up in anything else as she does in a smart well-tailored suit. Or quite so modish and thoroughbred.

Food Must Be Kept Fresh

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

A RECENT NEWSPAPER article tells of seventy-five workmen who were treated for severe ptomaine poisoning. They had eaten box lunches served to them while at work. Perhaps the food had been prepared under hygienic conditions, but it is probable proper precautions were not taken to prevent its spoilage.

Dr. Copeland

Food poisoning, or "ptomaine poisoning," as it is more commonly called, is traceable to food that is allowed to spoil. Food that is improperly prepared or carelessly preserved easily spoils and speedily deteriorates. When this occurs, toxins or poisons are formed by the action of germs or parasites. These organisms multiply rapidly and may be so numerous as seriously to poison the system.

In former times ptomaine poisoning was an exceedingly common disorder. In fact, most digestive disturbances were believed to be due to this ailment. As a result of the improvements in refrigeration, preservation of foods and better means of transportation, cases of ptomaine poisoning are far less common. But in spite of these splendid methods of shipping and other modern facilities intended to keep foods fresh, there is always the danger of spoilage because of individual carelessness.

Certain foods are more liable to spoil than others. For example frozen foods and cold storage foods, improperly cared for meat, shell fish, and other fish carelessly handled, spoil quickly after removal from refrigeration. Foods that contain gelatine, as well as cream soups and sauces, cream filled desserts, unless properly looked after, quickly spoil and are capable of producing symptoms of ptomaine poisoning.

The sufferer from ptomaine poisoning complains of nausea and headache. In a more severe case, vomiting, abdominal pain, and complete prostration are alarming symptoms met in this condition. In an extreme case the progress of the disease is so rapid that death may occur within twenty-four hours.

Not by any means do nausea and headache invariably indicate food poisoning. These may be the result of some other digestive disturbance, or they may be symptoms of inflammation in the gall bladder, stomach or intestine.

LOVELY AND FULL OF CHARACTER

Every woman may have beautiful hands. It means meticulous care—both protective and corrective. It means thoughtful grace in the manner in which one uses them. And more important still, it means almond-shaped nails and a faultless manicure. Useless hands are no longer in vogue even with the poets. They must have more than mere beauty, they must have character and ability as well.

A Marriage Planned by Parents

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LINA X is troubled. But why? She fears that she is in danger of missing the greatest thing in life.

Lina is 18, and distractingly pretty. In a few months she writes me she is to be married to Albert Y. They are fond of each other; Albert is a youth of fine character; he has a good business start, and altogether the heavens seem to smile. So far, so good.

But Lina's young friends have been disturbing her peace of mind. They twit her with the fact that she and Albert have always known each other, that this marriage was planned by the careful parents shortly after Lina was born.

This is a serious matter. Let's talk about it a little.

So far, we Americans have seemed to believe in the right of the young to choose their mates, no matter how foolishly. "Hands off!" has been recommended as the sole duty of parents—except, of course, to supply money, and to come to the rescue in case of shipwreck.

But when we see boys and girls marrying with the utmost carelessness, divorcing each other after an uneasy year or so and then remarrying in just as haphazard a fashion as before, isn't it time to wonder whether we grownups haven't after all been somewhat mistaken in our policy? Isn't there, after all, something to be said for the European custom of "arranged" marriages?

If Lina had fallen in love with a young man other than Albert, that would be an actual problem. But, as matters stand, I think she is fortunate in having her future sensibly planned by a wise mother and father.

The love that she and her husband will have for each other will no doubt, be a great deal more real and satisfactory than that of the hit-or-miss couples of their acquaintance. So I hope that she won't listen further to her trouble-making friends, but await her wedding day with a serene heart.

Diet Good for Dispositions

By KEEP FIT EDITOR

"I WANT to thank you for an idea that came to me when I read an account of Miss Meserve's plan to put a relative of Jean's on the Keeping Fit Diet, without his being aware of it," so starts a letter to the editor from Mrs. K. C. B., Melrose.

"We have an aunt of my husband's staying with us. And while she is a dear sort of person, she had the bad habit of upsetting our household in the morning by being a bit snappish and quarrelsome. She is the contrary exception to the rule about good natured fat people. And I attributed it to her pet habit.

"Before retiring, around eleven at night, she had what she called a 'snack.' Very often it consisted of two huge Bismarks, those doughnut batter concoctions filled with whipped cream and jam, and tea. But her favorite was two pieces of apple pie with a huge slab of cheese. Who wouldn't get up feeling the way she does?

"Pretending it was for the sake of my own health, I told her that we must remove most of the sweets from our menu, explaining that it would help me if she did not have the rich, sticky stuff about.

"My plan was to keep her so satisfied that she would not yearn for sweets. I regaled her between meals with bouillon and crackers. I even made dainty little canapes, and such, dressing up her tray and giving it to her at night before she retired. You would never believe the change could be so great. She is losing gradually, is a happier sort in the morning, and still can't account for it. If this letter is printed, I shall present a copy to her. She's a good sport and we'll all have a grand laugh. Thank you so much for the Keeping Fit Diet."

Home Warming Present for the Bride

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

This came up just a few days ago: One person says that after one returns from a short visit, that a "bread and butter" letter should be sent . . . which means a letter or card of thanks. The other person says that she never heard of the expression and that no doubt it was just a slang expression.

Please explain to us.

READERS.

This delightful term "bread and butter letter" . . . has become so definitely a part of our speech that now one seldom ever hears any other name for the note of thanks that we must write to our hostess after we have been on a visit, no matter how short, to her home. This letter mustn't be in the form of a "card of thanks" . . . it must be a real letter, with an articulate expression of thanks. Thanks for the hospitality in general, and thanks for special kindnesses and thoughtfulnesses and plans of the family for our happiness and comfort.

Addressing the Doctor

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Which is the best taste to say: "Good morning, Mr. Doctor," or "Good morning, Doctor Johns?"

And, as an answer to a question, it is better to say, "Yes, Mr. Doctor" or "Yes, Doctor Johns?"

In other words, is it ever all right to say, "Mr. Doctor?"

STRANGER.

It is never correct to say "Mr. Doctor." The best form to use when addressing a doctor is to use the title with the last name, Doctor Johns. As a matter of fact this is the only good form. It is poor taste to address the doctor as "Doctor"; for instance, "Good morning, Doctor." It's like saying "Good morning, Mr." So use the title and the last name and you'll always be right, always polite and gracious in this form of address.

[illegible] basket [illegible] with [illegible] some [illegible] accent of bright [illegible] comprise the rug. Do [illegible] a dark brown. [illegible] away from the light [illegible] an and a barrel chair should be green. A wing chair might be in a rose, brown and ivory figure. Place a brown cushion on this chair. Your most becoming pastel shade cushions should go on the green chairs.

Deep greens, blues and browns should be in your draperies of cretonne with the greens predominating.

A very warm and deep shade of rosy apricot is more popular for lamp shades than plain old rose. You will like them, if they are very plain, pleated, and the bases are brown and gold.

Do your dining room in blues, browns, and gold.

For your kitchen, I suggest Italian pink walls, a cream ceiling, peacock blue woodwork, black and white linoleum, curtains of cotton print with white background, and peacock-blue and Italian pink flowers. Paint your chairs peacock-blue. In such a kitchen, you will have a bright background on the dullest morning.

Blue, gold and pink, would be excellent for your bedroom. Blue and gold wall paper; pinkish beige carpet; peach-pink unlined batiste curtains trimmed with pink cotton ball-fringe; white and gold accessories on dressing table; deep blue upholstery on chairs; loads of lacy pink cushions.

MILLIONS WASTED YEARLY BY MIDDLESEX COUNTY 'RING'

Jail Riots Result From Lack of Decent Food for Which Taxpayers Pay But in Vain

By A STAFF REPORTER

(Copyright, 1933, by the Boston Evening American.)

Ten million dollars a year.

That ought to buy something.

Ten million a year—one hundred million dollars in ten years—is what is spent for public purposes in Middlesex County.

IT OUGHT TO BUY A LOT!

For example, it ought to buy security for the citizens against [illegible]

But it doesn't, as I [illegible]

Why?

Because millions have been wasted. Because money provided by the taxpayers is being wasted every day, every month and every year.

Rioting is breaking out. Rioting has already broken [illegible] money furnished by the people [illegible] proper food and for sufficient [illegible]

Who is to blame?

[illegible]

This [illegible] appeal for sympathy for the prisoners. But it is an appeal to the taxpayers, and to tell the people what the conditions are as I found them.

Bad Food Plants Seeds of Revolt

I have been to jail to find out. I have found out from other sources. I have talked with long-termers and short-termers and officials and others. I have uncovered riots and incipient general [illegible]

And I have found that the "Ring" is sitting on a volcano which will erupt and spatter the whole county and State with shame, or worse, unless the 'Ring' is unseated before the blowoff comes.

The citizens, the taxpayers, have a right to have their money spent efficiently to obtain the proper [illegible] discipline, food, equipment and sensible treatment.

I don't claim the prisoners should be mollycoddled. I don't claim they should be fed angel cake and sherbert. But I do say to the "Ring" that you cannot give them bad food and scanty food without engendering bitterness and planting the seeds of revolt.

For more than 20 years a small group whose membership has changed through the years but whose acts have been remarkably consistent has controlled the institution of the county.

Even Prune Juice Stolen to Make Wine

I leave for another time the many institutions which are the proud boast of officials but which will not withstand the spotlight's glare—the institutions which soak up most of that ten million dollars a year. I leave them and call your attention to East Cambridge Jail and House of Correction and the other House of Correction at Billerica.

Here are two institutions on which the people spend $[illegible],000 annually. Here are two plants in which the people have invested more than $2,000,000.

And here are two correctional lockups where, as I have found, poor food has brought the inmates to the verge of revolt. Where privileges are bought and sold. Where liquor and dope find access. Where archaic rules help the grafting of trusties and "runners." Where even the prune juice is stolen from the new inmates to make wine for sale to the older and wiser men.

More than 20 years and still going strong—the county "Ring." [illegible] about time they were unseated?

"Ring" Has Firm Grip On Fees of Officials

The "Ring" has a firm grip even on the fees of the officials who have fee privileges in every county. They take no orders, not even from the people. They are supreme.

For some years the elderly sheriff, as everybody knows, has not handled the reins. Bad conditions have multiplied.

Two years ago a humanitarian organization decided to investigate. A clever ruse halted the probe. A state officer with a fine reputation was induced to run for sheriff. The organization, satisfied that he would curtail the powers of the "Ring," gave up its fight. But the well-equipped officer was made to see he did not have a chance. He stepped out. And the "Ring" went merrily on.

The "Ring" went merrily on and conditions grew worse.

I am here to tell you what those conditions are.

In tomorrow's Boston Evening American, exclusively, will be revealed what goes on in the Middlesex County jails.

$1,000,000 in Rare Stamps on Display

Chicago, Aug. 22 (AP)—A collection of rare stamps valued at nearly $1,000,000 is on display here at the convention of the American Philatelic Society.

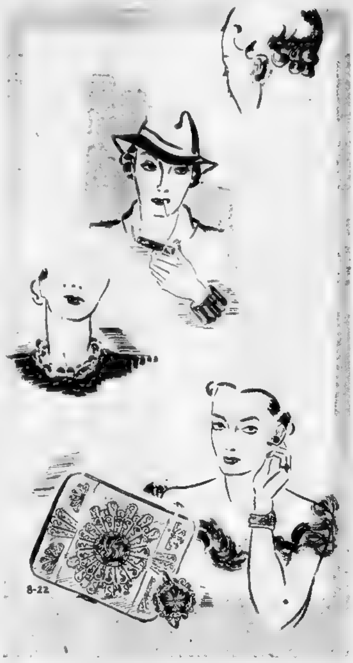
Fashions Influence Jewelers



Vogue for sparkling stones direct outcome of revival of elegance in styles, as told in the accompanying descriptive article.

The progress of dress fashions definitely influences the jeweler. A relation must of course exist between the two. The jeweler borrows inspiration wholesale from the dress, fabric and color trends. The dress designer often supplies the need for a new clip, a new use of an old stone, an innovation in design.

For instance, the vogue for sparkling stones in elaborate designs is the direct outcome of the revival of elegance in fashions. Today, for daytime as well as for evening, we wear jewels that glitter brilliantly, nodding approval of the new elaborate mode. A duet-clip, of exquisitely mounted rhinestones, is a beautiful but practical fillip, since it can be changed with a snap of the fingers from a brooch to two clips. The possibilities for transforming a neckline are unlimited.

Present-day coiffures are sleek and the hair tightly curled at the ends. Often the curls are piled high in an upward movement—a fashion which encourages the use of hair ornaments, if one is so inclined, and also explains the continued popularity of ear decorations. Of newer interest are the rhinestones or diamante ear-line earrings, shaped to conform to the outline of a dainty lady's ear-lobes. Marcasite, as far as we can make out, will be stronger than ever this year. You may prefer these new earrings of this brilliant metal.

The new silhouette is straight and simple. It requires accents to bring out the feeling of luxury it's meant to create. That gives jewelry a perfect opportunity. Semi-precious stones like jade, lapis, amethyst, quartz, rose quartz and carnelian will be seen again. They go so well with the new greys, blue and brown tones we are wearing. One particularly lovely set, of exquisite Chinese rose gold filligree illustrates another point. Detailed mountings have not been seen often these last few years. Fine workmanship and delicate designings are returning, however, for costume jewelry.

The group in the lower right in the accompanying sketch, of lapis mounted on dull hand polished gold, gives you some idea of their beautiful delicacy. The newer high necklines are often softened by jewelled accents, and to do this, the design also includes a necklace somewhat longer than usual, brooch and clips to match.

Fabrics always influence the jeweler. Ribbed materials are high in fashion at the moment, so it is satisfying to find a necklace of fine corday twisted wire to wear with faille and bengaline dresses. (Lower left-hand sketch). Usually this wire is twisted with gleaming metal, reflecting the influence of metal fabrics for fall.

Flexible wood, used for accessories, continues its popularity. For sports, the bamboo and crystal combinations are unusual, even a bit bizarre. They look heavy and cumbersome, but in the hand they amaze one by their lightness. With tweeds and woolens, the grained accessories go well.

Write to Margaret Maison, Boston Evening American, for information on where to purchase this jewelry in Boston.

Pipe Tobacco should be Rough Cut—"whittled." And it ought to be packed in a common-sense way

BACK in the old days, when men wore high hats and frock coats, they had plenty of time to think things out—and they had sense too.

That's when they used to sit down on a log and take the time to whittle their tobacco from a plug, to be sure of having a cool smoke.

So knowing how pipe smokers used to whittle their tobacco we decided to make Granger the same way.

We cut Granger into big shaggy flakes all ready for the pipe. Rough Cut, we called it—cut rough to smoke cool is the best way to describe it. It lasts longer and never gums the pipe.

So much for that. We knew that pipe tobacco to smoke right has to be packed right.

So we put Granger in a common-sense soft foil pouch—easy to carry and keeps the tobacco just exactly right—just like it was made.

Granger . . . good tobacco . . . Wellman Method . . . cut right . . . packed right. There is this much about it:

We have yet to know of a man who started to smoke Granger who didn't keep on. Folks seem to like it.

1800 PHONE OPERATORS SEEK A. F. OF L. CHARTER

This Is Life

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

Somehow the news that Mary Pickford has written a play makes me shiver with apprehension. The subject of plays written by actors or actress is not an inspiring one in theatrical history. It used to be almost a foregone conclusion that a play written by an actor would be either bad or unsuccessful.

I say bad or unsuccessful, because the terms are not necessarily mutually exclusive. It is like one of those propositions lacking an undistributed middle which are so convenient for tripping up freshmen in Elementary Logic. Most unsuccessful plays are bad, yes. But not all. Nor are all bad plays unsuccessful. There was "Abie's Irish Rose," for instance. And "As You Like It," by one William Shakspere—or Shakespeare—or even Shaxpere.

* * *

Why actors' plays are bad I do not know. Gordon Craig the sage of Florence, Italy, would probably say it is because an actor is interested in nothing but a fat part; that he is perfectly willing to sacrifice everything else to his own role, and that if actors could be eliminated completely from the theater, the theater would be much better.

Failing to eliminate them completely, Gordon Craig imagined what he called an "uber-marionette," meaning a super-puppet, an actor who would be simply a mouthpiece or an instrument for the genius of the director, never allowing his personality to be exhibited in a way which might throw the director's ideal scheme out of focus.

Oscar Wilde had the same idea. Once he was asked "Do you consider the actor a creative artist?" He replied mournfully, "Yes—terribly creative!"

A London critic thinks actors refuse to recognize their limitations. "When they begin their careers they put beards on their chins and lines on their cheeks to pretend that they can already play parts far too mature for their 18 years, and they end by painting their faces and lacing their figures to pretend that they can still play parts far too young for their 60 years."

But it is true that what an actor thinks of first in writing a play is a fat part for himself. Characteristically, the fattest part I ever saw on the stage was that written for himself by a clergyman turned actor. There is the perfect combination for the spotlight! He was one Wright Lorimer and he wrote a piece called "The Shepherd King," all about David and Goliath. He worked up an entrance for himself that was a wow. When he ran on, to a blare of brass, the spotlight full on him, cuddling a pet lamb in his arms, there wasn't—to quote George Ade—a dry glove in the house. The illusion was perfect until he spoke. This handsome vision of the shepherd boy who was "ruddy and of a beautiful countenance" croaked like a raven with laryngitis.

The best play written by an actor I ever saw was a war-time melodrama by Leon Gordon called "The White Feather," which played all one summer at the Copley Theater here in Boston. There was a fat, actor-proof part for Mr Gordon himself, about a pansy pacifist whom the rest of the cast laughed at until he proved himself to be one of the more dauntless members of the British secret service. Gordon had sense enough to give the other actors good parts, too. Today, I believe, he is out in Hollywood patching together scenarios, a strange and humiliating occupation for a man who once wrote a real play straight through from overture to curtain call.

The saving grace about Mary Pickford's play is that she does not intend to act in it herself. It has songs in it—and she does not sing. She admits it! But America's Sweetheart always did have an extraordinarily level and modest and intelligent head on her shoulders. So maybe she has a hit in her brief-case, after all.

* * *

Joseph Jefferson wrote his first version of "Rip Van Winkle," but it wasn't much of a success until Dion Boucicault, who was the George M. Cohan of his day, had rewritten it. Come to think of it, though, Boucicault was actor as well as author and confected his romantic Irish comedies for himself. Come to think of it, also, George M. Cohan has written a reasonable number of quite competent and successful pieces both for himself and others. I am not sure that "The Tavern" and "So This Is London" and "Pigeons and People" are not classics in their own unique style.

Come to think of it, thirdly, there is one Noel Coward who wrote "Bittersweet" and "Cavalcade" and "Design for Living" and acted in some of them. He can also write and sing an excellent song, witness "Mad Dogs and Englishmen," the cleverest comic song of the year. Come to think of it—maybe if I wrote the last paragraphs of this column first I shouldn't have to withdraw so many of my preliminary allegations before I got through. They don't seem to jell.

But I do know this. Ask an actor—any actor—what he thinks of the prospects of a play written by a brother actor and you will see what I mean. I often wonder what Burbage thought of Will's "Hamlet."

SCORES IN PLEA FOR HOME LOAN ASSISTANCE

Rooming House Proprietors Head List of Applicants

With the opening in Springfield today of an office to handle the needs of the western end of the state, the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, Uncle Sam's agency for assisting the small home owner, is now in full stride in Massachusetts.

The Springfield office will serve 21 cities and towns, while the main state headquarters, at 82 Devonshire st., Boston, will handle the needs of the home-owners in the eastern section of the Commonwealth.

SCORES SEEK AID

Applications for assistance are pouring in at the Devonshire st. office in increasing numbers, as the harassed home owners become familiar with the government's relief plans.

Almost unbelievable tales of privation and suffering by small home owners are revealed in the applications.

One man who purchased a home for $7000 and then spent $4000 improving it, told the loan officials in Boston that when he lost his job and was unable to keep up interest payments and taxes, his wife worried herself into such a state that she had to be removed to an institution for the insane. The government's assistance, he declared would probably remove the source of worry from the wife and her reason would be restored.

BUSINESS FALLS OFF

The South End of Boston, it was revealed today, is furnishing the greatest number of applicants for aid. These applicants are largely owners of rooming houses, whose business has fallen off to such an extent that they cannot make interest or tax payments.

Under the terms of the Home Loan act, the government can finance distressed homes up to 40 per cent in cash or 80 per cent in government bonds.

Ice Laden Truck in Flames

Workers at the Howard st., Roxbury, plant of the Boston Ice Company, were still talking today about the truck, which suddenly burst into flames as it was being loaded with ice there.

Firemen quickly extinguished the blaze, which caused damage estimated at $200 to the truck. Short circuit in the wires was said to have caused the blaze.

Wound Is Fatal to Medford Fireman

Frank E. Bresnahan, tillerman of the big ladder truck of the Medford fire department, died suddenly yesterday at the Lawrence Memorial Hospital, a few hours after he had been removed to the hospital following infection of a minor wound.

He was a World War veteran, having served in the navy, and joined the fire department in 1920. He leaves a wife, three daughters, five brothers and four sisters.

JUDGES IN TASK OF SELECTING FAIR VICTORS

Hundreds of Photographs Flood Editors as Contest Closes

What an avalanche of photographs swept into the editor's office on the final day of the Typical New England Boy and Girl Competition. As usual in competitions there was a last-minute rush of entrants and some of those who barely made the closing line on time loom up as very likely contenders for the grand awards.

Today the judges, Patrick T Campbell, superintendent of schools in Boston; Mrs. Eva Whiting White, social welfare leader, and Cyrus Edward Dallin, internationally known sculptor met at the Parker House to begin their final task of selecting the winners.

VERDICT OUT SUNDAY

Their decision will not be known until next Sunday when the names and photographs of all of the winners in this unique competition will be published in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

For many days the process of eliminating some of the entrants has been in progress and now those who have "made the grade" and are going into the finals are being carefully considered by these judges, whose decision will, under the rule, be final.

Thousands of photographs were submitted during the competition just closed. And what a typical group of New England boys and girls they all are. As has been stated before, the fact that photographs were printed or were not does not enter into the final consideration by the judges. The actual photographs are being adjudged and from them will be selected the boy and girl who, with the parents of each, are to go to the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago, with all expenses paid and with $50 in cash for "spending money" on the trip.

12 OTHER PRIZES

Then there will be the selection of 12 other boys and girls who are each to receive $100 in cash from the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

HOUSING PLOT IS VIEWED

Frederick L. Akerman, field agent for the housing division of the National Emergency Public Works Administration, visited Boston today for a conference with backers of the $4,000,000 housing project in East Boston that was tentatively approved in Washington last week.

As a preliminary to the conference Akerman was taken to the Neptune st. section of East Boston to look over the site selected by Nepune Gardens, Inc., for the housing of 700 families.

James F. Clapp, Stanley W. Parker, John Nolen and Winthrop R. Scudder, directors of the corporation, accompanied Akerman and afterwards outlined plans at the office of William J. McDonald, chief backer of the plan.

Unidentified Man Killed by Truck

The body of an unidentified man, about 72 years old, who was struck and killed by an American Railway Express truck, operated by Daniel J McCusker, of E st., South Boston, at Congress st. and Dock sq. last night, was at the Northern Mortuary today awaiting identification.

The victim is described as five feet, nine inches tall, weighing 165 pounds, brown hair, slightly bald, blue eyes and medium complexion.

Brett Widow Forces Inquiry in Death

Sad as She Views Photo Treasures of Husband

Mrs. Arlene J. Brett of White st., North Cambridge, sadly turned the key in the lock of a photograph cabinet, in her home, today.

LASTING MEMORY

The cabinet contained photographs of the dead man and of his wife—some of them dating back to the time Brett was a star athlete at college.

The widow was sad as she displayed some of the less intimate photographs to a reporter.

"It is true that Don cut me off his will with only $100 and left the remainder of his estate, about $200,000 to his mother.

"But I have these photographs—and I have my memories of the happy hours we spent together.

They are worth more than all the money in the world.

BRETT AND THE BOYS
Donald C. Brett, Jr., with his own son, Donnie, on his shoulder. The other boy is Arthur Dadmun, son of Mrs. Brett, by a former marriage. It was play hour at the Brett home in Cambridge, when picture was taken.

BRETT AT COLLEGE

Claims Gun Found Not Property of Husband

The wife, who was estranged from her husband for some time before his tragic death, still insists that her husband was murdered. She insists that he did not commit suicide despite the fact that Medical Examiner Benjamin W Rudman ruled that it was suicide.

DEATH GUN NOT HIS

"That revolver never belonged to Donald," the wife again insisted today. "He loved sports and outdoor life and owned three revolvers but hte weapon found on the floor by his side did not belong to him."

The widow, in fighting the suicide theory of the authorities has already taken the case up with Dist. Att. [illegible] of Norfolk county.

The widow was loathe to further discuss her husband's will in which she was cut off with only $100.

BEAUTY TROPHIES
Mrs. Arlene J. Brett, of White st., North Cambridge, continues to plead for a probe into the death of her husband, Donald. Mrs. Brett was for years a dancer and model and is holding cups won by her in beauty contests.

VETS TO BATTLE SOVIET PLAN

It was announced today the Massachusetts delegates will ask the national organization to go on record against recognition of Soviet Russia by this country.

Roosevelt Asked to Forest Parley

President Roosevelt has been invited to attend the annual convention of the American Forestry Association which opens at the Forest Hills Hotel, Franconia, N. H., on Sept. 5.

Officers of the association plan to tender the President a special dinner at the Mount Washington Hotel, Bretton Woods, on Sep. 8 if he accepts the invitation.

'Operator 13' Begins in American Tomorrow

The first installment of "Operator 13"—the story of the adventures of a beautiful young actress as a spy for the Federal Secret Service in the Civil War—will be in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Litterateurs of recognized accomplishments regard this historical novel from the pen of that genius, Robert W Chambers, as a masterpiece of American writing.

INVADES RANKS OF FOE

Gail Loveless quits an infant career on the stage to follow her tutor and fellow actress Pauline Cushman, into the espionage forces of the Union army.

Masquerading as an octoroon she convinces the head of the service that she can out-trick the Confederate army and is given the gruesome number 13—gruesome because "13" had been the number of another woman spy who had just been hanged.

"Operator 13" invades southern territory in search of valuable information and, though she knows that she will be hanged at sunset if caught she carries on bravely with her mission her body and soul consecrated to the Union.

Operator 13 falls in love with dashing Jack Gaillard captain of the Confederate espionage organization. She is assigned to kill the man she loves.

Love and war, wild riding cavalry and booming cannon, romance and hate, thrills in every paragraph make this story by Robert W Chambers a true classic.

The Boston Evening American has gone to great expense to bring this story, usually found only in the better, high-priced magazines such as Cosmopolitan, to its daily readers.

Listen in tonight on Station WBZ between 9.30 and 10 when a radio drama adaptation will be presented and you will get an inkling of the grand story which you can read daily in serial form in these pages.

And be sure to read "Operator 13" in the Boston Evening American to get the full complete picture that Chambers has painted with his facile pen. Tell your newsdealer today. Be sure to get your copy of the Boston Evening American and Operator 13.

BAKERS BALK AT CODE PLAN

Journeymen bakers in Boston today were almost a unit in opposing the proposed 50-hour a week code which master bakers are seeking for the metropolitan district.

The proposed code calls for 50 hours a week with a minimum wage of 41 cents an hour. The journeymen declare such a code would only increase unemployment among the bakers. A formal protest was lodged at a meeting of the bakers held in the Dudley Street Opera House. A telegram of protest was sent to General Johnson.

Shoe Clerks Ask $22.50 Wage Scale

Retail shoe clerks will seek to have a minimum wage of $22.50 a week and whatever hours may be decided upon under the code of the NRA established here, it was announced at a meeting of clerks of Greater Boston at Wells Memorial.

During the meeting, scores of new members enrolled in the shoe clerks union and plans for the future were discussed.

Lord's Day League Officer Recovers

Reports from Massachusetts General Hospital today indicated that Dr. Robert Watson general secretary of the Lord's Day League, was resting comfortably and would undoubtedly recover from the effects of an emergency operation he underwent Sunday for ruptured gastric ulsers.

FIVE SEEK TO BREAK WILL

An estate valued at $214,382 left by the late Henry B Dillenback, of 161 Buckminister rd., Brookline, is the golden target at which five cousins of the deceased will aim in court action if their pleas are granted.

Dillenback cut off his cousins without a cent in his will, leaving $110,000 of his estate to Cushing Academy. The cousins have filed appearances in Norfolk County Probate Court requesting that jury issues be framed and that the matter of the disposition of the estate be left to a jury in Superior Court.

Drive for Union

A drive to unionize all Boston painters will open Saturday afternoon with a meeting at 2 p. m. under the auspices of the Painters District Council. There are 10 locals under the jurisdiction of the district council.

GIRLS VOTE TO END PACT WITH COMPANY

Operators Eliminate Julia O'Connor Parker From Organization

Officers elected by more than 1800 telephone operators to head a contemplated union of these workers will today open negotiations with the American Federation of Labor to secure a charter for their organization.

The huge crowd of operators thronged Faneuil Hall in an enthusiastic mass meeting, called to protest conditions imposed on them by the New England Telephone Company under the code.

REPRESENTATIVES NAMED

The unanimous vote to form a union followed an address by Congressman William F Connery who recommended immediate action of this nature and assured the backing of the federal government.

District representatives were appointed, a general chairman elected and the officers authorized to treat with the A. F. of L. in order that the union might be affiliated with them.

It was also unanimously voted to end all existing office representation of operators with the telephone company and all operators in Greater Boston area pledged themselves to have no further dealing with the company as the elected representatives of her group.

Miss Grace Barry, who presided as temporary chairman of the meeting was elected president pro tem of the contemplated union and general chairman of the new group. District representatives chosen are Miss Ruth Carroll, Miss Gertrude Jones, Miss Helen Cain, Miss Mae Doherty, Miss Helen Reardon and Miss O[illegible] Finley.

MISS PARKER BANNED

Amid a wild burst of cheering the operators also voted unanimously that in any negotiations with the A. F. of L., it was to be definitely understood that Julia O'Connor Parker is to be eliminated from the organization.

Congressman Connery spoke of the operators' strike 10 years ago and assured them they would find plenty of opposition now in their attempt to unionize. He promised, however, that they would have the backing of the government in their fight this time.

He said the matter of organizing was up to them but warned them against forming a company union and becoming "Yes" men for the company employing them.

Fireless Record of Watertown Broken

Watertown's record of not having a fire alarm sounded since Aug. 1 stood shattered today despite the best efforts of John Keefe, town employe, who drove a flaming rubbish truck to the fire station to save the unique record.

His effort went for naught for although no alarm was sounded for this blaze the flames were no sooner extinguished at the fire station than an alarm was sounded from Mt Auburn st and the men dashed away leaving Keefe staring at the smouldering truck and ruminating on the waggish pranks of fate.

Timber Falls, Rings Hospital Fire Alarm

There was considerable excitement at City Hospital today when a fire alarm sounded from the box on the Albany st side of the institution.

A dozen pieces of apparatus responded but firemen were unable to discover any fire. Nurses assured the more nervous patients that there was no danger. It was found that in tearing down an old building a heavy timber struck the box and sounded the alarm.

Dr. Adams Dies in Roxbury Home

On the eve of a trip to his boyhood surroundings in Ireland, Dr. John Adams, 69, physician to priests at Mission Church and House of the Angel Guardian for many years, today was mourned in death at his home, 704 Huntington ave., Roxbury. Funeral services will be held Thursday with a solemn high mass of requiem at the Mission Church.

Children Win Fight for Playground

Children of East Somerville, who marched to City Hall in that city last Saturday, today saw the way paved for a playground they demanded in that section in the refusal of the Somerville aldermen to grant a rendering plant permit for the spot in which they want to play. The permit was sought by Alfred E. Robitaille & Co., for a site in South st.

OPERATOR 13

THE lovely Gail Loveless, known to the warring armies as Operator 13, feared but one man, Vespasian Chancellor, chief of spies for the Confederacy. And she loved but one man, dashing John Gailliard, Chancellor's aid.

But fate decreed that when Chancellor came within her power to destroy he brought with him the man Operator 13 loved. To destroy the one she must destroy both . . .

Such thrilling situations, conceived by that master historical novelist, Robert W. Chambers, abound in "Operator 13."

From the first chapter through the last paragraph of the story you'll be spellbound. Love and war . . . and Operator 13. Together they make a story you'll never forget. Everyone will be talking about Operator 13—everyone will enjoy reading the story.

LANNY ROSS IN MUSICAL FILM

All Starry

COMEDY PEPS UP SCOLLAY "VAUDE" BILL

William Le Baron Will Direct "The Golden Age"; Harry Tierney to Write Score

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Aug. 22—Maybe with the depression, the NRA and so many new things you have forgotten that "Rio Rita" was produced by William Le Baron for Radio. It's the best musical that Bill, or Radio for that matter, ever made. It's to be duplicated now by Bill for Paramount, the company that headlines his name on an office door.

Louella O. Parsons

Don Henderson Clarke is writing the libretto for "The Golden Age" which is described as a "romantic musical." Harry Tierney, who furnished all that grand music for "Rio Rita" is coming on from New York to contribute the musical score and, surprise of surprises, Lanny Ross W. K. Radio star, will be featured.

Fifi Flies to Take Role

Oo-la-la, Fifi Dorsay, the girl with the naughty eyes and the French accent, is airplaning back to Hollywood. Fifi has been in Chicago at the World's Fair and her sudden return is to play the part of the French actress in Marion Davies' picture, "Going Hollywood." Marion visualized Fifi and no one else for the role and was delighted when she heard that the gal who led Will Rogers astray in so many films, could return for her picture. "Going Hollywood" goes into production a week from tomorrow.

Pola in Unique Film

The continued reports that Pola Negri returns to this country in the fall to marry a Chicago millionaire, presumably Harold McCormick, are not half as interesting as the details of the picture she is now making for Via-Film in Paris. So often Negri has been rumored engaged without an resulting marriage. "Fanatisme," an adaptation of "La Savelli" by Max Maurey is the name of the play famous in Europe as one of Rejane's most colorful vehicles. It's a costume picture of the second empire dealing with such historical personages as Napoleon III, the Empress Eugenie, Countess Walewska and others. Pola should be lovely as Rosine Savelli the Italian enchantress of that day.

Gloria Stuart Starred

Was it Gloria Stuart, who naively remarked "I don't care to be a star?" Where have we heard that before from a sprouting starlet. Gloria, whether she is a star or not, is Universal's favorite actress and most of the best women stories are being given to her. She is to be the featured player in "Madame Spy," based on a German play, "Under False Flags." Karl Freund, versatile director who did "Moonlight and Pretzels" and then, just by way of contrast gave the world "The Mummy" is the director. Don't ask me about Gloria and Marshall Duffeld. I am through prophesying the outcome of these Hollywood friendships.

Chatter in Hollywood

You can take my word for it, the long rumored Norma Talmadge-Joseph Schenck divorce is only a matter of a few months now. Norma has practically decided to go to Reno, where Carole Lombard, Ann Harding and others obtained their freedom without any difficulty and without any necessity for a year's wait for absolute freedom. There is no doubt in the minds of any of Norma's close friends that she will marry George Jessel once she is divorced. George says au revoir to Hollywod Tuesday and goes East. He and Norma and Natalie Keaton with a party of other friends spent the week-end on Natalie's boat at Catalina.

A Line or Two

If you miss Cy Bartlett, Alice White's ex-boy friend, at the night spots, it's because he is getting into the spirit of the play he is adapting for Phil Goldstone. "The Rosary," by Edward Rose, is a coming Goldstone event and Cy has been engaged to write the screen play and the dialogue. Children's day on the Columbia lot: Helen Twelvetrees' young son and Victor Jory's little girl visited their respective parents. Sam Hardy who has done as much as anyone to make the Masquers a success in Hollywood, sailed Saturday on the Ile de France for England to make a picture for British Gaumont. Mrs. Hardy will join him later. June Knight is coming back. No romance is luring her to movieland, this time. It's a picture, "The Indecent Age," at Universal, based on Frederick and Fanny Hatton's play, "The Dizzy Age."

Snapshots of Hollywood

JACK OAKIE sending MAE WEST flowers on her birthday with a telegram. MAE isn't telling what he said. The singing waiters at BOB PERRY'S Brass Rail greeting GARY COOPER with a special song. This unique Hollywood "Jernt" is crowded to the doors every night. The waiters, ex-vaudevillians, double in brass, singing, tap-dancing, jigging between serving beer and sandwiches. KAY FRANCIS and KENNETH MACKENNA heralding the social season with a barn dance. The boys and girls are getting out their ginghams and overalls for the event set for September 2. KATHRYN CARVER MENJOU, and RANDOLPH SCOTT, DOROTHY MACKAILL and NEIL MILLER and CONSTANCE TALMADGE and others trying out all the rides at Ocean Park. IRVING THALBERG and NORMA SHEARER making up for lost time by looking at American pictures. They have run a picture every night since they have been home. MARION DAVIES stopping in to welcome NORMA and IRVING home. MAX BAER introduced at the fights as Hollywood's newest leading man. Katharine Hepburn, bright star of Hollywood chosen to start the RKO "Greater Boston Show Season" at Keith's next Saturday. She will be seen in her latest film, "Morning Glory."

Of all the Hollywood colony Lilyan Tashman is one of the most vivacious. The news photographer, roaming the beach at Malibu, caught sight of her, near her cottage by the sea. She was playing with a pet Scotch terrier—doggie was listening to the tunes from the machine. (International News photos.)

On his way to Malibu Beach the photographer saw another great luminary of the films. 'Twas "Little Caesar" himself, Edward G. Robinson. So we have a pretty good picture of Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, snapped near the Vendome Cafe in Hollywood. Eddie is one of the most popular screen stars and he and his wife are among the happiest in Hollywood. (International News photo.)

Hail Columbia on the Rialto

This is Columbia's Day, and the topical song of the incoming film executive, led by Abe Montague, is "Columbia, the Gems of the Motion Pictures." For Columbia this day inaugurates in Boston its 1933-'34 season, by a gala turnout of national chiefs, as guests of New England Manager Timothy O'Toole, and staff, along with John Curran, veteran publicity ace for the great corporation.

Vice-President Montague brings a retinue of executives, and will be among the chief speakers at a gathering of Boston and New England film and theater men. The exercises open with a special showing of the company's special film, "Lady for a Day," in the Imperial Ballroom, at the Statler, followed by dinner. Then comes a reception and the formal opening of the company's new quarters at 57 Church st., with Mr. O'Toole in charge.

The first authentic scenes of the revolution in Cuba's fair capital, Havana, are shown in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News at Loew's Orpheum. There are thrilling and spectacular pictures of the overthrow of the Machado Government showing the mobs pillaging, looting and sacking stores, buildings and homes. There are also the latest pictures of the deposed President Machado, and pictures of the new president, Dr. Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, with his wife.

President Roosevelt is seen on a personal tour of southern reforestation camps where he is given a rousing welcome.

Fred Lightner Gets Plenty of Laughs

By LEIGH HARBRIDGE

Fun is the chief ingredient of the new stage bill at the Scollay, opening yesterday. The eight acts of vaudeville have also some excellent dancing turns but the comedy is the outstanding feature. On screen, Manager E. A. Vinson has a good vehicle in "Mary Stevens, M. D.," in which Kay Francis gives a finished performance.

* * *

Fred Lightner, brother of Winnie and able to stand on his own as a mirthmaker, is the headliner of the footlight program. Fred is tip top and his partner, Miss Roscella, seen with him before is again the perfect foil for an able clown. There's merriment in every antic of this pair, and Lightner himself is one of the finest of the old-time variety stars left to us. He dishes out hokum, but we like it. And the audience does, too.

Carlos, Chita and Mia have a superb dance revue. Billy Kelly presents a company that possesses much dancing talent, and also is strong on comedy. Of the Kelly group Adelaide Lorraine is a bright star, being an acrobatic worker of first rank.

John Mills and Tim Shea dispense knockabout fun, and Bert Rome offers songs neatly rendered and nicely received by the house. Wells-Gilmore team dispenses more comedy. Ford, Marshall and Jones dance and win big applause. The five gay boys are clever with an acrobatic turn.

It's another good show in the Vinson vaudeville series.

Prosperity Is All Smiles

Arthur G. Manley, treasurer of the Shubert, smiled as he announced that the record first day advance sale chalked up a year ago this time by Ed Wynn's "Laugh Parade," had been broken by Joe Cook's "Hold Your Horses," which open at the Shubert next Monday night.

"We sold more tickets in our first five hours," Arthur boomed, "than we did in our first twelve hours of selling on the Wynne show. Why, there's been a line at this window since 9 o'clock."

Fine Arts Film Ideal Talkie for Action

By HARELIGH SCHULTZ

For the first time since "The Road to Life," the screen gives birth to a talkie closely approximating the perfect sound photoplay. The cinema's new prodigy is titled "Alone," and it is currently featured at the Fine Arts. In camera action, in a full tide of dramatic development, it surpasses all predecessors since the microphone was linked up with the lenses.

* * *

The Russians created "The Road to Life," and the honor of this new child of genius is also theirs. Dialogue is minimized, swift flow of lights and shadows is made the cue to unfolding a tale that doesn't need speech, so beautifully and vigorously is it told in manner far more eloquent than words.

For theme simplicity itself—a girl, a teacher; her school in the frozen North, her pupils, Mongols and others, the people, rude, and in revolt. Things happen, radio and airplane weave in, and before the narrative is half through one is thrilled to the soul.

They tell us this is a true story. However that be, the genius of these Russian studio technicians make it ring true! The pace is fast, the excitement the tensest. The plot is crystal clear so clever is the camera treatment, and the accompanying music is so deftly fitted to the racing drama that it reminds you of the best of the old silent pictures.

Slowly Hollywood is coming to the inevitable—that true motion pictures, the kind audiences want, demand camera action and less talk. "Alone" points the way.

Exeter Theater

Clark Gable and Jean Harlow in "Hold Your Man" and Wheeler and Woolsey in "Diplomaniacs" are the attractions for today and tomorrow at the Exeter. The last half of the week Robert Montgomery and Sally Eilers will be seen in "Made on Broadway." Chic Sale in "Dangerous Crossroads" will also be shown.

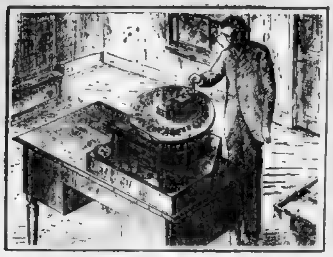
HERE'S CHANCE TO GET IN ON GROUND FLOOR!



Above picture shows improved type of combination bottle capper, time clock and addressing machine which Mr. Frisby purposes to use in his gigantic ocean-to-ocean enterprise.

WASHINGTON—Congressman Horace Frisby has offered his wife a property settlement if she will drop her demand for alimony.

"My plan," explained Mr. Frisby, "is to give Mrs. Frisby five shares of stock in the proposed Frisby Brewing Company. The other 245,000 shares will be sold to the public at $5 a share. The well-known chemists, Stoppe, Luke & Lissen, estimate that there is ample water in Lake Michigan and the Mississippi River for my enterprise. I propose to obtain options on all property bordering on these bodies of water, and in addition will drill a well. It is estimated that by placing our storage tanks on top of the Great Divide a substantial saving will be effected by gravity flow distribution. Pipe lines will be constructed to nine of the eleven Western States. It is a well-known fact that there are 11,342,000 families with faucets in their kitchens which can be quickly connected with our nationwide hookup by using an ordinary monkey wrench. Our survey shows that each person consumes an average of less than 1,687,000 barrels of beer annually. It is upon this market that we will concentrate. No one is allowed to make any statement in connection with this stock offering that is not contained in the above broadside."

Bill McKechnie Confesses He Is Hunch Manager ↑↓ Braves' System Of Signs; How Bill Crossed Self

By AUSTEN LAKE

You have no idea of what an aching void a column of white space is when you straddle a typewriter with only a dry kernel of an idea rattling in your system like a withered filbert. At such times you are apt to go into a transport or a frenzy, with your theme galloping out of control and find yourself whacking out a crusade about some comparatively innocent athletic offense, or you may gradually work into a creamy froth of sentiment over some trivial happening to a little girl's dog, or you may go suddenly subtle and sew yourself into Freud's and Jung's skin and psychologize all over the lot. But it is a lot of fun if you will just go limp and don't try to think too hard.

All you need is a start, almost any start. Take Jack Sharkey—keep him, if you like him. Or take Bill McKechnie of the Braves. You say . . . let's see! . . . you say . . .

Being by birth a Scotch Presbyterian and by training a practical, almost cynical baseball head, Bill McKechnie is the last major league manager you would suspect of leanings toward occult science. Yet Bill admittedly is a player of hunches, a believer in the sixth sense which is sometimes called intuition, and by flashes of what he is pleased to call "sudden intelligence" he makes his decisions on the ball field.

By this time, unless you are wholly relaxed, you will be snarled in your own verbiage and be tempted to yank your copy out of the type roller. Be resolute! Sail on, and on, and on. Throw a change of pace by quoting Bill, and Lo! you are in the clear again.

"I never play a ball game before it happens," says Bill, who is suffering from a hard head cold and dubbing his pronunciation. "But when the game starts I play hunches, just as every other manager and ball player plays hunches. Call them subconscious flashes of judgment, if you like, but a hunch by any other name is still a hunch. Sometimes they don't work, but more often they do. I play them because I don't want them sticking in my system after the game in the form of vain regret."

Bill Explains Mystery of the Braves' Signs

Now shake in a dash of reminiscence, linking an associated idea with your quotation. It eats up space like the devil.

I recall sitting with Bob Quinn, late president of the Red Sox, one sun drenched afternoon (Literary touch) at Pensacola, Fla., during the spring training season (authoritative touch) when Bob, in his crisp, head-on manner, remarked, "The worst about Heinie Wagner is that he plays hunches."

"Don't we all?" said I

"Perhaps," said Bob "but show me a hunch manager and I'll show you a baseball sucker."

By this time you realize you are putting McKechnie, beloved leader of the pennant-contending Braves and one of the game's most popular figures, on the spot, so you get in a little fast footwork.

For some strange reason baseball managers are sensitive about their hunches, just as players are about their superstitions, so that only the hardiest among them are willing to admit that they rely on sudden inspiration to take the place of the game's routine. Until McKechnie, McGraw was the only other manager who admitted playing hunches.

"Take the case of Worthington last Sunday," points out Bill. "I had planned to use him as a pinch hitter when the first opportunity came up. When it did, something said 'Nix, don't do it,' but this time instead of playing the hunch, I sent him to bat just the same. And what did he do?"

"He struck out," I said, knowing the answer to that one.

Now you're going, ole boy, ole boy. So you shadow box a little, peppering your discourse with capital I's when and wherever.

The chat turns to signs, those symbolic hitching-of-the-breeches and scratching-of-the-thighs which have secret meanings to the players, and Bill explained that the Braves have two sets of signals for the elementary plays (bunt, hit and run, steal and "runout,") which he switches at will. One set is handsigns and the other is wordsigns, like "The old PEPPER" or "Do your STUFF," etc. And between times Bill and his man Friday, Duffy Lewis, are continually making decoy signs by tweaking their ears, flapping their elbows and doing Morris dances on the coaching lines, which sometimes makes rival infielders go into a flurry of suspicion.

* * *

Bill Misses One of His Own Signs

And sometimes, once in ten times, a Braves' baserunner or batter will miss a sign and have to stand courtmartial later in the clubhouse for this, a most heinous offense, while his mates sit on their benches like crows on a rail and goggle owlishly as Bill goes through the routine and rehearses the offending one through the entire alphabet of signals.

And once this summer Bill accidentally yelped the word that meant to bunt, and was as much amazed as the opposition when the Braves' batter laid down a nifty dribble along first base and scampered safely down the line. Which was comical, considering that there were two out and two men on at the time. As far as I know Bill let the matter rest as a bit of nervy strategy.

Always, unless Bill flashes the rubout sign, the player may swing when ready and take his chances on straightaway hitting, which explains why the batters are continually knocking the dirt from their cleats and glancing covertly down the line to get a load of what sort of pretzel knot Bill had tied himself in.

A deep knowledge of human nature is required of every manager who hopes to handle his pitchers successfully, and this phase, where McKechnie excels particularly, is the chief reason why he has made more of his material than other managers in the game.

He does not hesitate, for example, to tell Ed Brandt 24 hours before game time that he is going to pitch, because Brandt is blessed with a phlegmatic set of nerves and an unimaginative mind. But he never tells Fred Frankhouse until just before the warmup period, lest Fred go into a flurry of preparation and work into a nervous lather. Thus Fred did not know this morning that he was scheduled to pitch this afternoon.

Frankhouse has fully repaid McKechnie's faith and patience of the last four years, for he has come to learn the knack of "scientific loafing" and the futility of putting his heart and backbone behind every pitch. No longer does he blaze away at top speed for nine innings and periodically go into spasms of wildness, for now he leans easily on his supporting fielders until the moment arrives when his utmost-power-with-velvet-smoothness is needed.

Well here we are. The end of the line, still limp and not thinking too hard. I must read this sometime.

Day's Games Can Hurl Tribe to 2nd or 4th

All five contenders for the National League pennant were set to resume battling today after a Monday breathing spell. The Braves and Pirates, virtually tied for second place, prepared to end a four-game series at the Wigwam. The league-leading Giants had listed a doubleheader with the Cubs at New York. The fourth place Cards faced the lowly Dodgers in Brooklyn.

The Tribe, now 7½ games back of the roof, could gain an undisputed half grasp on the runnerup berth and draw to within six games of the top this p. m. A more unpleasant possibility was that it would drop to fourth place, nine games from the attic

Here are some of the possibilities which faced the top five before nightfall

If the Braves won, the Cardinals lost and the Cubs won twice the standing would be

	W.	L.	Pct.	G.B.
Giants	68	45	.602	—
Braves	64	53	.547	6
Cubs	64	53	.547	6
Pirates	62	53	.539	7
Cards	64	55	.538	7

Should the Braves win, Cards lose and Cubs and Giants split the standing would be

	W.	L.	Pct.	G.B.
Giants	69	44	.611	—
Braves	6	53	.547	7
Pirates	62	53	.539	8
Cubs	63	54	.538	8
Cards	64	55	.538	8

A win for the Braves, win for the Cards and two victories for the Giants would result in the following standing

	W.	L.	Pct.	G.B.
Giants	70	43	.619	—
Braves	64	53	.547	8
Cards	65	54	.546	8
Pirates	62	53	.539	9
Cubs	62	55	.530	10

If the Braves lost, Cards won and New York won two the figures would read:

	W.	L.	Pct.	G.B.
Giants	70	43	.619	—
Pirates	63	52	.548	8
Cards	65	54	.546	8
Braves	63	54	.538	9
Cubs	62	55	.530	10

Providing the Braves lost, Cards lost and Giants split even the standing would be

	W.	L.	Pct.	G.B.
Giants	69	44	.611	—
Pirates	63	52	.548	7
Braves	63	54	.538	8
Braves	63	54	.538	8
Cubs	63	54	.538	8
Cards	64	55	.538	8

That is all for today.

LACK OF SUBS PERILS FLAG CHANCES OF BRAVES

By JOE CASHMAN

On Aug. 2[illegible] a year ago, the [illegible] Braves were in fourth place, having just fallen out of third. On Aug. 2[illegible] they were in fifth place, where they eventually finished.

On Aug. 1 of this year the Braves were in fifth place. This 22d of August, if that's the correct calendar we're looking at—they open a four game engagement with the Pirates in a virtual tie with the Smoky City visitors for second place.

The [illegible] enjoyed the services of [illegible] Brown, the prize mound [illegible] of the season and Red Worthington, the leading hitter on the club [illegible] of whom have been [illegible] their absence from the [illegible] the current race.

The only regulars now at the Wigwam who weren't playing there 12 months back are Pinky Whitney and Hal Lee.

QUAKER DUO MAKES WINNER

So what?

So the $50,000 which transformed the pair from Philly sleep-walkers to wide-awake energetic Tribesmen has made our ball club.

Quite elementary, my dear Watson.

Quite a bit of ancient history by now, too, yet none the less apropos.

Lee was slightly indisposed on Saturday last and had to take the afternoon off. He was back on Sunday but before that afternoon was history a scatter-arm named Leon Chagnon winged "Pinky" on the throwing [illegible] and forced our third sacker extraordinary, to the de[illegible].

So it was with bated breath that [illegible] fandom awaited the announcement of the lineup for today's game to learn if the hot-corner ace would play, as Wigwam officials optimistically predicted.

The Tribe would be in a bad way were anything serious to happen to any of its regulars. It would have to kiss its chances of gaining a money berth a fond good-bye were either of the erstwhile Quakers to be hors de combat for any length of time.

BUCC BOSS OPTIMISTIC

Having dropped three straight to the Braves and still facing a four game series with the league leading Giants, Manager George Gibson of the Pirates [illegible] handwriting on the [illegible]. He won't admit it though [illegible] be just as stubborn even if [illegible] Frankhouse beats Hal Smith to give the Tribe a clean sweep this p. m.

"This race won't be settled until the last 10 days of the season," predicts Canada's gift to America's national game. "I was scoffed at in May when I said five clubs would be in the running for the title as Labor Day drew near. And time will also prove that I hit the nail right on the head with my latest prophecy.

"The Western contenders are getting their bumps right now, yet don't forget that we finish at home entertaining the Giants and Braves.

"The Giants have a comfortable lead. The Braves are the most improved club in the league. Neither is to be laughed at, and I wouldn't even faintly smile at either. They're tough to whip and promise to remain so. But we're far from out of the running. The race is still a five-cornered free-for-all, that won't be settled until Sept. 20 at the earliest."

McKECHNIE WANTS ACTION

Bill McKechnie, Tribal boss, says nothing in reply to this or any other prediction except to express the wish that rain will cause no postponements at the Wigwam.

Not [illegible] enough, Wi[illegible].

Nobody is anxious to play regu[illegible] [illegible] he believes he will win [illegible]

Nature apparently doesn't wish the Watt[illegible] to do their bit for sweet charity by playing an exhibition twilight games in Malden. Monday's showers cancelled the tilt for the third time.

If Judge Fuchs is at all superstitious, he's probably put off that joy ride to the suburbs until his hired men are definitely in or out of the money.

Terry, Grimm and Frisch Face Stretch Confidently

New York, Aug. 22 (INS)—Three managers of the National Baseball League were in town today, and all three had some ideas about the 1933 pennant race.

"The trick is to stay on our toes, to hustle," said Bill Terry of the league-leading New York Giants. "If we keep on playing the kind of ball we have been I think we will win the pennant."

Charlie Grimm of the Chicago Cubs said:

"With Riggs Stephenson in there we figure to take a new lease on life. We have a flock of games to play with second division teams, and a winning streak would put us in the race."

Frankie Frisch of the St. Louis Cardinals said:

"If those New York pitchers lose a few close games to us and Boston upsets them a few times, we're right back in the battle."

134 CADDIES START 36-HOLE TITLE GRIND AT UNICORN C. C.

5 JUNIOR GOLF QUALIFIERS IN STRUGGLE

By BILL GRIMES

Five of the qualifiers in the recent Junior title play at Blue Hill were among the 134 boys playing in the 15th annual Massachusetts Caddy championship today at the Unicorn Country Club.

Although they were all first round victims in the "Juniors" Don Nelson and Phil Friel, Woburn; Bob Whittingham, Winthrop; Jack Ryan, Thorny Lea, and Russell Lund, Tatnuck, were serious contenders for the caddy crown. They finished among the low scorers at Blue Hill.

Lund had the misfortune to draw Eddie Peterson in the first round and was on the short end of an 8 and 7 match, in which the Exonian was only one over fours for the 12 holes, while Whittingham was pitted against Johnny Dukelow, Meadow Brook, and lost a 7 and 6 verdict to a 14 hole medal round of two over fours.

NELSON, FRIEL CAPABLE

Nelson and Friel who represented Woburn today, gave a better account of themselves in the juniors, but they were eliminated by Arthur Stone, Sharon, and Telford Frazier, Tedesco, respectively. Nelson lost to Stone, 3 and 2 but Friel carried the Tabor Academy star to the home hole.

Jack Ryan, the fifth qualifier in the junior championship, was beaten by Bunnie McGregor, Stoney Brae, 4 and 3.

Because of their showings at Blue Hill, Nelson, Friel, Whittingham, Ryan and Lund were favored over the other contenders. Eddie Baldovin, Stoney Brae, who finished fourth a year ago in the caddy championship at Commonwealth, with a 77—79—156; Frank Oteri, Belmont Spring, and John Senior, Worcester, who were deadlocked at 158 with John Dukelow a year ago, refused to concede the title to any of the qualifiers at Blue Hill.

Other players who made creditable showings at Commonwealth, and who were in action today included Edwin Wheeler, Concord; George Barnicle, Oak Hill; John Finn, Blue Hill; Robert Sanford, Waltham, and John Pictor, Pine Brook Valley.

As usual, a few unknowns were expected to leap into prominence today. The South Shore Country Club had a worthy representative in Pickles Pecoraro, and Blue Hill believed that John Nugent would be up with the leaders at the conclusion of the 36 holes.

CHAMP OVER AGE

For the second consecutive year, the caddy field lacked a defending champion. Like his predecessor, Peter Bukin of Brockton, Leo Martin of Oakley who led the pack a year ago, is over age. Possibly, it was just as well for young Mr. Martin today that he had outgrown the caddy age limit, for according to the records, the caddy championship is the toughest of all titles to defend.

Since the late Jock MacAndrews repeated at Woodland in 1920, in the second annual championship, no caddy titlist has been able to defend his laurels. Such great golfers as Joe Lynch, Harold McGrail, Frank Lempitsky and Philip Fahey were not equal to the task of defending their crown.

For the first time in the annals of caddy championship the field started at two points today. Half the field began its quest for honors at the first tee and the remainder at the 10th. Pres. Charles H. Cross was responsible for the innovation, his objective being to speed up the play, which, with 134 starters would naturally have dragged.

Before the contestants started their opening rounds this morning they were given luncheon tickets for themselves and their caddies to be guests of the Massachusetts Golf Association.

Martin, Strack Go on Revere Mat

Bull Martin the Trenton trench-erman, and Charlie Strack, A. B. Oklahomah Agricultural College are headliners in Alex McLean's weekly wrestling show at Rolloway Rink, Revere, tonight.

This is by way of a return engagement, both wrestlers being hors de combat at the referee's conclusion of their first tour de force.

Karol Zybysko, nephew of the former world's champion Wladek Zybysko, of sacred memory, goes to the mat against Mike Maguire of New York.

Family Four Prepare to Corner Dedham Swim Title Market

Four daughters of Patrolman John T. McCarthy of the Dedham Police Department tune up for the meet at Dedham bathhouse next Saturday. All four were taught the rudiments of the game in Mother Brook, Dedham, by their father. Jean, eight, and Claire, ten, are entered in the 25-yard freestyle open to Dedham residents. Ileen, 11, and Rita, 13, are entered in the 50 meter freestyle. Both are members of the B. S. A. Officer McCarthy has nine children. Two of his sons also will compete Saturday. They are John, 16, and Edward, 13, both of whom are members of the Brookline Swimming Club. Among them there is likely to be created a corner on victories in the Dedham meet. An excellent program of water sports has been arranged at Dedham. And the performances of the talented McCarthys will add much to the sport. Records will be in danger in the games. Many of New England's future champions may be found among the Dedham natators.

Field and Stream

—By GEORGE UNDERWOOD—

There we were rocking lazily in a salm sea off the reef of Norman's Woe, immortalized by Longfellow in "The Wreck of the Hesperus."

Off to port the cliffs of Rafe's Chasm thrust themselves out against the buffeting of the Atlantic. To starboard we could glimpse the fishing boats going in and out of Gloucester.

The whole setting was marine, but Charlie Perry, resting from hauling in his lobster pots, didn't want to talk of the sea or fishing or lobstering or anything pertaining to the briny deep. He wanted to talk of the woods and hunting.

A WOODSMAN-SEAMAN

Charlie winters deep in the bush of northern Maine. The Big Woods, like the Atlantic, is an open book to him. He makes his living off the sea. Few men want to talk of their work.

"That dog of yours," he began. "Is he any good on wildcats?"

"Never took him deep enough in the bush to try him," we answered, "but he's licked everything on four feet he yet has faced. I'd back Kerry Pep against anything anywhere near his weight."

"Yes, I can see the Airedale in him," went on Perry, "and the best wildcat dogs in the world are those of an Airedale cross. Up in Harrington I have a 67-pound Airedale who has killed more than 30 bobcats.

"I take him out under leash with a slow running hound. Put him on a cold scent. After the scent gets hot, the cat sees he isn't followed closely and his circles get smaller an smaller. I unleash the Airedale and let him go to work. When he trees 'em, or they turn at bay, you see real action.

"Sometimes I've seen a big bobcat and the Airedale, just like a pair of boxers, feint and spar for an opening for as long as 10 minutes before they closed in. The dog got clawed and bit up a bit in his first two or three fights. But now he knows how to get his opening. Once he closes in now its only a matter of seconds before its a case of dead cat. And when I tree 'em and chop, pole or shoot 'em off no cat ever has hit the ground. Always he lands in the Airedale's jaws."

BOUNTY ON WILDCATS

We asked Perry if he sold the wildcat skins, and he answered

"No, there's a $10 bounty on 'em in my county. I turn 'em in to any Selectman. He cuts off the tail and burns it, after giving me my $10. I averaged five or six a week all through last November and December."

Squiteague, those gamy salt water denizens who disappeared two years ago, have shown up again in the waters around Cuttyhunk, according to Dick Waterhouse. Several have been caught in the weirs of the commercial fishermen and an unidentified angler landed an 8¼ pounder on rod and reel at Cuttyhunk, last week.

Week-end guests at the Bosworth House on Cuttyhunk Island creeled a goodly number of bluefish and one 24 pound striped bass. A week ago two striped bass weighing 17½ and 23½ pounds were landed.

Mackerel are so thick off Manomet you can almost walk on 'em. Joe Murphy, business manager of the Electric Workers' Union, Arthur Furfey and Arthur Junion, using troll and jigger, caught so many last Saturday they couldn't find neighbors enough to give the fish.

Joe Burke, Jim Stratford and party caught 91 hake off Ipswich over the week-end. Mackerel also are plentiful in Ipswich Bay.

CONNOLLY RISKS SWIM CROWN

Gordon Connolly, the Boston Swimming Association 100-meter free style champion, defends his title in the New England senior championship swim at Canobie Lake, pool, Salem, N. H., Friday night.

Many of the leading New England swimmers will be in action in this meet.

Some of the competitors for Connolly's crown will be Matthew Chrostowski, of the Olneyville Boy's Club; Danny Regan of Lowell Y. M. C. A., and several local swimmers of note.

Clinton Osborne, unattached, New England high board diving champion, defends his title, with Paul Snyder, the former New England junior diving champion making his bid for senior honors in this event.

Other title events on the program include the women's high board dive, and the women's 220-yard free style. Scratch events and special races will conclude the program.

Football Coaches Go Into Huddle

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 22 (AP)—Members of the National Football Coaches Association, here for the East-West game at Soldier Field Thursday night, took advantage of the visit to hold a meeting today.

The session was called by Dan McGugin of Vanderbilt, president of the association. Talks by Howard Jones of Southern California and Dick Hanley of Northwestern, coaches of the West and East squads, respectively; Glenn S. (Pop) Warner of Temple, and Bernie Bierman of Minnesota, were on the day's program.

Fielding H. Yost, University of Michigan athletic director, will speak at a dinner tonight.

Red Faber's Ancient Arm Has Youngsters Envious

Chicago, Aug. 22 (AP)—If Red Faber's 45-year-old right arm continues to operate as it has in his last two appearances, he may find himself starting games for the Chicago White Sox again.

Faber, last of the American League's spitball hurlers, will not be starting games every four days, but with his last 11 innings of pitching against the Yankees, during which he gave three hits and no runs, he might make some of the younger Sox chuckers envious.

He pitched the last four innings of an overtime game with the Yankees last Saturday and his spitter had them hitting into the dirt or popping up to the infielders. Only one hit was made off him. He was called into yesterday's 18-inning 3 to 3 struggle with the World Champions and in seven innings gave just two singles.

To date this season, Faber, who joined the Sox in 1913, has won two games and lost one. His record includes 60 1-3 innings of work, during which he gave 58 hits and was scored on 23 times. Since he hit his stride on July 20, he has pitched 29 1-3 innings, allowed 15 hits and only three runs.

Quincy Challenge Cup Series Starts Today

By E. B. SCHRIFTGIESSER

Seven swift racing sloops were to be at the starting line this afternoon to compete for one of the oldest yachting trophies in existence.

The prize for which the Class I 18-footers are sailing this week at the Wessagussett Yacht Club, the Quincy Challenge Cup, has been in competition since 1898, during which time it has been won by such famous skippers as Charles Francis Adams.

The Nipper, owned by Leslie Rawding, is defending for Wessagussett the trophy which she won last summer at Marblehead. Against her are arrayed six challengers, all of them capable craft from Boston Bay clubs. The Oriental, with which A. E. Whittemore won the cup in 1931 when representing the Corinthian Y. C., this week is sailing under the colors of the Cottage Park Y. C.

SALLY WINTHROP'S HOPE

Winthrop is represented by the Sally, owned by Shirley Brooks, and the MacIntosh brothers in the Speedy are flying the South Boston Y. C. burgee. Commodore Jim Finlay is sailing the Flicker in the name of the Quincy Yacht Club.

Two newcomers to Quincy cup competition are Wollaston and Squantum. Commodore Harry Wells and Lowell Hutchings of Squantum have acquired the Dorchen II from Finlay, and the boat is being sailed by Capt. Mortimer Nickerson in this series. And a few doors down the boulevard Commodore Harry Wells of the Wollaston Yacht Club has brought the Paloma down from Rockport and has entered her in the cup series with Billy Scott as helmsman.

The Quincy cup was first raced for by the famous sailing scows in the unrestricted 21-foot class, with the Outlook of the Manchester Y. C. the victorious boat. Since then Sonders, P boats and R boats have taken their turns until now the 18-footers, a class almost as old as the cup, are battling for its possession.

NAHANT JUNIORS WIN

The Manchester Yacht Club junior invitation series was over in short order this year. Last season eight clubs competed, most of them sending two crews. This season the entries were restricted to a single crew to a club and it so happened that only three accepted Manchester's invitation.

All three, Sandy Bay, Pleon and Nahant, had better crews than their hosts, and after four races the victory was settled upon Nahant's shoulders. Had not Pleon been disqualified in the first race the prize might have gone to Marblehead.

Nahant's crew was captained by Herbert J. Motley, who in his home waters sails a Montycat. In his crew were Finley Perry and David Devens, the latter a younger brother of the Harvard and Yankees pitcher. Nahant won the first and third races, while Pleon, captained by Eric Shepard, took the second and fourth in light winds and a rough sea.

The junior team races at Quincy proved at least that there is quite a trick to sailing a Quincy cat. The Quincy crew, captained by Robert Montgomery and Robert Kirkland, piled up 12 points as against eight for Dana Fields and Kenneth Patten of Squantum. Maybe the results will be reversed on Friday when the Quincy boys have to sail Indians, and set spinnakers, off the Squantum Y. C. Anyway, it is excellent training for both teams.

Colgate, Michigan Schools Crowded

Hamilton, N. Y., Aug. 22 (AP)—The success of two of the country's unbeaten football teams last fall, Colgate and University of Michigan, was reflected today in the enrollment at the coaching school conducted by the instructors who guided those elevens through successful seasons.

One hundred and one college high school and preparatory school coaches are registered for the course supervised by Andy Kerr, Maroon instructor, and Harry Kipke, the Western mentor, who arrived here last week ready for action, only to find he was five days too early.

Although this is the first time a coaching school has been conducted at Colgate, it probably will be the largest in the East this year.

RAIN DELAYS U. S. DOUBLES NET OPENING

Courtmen famed the world over waited this a. m. hoping for a break in the weather so that they might start the U. S. lawn tennis doubles championship play at the Longwood Cricket Club.

Only one group was much pleased with the delayed start, and that was the Australian entourage, for the delay gave the players a chance to tune up with a long Monday drill at the Longwood Covered Courts.

Play was due to open at 2.00 today. Early this morning hopes were not at all high. The rain had soaked the Longwood courts thoroughly, despite attempts to protect the turf from the downpour.

Hopes for an early start in the women's mixed doubles were slim today, for at Forest Hills the U. S. singles semifinals were rained over another day, which meant that the women stars could not get going in the Longwood tourney until Thursday at least.

If fine weather comes to the rescue, the tournament will proceed on schedule. With only 32 teams entered, a round each day will bring the finals on Saturday.

Today's play gave the veterans a chance to share in the opening. S. Jarvis Adams and Henry H. Bassford, 1930 and 1932 champions, were seeded first in the veterans draw.

Among the veterans' combinations entered are Dr. William Rosenbaum and Fred C. Baggs, winners of the championship in 1927, 1929 and 1931; Samuel Hardy and Walter Pate, 1924 and 1925 victors, and the team of Richard Bishop and G. P. Gardner, Jr.

HELEN JACOBS FAVORED

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 22—Dorothy Round, English court flash, was to meet Helen Jacobs, defending champion, today in the sole remaining match preliminary to the final of the U. S. women's lawn tennis singles title series.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody already was in the final bracket as a result of her victory over Betty Nuthall.

Miss Jacobs was a slight favorite over Miss Round today. The coast girl, heroine of the U. S. Wightman cup team's victory, has been in her top form of late.

The layoff of Monday, necessitated by rain, was a break for Mrs. Moody, who has been suffering from a strained back. It was thought the rest would be considerably helpful to her.

Show Next Week at North Scituate

New England's biggest one-day horse show, the annual North Scituate fixture, already has an excellent entry for its coming event next Tuesday, following the Cohasset rivalry, but Willard H. Stevens, chairman of the horse show committee, will accept any entries made up to tomorrow night.

Stevens also announced today that the outside course for hunters has been lengthened 125 yards, with a chicken coop, Aiken fence and water jump added, to make the course more of a typical hunting test.

Henigan to Enter Roosevelt Grind

Jimmy Henigan will be among the field in the Roosevelt marathon through North Shore cities on Sunday, Sept. 3.

Jimmy, whose latest feat was a fourth in the New England 25-kilometre race last Saturday at Beverly, will race, and among others Clarence DeMar, Juan Zabala, Leslie Pawson.

ROSSI BATTLES KING TONIGHT AT REVERE

By JACK CONWAY

Just a break from the weather man and our carefree middleweights will toss punches at a ring show at the Revere Cycle Track tonight.

Johnny Rossi of Worcester, a star in the "New Talent" shows, and Tommy King of Fall River, will trade punches in one of the feature 10-round bouts. Rossi is only 19 years of age, and has been thundering to the front in the fistic game. The boy is a first class boxer, and is able to deliver a lethal wallop.

KING SEASONED

King has had more experience than Rossi. Tommy started his career in Fall River. When he didn't get to first base as far as attractive matches were concerned, he went to California.

Perhaps it was the California climate, or maybe the right kind of competition. In any event, King started winning. He defeated some of the best welterweights on the Coast. Young Corbett wouldn't have anything to do with him. Now King is back home and anxious to punch his way to a match with Lou Brouillard, who recently won the world's middleweight crown by defeating Ben Jeby.

Tony Celli of Leominster and Buster Price of Lynn will collide in the other 10-round bout. Celli, like Rossi, was a star in the "New Talent" shows. Price is a good right hand puncher, and if he can pin one of his socks on his rival's chin there may be a knockout.

CALLAHAN FACES DIXON

Eddie Callahan of Nashua, N. H., will take the place of Frankie Coot of Nashua, N. H., against Long John Dixon of Norwood and Boston College. This bout is listed for six heats, but Dixon and Callahan each say it won't last that long.

Al Vitale of the North End and Red O'Brien of Lowell will travel four rounds as will Paul Wagerman of Manchester, N. H., and Bill Brennan of Cambridge.

Boston Pures Face Strong Invaders

With only Jimmy McCarron wearing championship laurels, the Boston amateur team enters its intercity competition with New York and Philadelphia at Dilboy Field, Somerville, tomorrow night with something akin to the shakes.

New York's team brings a flock of city, state and Golden Glove champions in its lineup. Philadelphia sends a team of Middle Atlantic A. A. U. champions and finalists.

Tom Chester, Brooklyn, 160 pound national champion, is just one of many names to conjure with. Dick Cabello, 135 pound Golden Glove champion, is another. Gordon Lewis, Golden Glove champion of Philadelphia, has lost but five bouts out of 60 to date. Alex David, 240, represents Philadelphia adequately in the heavyweight class.

Girl Pitches for All Stars Tonight

Larry Nadeau's All-Stars will invade the Richard Trum Playground, Somerville, to cross bats with the strong Somerville Progressives tonight.

Harriet Smith, who has made a spectacular record this season with the All Stars, will be in the lineup for the All Stars, with Roy Tibbetts, former St. John's player, doing the receiving.

This is Miss Smith's first appearance in Somerville, and one of the largest crowds to invade the playground will be on hand.

HOSE SLIM HILL STAFF CAVING; JOLLEY MAY GO ON MOUND

Mr. Boston

—By JACK CONWAY—

The loss of the heavyweight championship of the world to Primo Carnera appears to have started Jack Sharkey on the road to another fortune. When the average fighter gets smacked on the chin, he usually folds up and gracefully passes out of the sports picture.

Not so with Sharkey. After he was tagged by a Dempsey left hook back in 1926, he went on to make a million dollars.

Mr. Boston

Since losing his championship to Carnera, Sharkey has been besieged by reputable boxing promoters who are eager to pay him $25,000 with a 40 per cent priviledge to meet this and that heavyweight.

What with the expenses that go with a growing family and the necessity of paying a large income tax, Sharkey has signed to box King Levinsky in Chicago on September 15 and Tommy Loughran in Philadelphia on September 27. The Levinsky match is set for ten rounds, while the Loughran tussle will be the first 15-round tussle under the new Pennsylvania law.

I understand Sharkey is planning for bouts in Boston, New York and Miami, Fla. He believes that a busy program will prevent him from gathering ring rust. Sharkey had been out of the ring for a year before he defended his world's championship against Primo Carnera. This is too long a layoff for an athlete whether his particular game happens to be boxing, golf or ping pong.

Sharkey will be a better fighter if he boxes at more frequent intervals than he has since he got into the big money.

Henigan Family Benefit

Steve McPherson has arranged a double windup for the wrestling show he plans to stage for Mrs. Henigan and her six children at the Arena a week from tomorrow night. Bull Martin will tangle up with Rebel Bob Russell, while Regis Siki will collide with Benny Ginsberg. If a small percentage of the thousands of people who have cheered Jimmy Henigan turn out for this show, the Arena will be barely large enough to care for the gathering.

Incidentally the Martin-Russell bout should produce plenty of fireworks. Martin has been McPherson's top attraction persons saw him More than 150,000 persons saw him in action at the Arena last season.

Tunney on Fish Balls

Rudy Fried, who came to Boston with Maurice Fishman to sign Jack Sharkey for his 15-round bout with Tommy Loughran on September 27 tells an interesting story about Gene Tunney.

"I owned the Spruce Hotel in Philadelphia at the time of the Dempsey-Tunney bout," said Fried. "Tunney made our hotel his headquarters. When he returned from the, Sesqui-Centennial arena where he won the championship from Dempsey, he was not particularly elated over his victory.

"Gene called the late Tex Rickard on the telephone. 'You paid me off with fish cakes tonight,' said Gene, 'but when I fight for you again you will pay plenty.'

"The show had drawn $1,800,000. Tunney's original contract called for 20 per cent of the receipts. This would have netted him $360,000. When the bout was shifted from New York to Philadelphia, the wise boys said the bout would not draw. They declared Philadelphia was a 50-cent fight town. It was easy for Rickard to get Tunney to waive his percentage and accept a flat guarantee of $200,000. This change in arrangements cost Tunney $160,000.

"Rickard didn't have any option on Tunney's services for his next bout. Gene played Rickard against Humbert Fugazy. And ended up with a contract which gave him $989,000 of the $2,600,000 gate at Chicago. A few days before the Chicago bout Rickard wanted to change Tunney's contract. He offered to give him a flat guarantee of a million dollars. Remembering his experience at Philadelphia, Tunney refused to alter his contract. This cost him $11,000. Rickard always had all the luck as well as plenty of real ability."

Charley Mooney of Magoon sq., Somerville, former wrestling judge at the Garden, tells me he will not be a candidate for Alderman in Ward 5 of his home town because he has joined the NRA (never run again). Charley took a splash in politics a year ago, but is definitely through with the game.

3 DOUBLE BILLS IN ROW FOR SOX AT CHICAGO

By DAVID F. EGAN

Chicago, Aug 22—All that is left of the fighting Red Sox arrived here this morning to play seven games in four days with the White Sox.

The abbreviated pitching staff must perform miracles if the Red Sox are to climb into sixth place.

Gordon "Dusty" Rhodes and Bob "King Kong" Kline were to pitch today, Rhodes with a rest of four days and the gigantic Kline with a rest of only one.

Curt Fullerton, who has been doing some 14-karat pitching in the Boston twi circles, will join the club here tomorrow and pitch one of the games of another doubleheader. Weiland, who pitched yesterday, Welch, whose right arm aches from continuous relief duties; or Lloyd (ingrowing fingernail) Brown will pitch the other one.

RHODES, KLINE GET CALL

And another doubleheader will be held on Thursday, simply to add some more hemlock to the Boston cup of woe.

"Who'll pitch this afternoon?" I popped at Marty McManus this morning.

"Rhodes and Kline," he said, clipping out the words.

"Who'll pitch tomorrow?" I went on, thinking that he would say Yawkey and Egan.

"Fullerton, if he gets here in time, and maybe Lloyd Brown," sez he.

"And how about the day after tomorrow?" I say, giving the poor man no rest.

"Maybe Bob Weiland will be ready by then, or Johnny Welch's arm may be rested enough. I dunno. I'm positive I dunno. Smead Jolley broke in as a pitcher, and I used to pitch a little, and Bob Seeds will try anything once, so don't be surprised whatever happens."

They are betting coins to crullers on the ball club this morning, between their prayers for rain, that Jolley will pitch in one of the games of the series.

MIDWEST CHEERS HOSE CLAN

Like Barkis, he's willin' And like everybody on the club, he would do anything in his power to aid the cause of the firm of McManus Collins and Yawkey.

Both Yawkey and the entire team have won the respect of the Middle West because of their gameness in the face of adversity.

Beaten five consecutive times by the Cleveland Indians, and swamped in the last three games by lop-sided scores, they have nevertheless fought their fight until the last man was out in the ninth.

And young Tom Yawkey! He sat in box behind the Red Sox dugout Sunday, and saw $250,000 worth of ball players on the hoof put out of commission. I mean Bucky Walters, Henry Johnson, Paul Andrews and Dusty Cooke.

"I was sitting there," he said, "and all of a sudden I saw a sound investment go to smithereens, right under my eyes. Veteran baseball men, like Billy Evans, say that they have never seen such a day as that one was."

"What am I going to do about it?" he asked before he left for New York last night.

YAWKEY COURAGEOUS

There could be no answer. The 31-year-old owner of the Red Sox is taking it and liking it, with not so much as a frown or a whimper. In his first year as a baseball magnate, he has plodded into the worst luck that any major league ball team in modern times has encountered.

And that, my good fans is saying a great deal, for one Mr. Bob Quinn, who was never noted for his good fortune, owned the team for 10 years and all but floundered in the roaring seas of adversity.

That Monday ball game was a personal tragedy for Bob Weiland. He had been one of the leading pitchers in both big leagues in point of effectiveness, but he was belted to defeat by Cleveland, 10-1.

For seven innings he held the Indians to four hits. One of them was a homer by the rejuvenated Bill Cissell in the first inning. Suddenly in the last of the eighth, Cleveland, which has been making a habit of large innings in their winning streak of seven straight, broke out, slammed out six hits scored eight runs, and enjoyed high carnival.

As Phillip Troy remarked, in his best South Boston Latin, "Sic Semper baseball is."

LOU BROUILLARD, NOW RESTAURATEUR, CERTAINLY KNOWS HIS GROCERIES

"Which came first?" Lou asks a pretty waitress at his new $25,000 diner at Worcester. Lou really doesn't care which came first. His main interest is in selling plenty of both. So the profits will grow rapidly. Lou's investment is heavy and he will need to keep things humming. If he is as capable a restaurateur as he is a fighter he'll do plenty of business.

"They drink plenty of beer," opines the ring's George Rector. Here's Lou lugging a barrel of beer up to the pumps to keep the amber flowing. The barrel, full, weighs 241 pounds. And Lou juggles it around like a paper bag. If he keeps up this sort of thing he'll become another Hercules. He might even grow out of his ring division. Lou doesn't worry about that. If business grows he can grow with it.

HEARST RACERS START HOME

Chicago, Aug 22 (US)—The nation's leading pilots who competed in the second annual Hearst Gold Cup regatta on the North lagoon Sunday today had started the long trek homeward, except for some of the Eastern drivers and the Pacific coast champions who remained to take in the fair. Since arriving in Chicago they have seen very little else than the churning waters of the lagoon and the speedboat pits.

Horace Tennes, winner of the gold cup for the second successive year, suffered little or no ill effects from the gruelling races in which he competed with his neck in a steel and leather brace. To be on the safe side, however, he has decided to stay out of competition until the national championships to be staged here late in September during the American Legion convention.

The 285 drivers who competed in the Gold Cup regatta agreed that the event, the largest ever staged, was operated by the committee in a faultless manner.

Brouillard Wants Bout With Thil

Lou Brouillard prefers defending his title as world's middleweight champion against Marcel Thil of France, according to a statement made today by Morris Lemoine, manager of the Worcester battler.

Lemoine revealed that Tim Mara New York promoter, is trying to secure the services of Thil for a championship match. Lemoine stated he had talked with Billy Ames, matchmaker of the Boston Garden, in regard to possible title contests with Andy Callahan Johnny Indrisano and Wesley Ketchel of California. Lemoine is anxious to have Brouillard defend his championship here.

Meanwhile Lou is caring for his business interests at a new diner he has purchased in Worcester. It is a $25,000 venture, and Lou is eager to see it prove a success. The presence of the champion at his diner has attracted hundreds of persons to the place.

"The best part of it is that they always eat," said Lou in discussing this matter. "I bought a diner so that I would have a going business when it gets time for me to step out of the boxing game."

"That will not be for a long time," declared Lemoine. "Lou is only 22 years of age and will be in there fighting for many more years."

REDSKINS OPEN WORK MONDAY

The Redskins' Boston entry in the National Professional Football League, will report at their preseason training camp Sunday at Evanston, Ill.

Evanston is a few miles out of Chicago and is the site of Northwestern University.

This spot was chosen because the Redskins will play their first three league games in the Mid-West. They open with Green Bay Packers at Green Bay Sept. 17 then face the Bears at Chicago and the newly organized Pittsburgh eleven at Pittsburgh.

Lone Star Dietz, coach of the team, plans to use the Warner style of attack in which he has specialized for many years. There will be little time to spend on fundamentals, and Dietz has ordered every man to be fit for action when he reports.

Eight members of the Redskins are already at the battle site. They have been working out at Evanston for the past two weeks and will take part in the East-West game at the World's Fair Thursday night.

First practice for the entire Boston squad is scheduled for next Monday morning.

Harmsworth Speedboat Race May Be Postponed

Detroit, Aug 22 (INS)—Because the rules under which the Harmsworth trophy speedboat race are run say that fuel used by the challenger must be manufactured in the country which he represents Hubert Scott-Paine will be delayed in testing his Miss Britain III.

The gasoline and oil which he will use have not arrived from England, and, according to latest information, may not reach here until Aug. 25, perhaps necessitating a postponement of the race.

The Britisher had expected the oil and gas to be here for a trial run today. He is anxious to get his all-metal craft into the St. Clair river where the race will be run.

Gar Wood, holder and defender of the Harmsworth trophy since 1920, expects to give his Miss America X a trial tomorrow. It was torn down and reassembled after an unsatisfactory run last week.

Brouillard May Risk Crown in October

New York, Aug. 22 (INS)—Lou Brouillard, newly-crowned middleweight boxing champion, will defend his title here at Yankee Stadium early in October, if negotiations now under way materialize. Matchmaker Al Weill of the Aram Athletic Club said today.

Brouillard is already under contract to the club for two fights, and the third would bring him against a "formidable opponent."

Weill said he would ask the boxing commission to approve September 27 as the date for the return 10-round match between Billy Petrolle and Bep Van Klavern.

Need Drastic Changes in Baseball--Veeck

New York, Aug. 22 (AP)—Major league baseball, still struggling to climb "out of the red," must adopt the proposal for a mid-summer series of inter-league games or do something equally drastic in order to revive interest in 1934, in the belief of William L. Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs.

"There is no use kidding ourselves any longer," Veeck told the Associated Press today. "Only one big league club out of sixteen made money last year. Some of us have hopes of breaking even this season unless the pennant races continue to fall out from under us.

"We can't go on operating on the same basis we did 25 years ago. If we don't cut admission prices or make the game more attractive, we certainly will be up against a further loss of patronage.

"I can speak definitely for the Chicago Cubs when I say we are heartily in favor of helping solve the situation and create a wider interest by arranging a series of inter-league games in mid-season. In my opinion it would be a clever and natural development.

MIDSUMMER DOG DAYS.

"It is a fact now, undisputed by any club owner who studies the returns, that from July 5 to the middle of August, major league baseball is in the doldrums. These five or six weeks are the game's 'dog days,' so far as public interest in a sport that runs for so long—too long if I may express another conviction of mine.

"What then is more natural than to break up this monotony of midseason by scheduling a series of games between clubs of rival leagues? Let the Yankees and Athletics play the Cubs and the Giants, the Tigers play the Pirates, the Chicago White Sox meet the St. Louis Cardinals, and so on.

"I don't mean exhibition games either, but games that will count in the standings of the clubs. They wouldn't be worth three loud cheers unless there was just as much at stake as there is in a regular league game. The whole picture would be refreshened and livened. Don't you think Giant rooters would flock to see their favorites try to flatten the Yankees now, or vice versa?"

SPLIT SEASON CONSIDERED

Veeck's attitude toward the ne[illegible] baseball [illegible] the Cub president's [illegible] the inter-league [illegible] companied [illegible] magnate [illegible] the idea [illegible] league [illegible] thinks the [illegible] will be considered.

"Just because the minor leagues have tried the split season successfully is no reason why the majors could not do the same thing," remarked Veeck. "If another fellow has a good idea in the business, I'm not prejudiced.

"We are all agreed that we do not want too cheapen baseball but the fact now facing us is that something must be done unless we be compelled to cheapen it. Major league baseball is expensive, salaries, although they have been cut, still are high. But to get and keep the best talent and build up winning teams, money has to be spent and good salaries paid.

"To do that we have got to revive general interest by natural means. It looks to me like a good time to try something else besides a hope that the 'good old days' will soon be back. They won't come back unless we take steps to bring them back."

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

Just as the natives began to laugh up their sleeves that the Nashua Country Club course had stopped the New Hampshire open championship field, in walked Emo Masciocchi—"Masharkey" to you—Oak Hill, with a 68, for a new competitive record which lasted about four minutes. Then Jack Curley of Stoney Brae lowered Masciocchi's mark by two strokes. Later on Henry Bontempo carded a 69.

If the Nashua natives are still under the impression that their course was too tough for the boys let them take a peek at the best ball of the field 3 3 3 2 2 2 4 2 3—24 3 3 3 1 2 2 2 3 3 22 46.

The boys were holing out from 100 to 175 yards of greens for deuces. Ted Bishop flipped his second shot into the cup for a deuce at the 4th hole, Charlie MacAndrew canned a full spade for an eagle at the 5th, Henry Bontempo drove and then pitched into the cup at the 15th and Jack Curley clinched the title by holing a mashie niblick from 165 yards off the 18th green.

Raymond Aces 13th

Nelson Raymond, brother of the Wollaston amateur, aced the short 11th, with a No. 2 iron.

Jack Curley's 66 knocked just three strokes off the record that was held by Johnny Farrell. Curley has turned in some brilliant performances since he broke into prominence at Lido, during the qualifying round for the U. S. open, but he never played better or with more confidence than in the New Hampshire open.

After a steady 72 in the morning, Curley raced to the turn in 34 shots, after missing a short putt for a deuce at the 8th and three putting the 9th green. Then he came home in 32, which included a slipup on another short putt at the 10th and three putts at the 15th.

As far as the defense of his title was concerned, Gene Mosher of Toy Town Tavern, who topped the N. H. open field at Lake Sunapee last year, fought a losing battle from the start. But he went down fighting, holing out a [illegible] off the 36th green for a birdie.

Emo Masciocchi, who was the first to break Johnny Farrell's record, hails from Ashmont. He worked for Dennis Crowley at Wollaston until five years ago, when he went to Oak Hill as greenskeeper. Until the N. H. open Masciocchi had never played in a championship, but after his performance at Nashua, he is missing a fine bet if he is not a regular contestant.

Eddie Maples, who c[illegible] Pinehurst but spends [illegible] mer as greenskeeper at [illegible] Peak, burned up the first six [illegible] of the last nine, namel[illegible] 3, 3, but then he finished 5, 5, [illegible] for a 34.

Greenskeepers Flash

With greenskeepers shooting such golf as displayed by Emo Masciocchi and Eddie Maples, the pros should watch their laurels.

Three years ago, Rip Heneage was the family champion. Today, he ranks at least fourth, possibly fifth. Dartmouth's director of athletics began to lose prestige when Dick knocked the props from under him and slipped down another rung after getting soundly drubbed by Bob. But Rip's greatest humiliation was last week when "Butch" the third oldest son, beat him on the 18th green, especially as the family all were down heavy on "Butch" and took the pater for plenty.

The early removal of NRA uncertainties should contribute to the restoration of confidence, to the freer movement of trade and should this happily eventuate, to removal of the haunting spectre of currency inflation, which afflicts the country spasmodically with a violent attack of the jitters.

Those of us who have been disposed to question the wisdom of the pace and pressure adopted by Gen. Johnson may have to acknowledge our error if it is demonstrated that his objective was to get the whole upheaval over with as speedily as possible and the country back to a measure of stability which certainly was tragically lacking before the [illegible] administration [illegible]

"Once upon a time a merchant owned three shops, side by side.

"The first shop was run by Miss Fashion. She was a sprightly young lady and she made her shop and her windows very attractive. She attracted the wealthiest customers. But now and then she bought the wrong goods. She had her profits pulled down by dead stock.

"The second shop was run by Miss Price. She had very little dead stock. She topped the list in sales, but her shop did not make any net profits.

"The third shop was run by Miss Quality. Those who bought there once usually came again. Its business grew, but it grew slowly. And it made profits steadily.

"One day the merchant had a bright idea. 'I will combine my three shops into one,' he said.

"'I will put Miss Quality in charge and Miss Fashion and Miss Price will be her two assistants.'

"He did this, and ever since then his sales and profits have increased."

Competitive Bids Push Share Prices Up Against Ceiling

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The determined way in which [illegible] press against the ceiling of [illegible] were appears that some buyers have been keyed up to the point of competitive bidding. Important pools undoubtedly sensed the attitude of public traders and [illegible] of marking values up. It looks good at times but lacks the follow through and breadth many want to see.

So far nothing has happened that may be classed as unexpected [illegible]

EARNINGS RULE STOCK VALUES

[illegible] The period of uncertainty must be passed through [illegible] know it is going to be allowed to operate at a profit. We are sure the answer will be a positive yes, but insist on waiting in each excellent company.

The lack of follow through on recent rallies is apparent in volume figures. A falling off in transactions accompanied the rally of yesterday. At the same time total issues traded contracted on the upside. Last Thursday, a rally session, there were 711. Friday, a down day, there were 738. Yesterday as prices rallied only 6[illegible] issues were traded.

Another pertinent point in the general picture is the condition of the industrial loan market. Industry usually finances itself out of [illegible] Capital [illegible] count of [illegible] who have [illegible] some words.

Restrict the long term loan [illegible] labor. Actually [illegible] up the credit reservoir nourishing expansion. Let the total workers unemployed increase and savings will dwindle and government will again be faced with the necessity of supplying an artificial stimulant. Loan markets must soon be reopened.

Norfolk & Western Net Is Increased

Norfolk & Western Railway reports surplus after charges of $2,569,919 for July, equal, after preferred dividends, to $1.84 a share on 1,406,483 shares of common stock outstanding. In July last year surplus was $1,097,264, or 73 cents a share on the same amount of common stock.

For seven months ended July 31, 1933, road's surplus was 9,815,442 or $6.60 a share on the common stock, against $6,477,282, or $4.22 a common share, in the like period of 1932.

Business Recovery in Canada Holding Up

By M. GRATTAN O'LEARY
Noted Political Economist and Financial Writer.

Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service, Inc.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 22.—Reports of sustained industrial and financial betterment continue to cheer the Canadian public. A statement from the Trade and Commerce Department shows that the improvement in foreign trade, which began in May, is gaining momentum, and that for the first four months of the current fiscal year (the Dominion's fiscal year begins on April 1st) exports are approximately $12,000,000 ahead of the same period for last year.

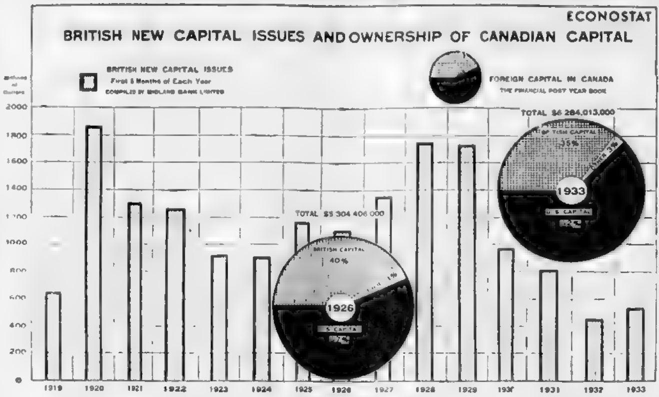
Trade for the month of July was more than twice that of April and exceeded by about $9,000,000 the figure for the same month in 1932. Exports were about $5,000,000 greater than in June, and imports up by more than $2,000,000.

This betterment is being reflected by an increase in treasury receipts. For nearly three years, almost since the beginning of the depression, the Dominion's revenues have been declining steadily this despite taxation increases. In consequence of this, and because of heavy demands on the treasury for unemployment relief, budget deficits had become a regular thing and the public debt grown enormously. More than welcome, therefore, is an official statement that during July Dominion revenues had increased substantially, particularly from excise taxes, indicating business improvement.

As it is, and no matter what happens in the next few months, another budget deficit will be certain this year. The publicly owned Canadian National Railways is still losing money and its operating and interest deficit will be well over $50,000,000 for the year, this despite improved earnings and rigid economies.

The government's conversion loan through which it hopes to convert several hundred million dollars of war bonds into bonds at a lower interest rate, will be put out in October. If the response is favorable the result will be a saving to the treasury of several millions in interest.

New British Financing Trend Shown



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Editor, the Economist

The accompanying chart shows [illegible] issues for the first six months of each year in Great Britain as compiled by Midland Bank [illegible]ted. The totals fluctuate [illegible] sympathy with the [illegible] of business in other [illegible] the world.

[illegible] the tremendous peak in [illegible] post war [illegible], reaching [illegible] 1924 from which re[illegible] made to the high level of [illegible] 1928. Since then there has [illegible] decline in new capital [illegible] in Great Britain [illegible] rising total did [illegible] parts of the world, the [illegible] of capital.

The [illegible] of gold in 1931, although it had a desirable effect upon the British balance of trade and eased the burden upon the Treasury, did not in any way relax the fears which capital had for the future. In this respect British capital behaved in orthodox fashion. It has been the general experience in the past that any tampering with the monetary unit tends to freeze the inclination of people with money to take chances.

Thus inflation in Great Britain insofar as it affected new capital acted according to form. The return for the first six months of 1933 reflects the recovery in world business which has been spectacularly evident in this country during the past four months.

The Ottawa Pact signed last summer and the gentlemen's agreement effected at the London Conference among the leaders of the British family of nations coupled with the isolationist policy of the United States may restore to London the unchallenged pre-eminence in finance which it enjoyed before New York grasped the financial sceptre after the war.

At the end of July 15 million pounds of Canadian 4 per cent 25-year sterling bonds were offered at par in London and met an excellent reception. It was hinted that this loan, the first of its kind since the bar imposed on foreign loans by London in 1932 was made as the price of Canadian adherence to the new Empire Pact on currency.

The significance of this step is apparent from a consideration of the two circles in the above chart. They show the total foreign capital in Canada in 1926 and at the end of the first six months in 1933. The American stake in Canada increased absolutely from $3,023,000,000 to $3,896,000,000 and relatively from 57 per cent of the total to 62 per cent.

The questions now raised by students of finance are these: Will Canadian investments be refinanced entirely in London? Is this the first sign that New York is due to lose the financial leadership which it acquired after the war?

MUTUAL SHOWS STEADY GAIN

An increase of 15.4 per cent in premium income for July over the same month last year was reported today by the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty Company of Chicago.

"Production for the second quarter ending June 30 exceeded the same period of last year by 4.7 per cent.

"Each month since April has shown a better percental gain than the preceding month and an improvement over the same months of last year," said James S. Kemper, president of the Lumbermen's. "July was our best month for new business thus far this year, with all indications presaging another banner month in August.

"Our increase is being derived on all casualty lines written by our company, with automobile insurance premiums showing the largest gain. While some improvement can be noticed in workmen's compensation premiums in certain sections of the country, the full effect of improved industrial payrolls will not be felt by insurance companies for some time."

Indian Motocycle Operates at Loss

Indian Motocycle Co. and subsidiaries report net loss after depreciation, interest and other charges of $44,241 for six months ended June 30, 1933. Sales during that period were 334,819 with gross profit from operations of $82,639. Depreciation charges against six months business was $55,581 and interest, provisions for doubtful accounts and miscellaneous charges amounted to $24,606. In first six months of last year the net loss was $43,981.

Reviving Business Aids Box Industry

Reviving business has increased the national demand for paper boxes. The industry making these containers has been having a sharp upturn, a study by Dunn & Bradstreet reveals. Sales and tonnage have swung upward and further gains are confidently forecast.

Public Works and Ingersoll-Rand

The Public Works Administration, so far, has allotted just a little less than $100,000,000 of the $3,000,000,000 fund at its disposal to road-building work and earnings of companies which depend on such construction for a fair share of their business should reflect it over the coming weeks.

Ingersoll-Rand is one of the companies in this group. It supplies heavy machinery for road-work. Business of the company has turned up recently, but the gain has not been pronounced as yet. The enlarged road-building program will help it. A larger share of the company's business, however, comes from the mining industry, and any revival in mining will aid the company, too.

Effects of New York Electric Rate Cut

Unless court action is invoked to prevent their imposition, the new rate cuts ordered by the New York Public Service Commission will reduce net income of Consolidated Gas roughly 80 cents a share a year. Reduced income, coupled with the increase in operating expenses of the companies in the group, due to the application of the utilities code, would place the current rate of dividends being paid by the company in jeopardy.

In the 12 months ended June net income of the company was equal to $3.68 a share on the stock, only 28 cents a share more than the annual dividend rate of $3.40 a share. It is pretty apparent that if the rate reduction is carried out and operating expenses are jacked up as much as estimated, net would be put down to well under $3.40 a share.

Wheat Conference Under Way Again

Delegates and observers from more than a score of countries assembled in London Monday to continue their efforts to work out some kind of an agreement to reduce wheat production and bring about thereby a rise in prices for the major cereal. Simultaneously with resumption of the parley came bullish news on wheat from three important quarters. Reports from the Argentine showed that weather is cutting down the growing crop steadily. Word from Russia indicated, in spite of previous glowing reports, that the harvest is not coming up to expectations, and the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome predicted a drastic rise in world wheat prices, due to the drop in production.

Railroads and The NRA Move

Railroads have been considered exempt from any code under the NIRA, but railroad labor is increasing agitation to force the imposition of a code on the carriers. Studies prepared, showing the cost of a shorter week to the railroads, should be sufficient to convince the Administration that present and prospective earnings of the railroads generally aren't sufficient to permit them to increase labor costs at this time.

Market Viewed as Having Recovery

Those who believe that the stock market is acting well point out that it was four weeks ago last Friday that the smash ended. The Saturday following the end of the smash was a day of big volume and steadier prices. It is suggested that the market has had a month to digest both the efforts of the extended advance and the severe smash in prices and that today it is acting very well, with conservative opinion bullish.

Home Loan Bond Mart Is to Be Established

Washington, Aug. 22.—Establishment of an open market for Home Owners Loan Corp. bonds, issued from the $2,000,000,000 pool available for exchange for home mortgages, soon will be formally announced by the corporation.

Chairman William F. Stevenson of the Home Loan Board says that this major development in government fiscal policy is now but a matter of weeks. He added that tentative plans for facilitating active trading in the boards' obligations are definitely under consideration, with officials of the federal agency fully convinced of the need for such action.

Such a step is, of course, essential to further President Roosevelt's objective of extending direct government aid to any small home-owner threatened with mortgage foreclosure. Under the terms of the Loan Act the $2,000,000,000 in bonds available are not issued to the public, but are used to exchange for mortgages. The original holder of the mortgage thus receives an obligation issued by a federal agency and with government-guaranteed interest. However, it is obviously necessary to establish a market for such bonds as a means of facilitating cooperation of mortgage holders with the government.

Preliminary plans of the Home Loan Board and its subsidiary corporation call for establishment of an adequate reserve fund for interest payments on the bonds and also a sinking fund for eventual redemption. In addition, to prevent a flood of offerings immediately the free market is opened it is further planned to secure pledges from large holders of the corporation's obligations—insurance companies, banks, etc., to hold their bonds for a definite period before attempting to sell them.

Other plans to ensure a stable price and a ready cash market are already in partial operation.

MARKET VIEWS IN STATE ST.

Paine, Webber & Co.—Recent convulsions in the grain market will have served a good purpose if they result in emphasizing the futility of fixing artificial price levels in a speculative market.

London and Paris views are agreed that real inflation and higher tariffs are in store for the United States. They feel the difficulties of controlling the interplay of economic motives in a highly independent community will prove insuperable, that industrial efficiency will suffer and that the resultant higher costs will force doses of real inflation. Europe thus looks for further decline in the dollar in foreign exchange.

Soucy, Swartsweiter & Co.—We think the conservative course is to take at least part profits on commitments while waiting for a day or two to give the stock and grain markets an opportunity to show whether they can really get through the resistance levels indicated during the past few days.

Hornblower & Weeks—If, as we think, the market is about ready to enter a more active phase of advance we would be inclined to regard yesterday's strength as but the forerunner of increased activity on the up side this week.

Clark, Childs & Keech—Buying for a quick turn and for strength into Labor Day would seem advisable upon the penetration of the 100 point in the Dow-Jones industrial averages.

Josephthal & Co.—The market is near the top of its recent trading range, and it is probable that it will require some outside assistance to negotiate new high territory.

Penny Excursions Prove Successful

Montreal, Que., Aug. 22.—Last spring the railways of Canada experimented with long distance one cent per mile excursions. The innovation proved so successful that it is to be given another trial by both the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways this month.

This time the Pacific Coast will be the attraction. Bargain rates are in effect from all points west of the Great Lakes in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta to all Pacific Coast points ending Sept. 2. In the opposite direction, the same rates apply from Pacific Coast points to all points in the prairie provinces and to the head of the lakes in Ontario, from Aug. 22 to Sept. 6.

Union Tank Car's Net 39 Cts. a Share

Chicago, Aug. 22 (AP).—A net income of $469,764.09 for the six months ended June 30, last, was reported today by the Union Tank Car Company.

The figure was arrived at after deductions for interest on equipment trust certificates and estimated federal income taxes and is equal to approximately 39 cents a share on the 1,200,000 shares of capital stock outstanding.

Price Raising Is Called Near in Recovery Move

By WALL STREET SPECULATOR

The market has too much of that "now you see it, now you don't" atmosphere to bring back the old time enthusiasm. The principal reason may be attributed to nervousness over wheat spilling around further.

However, with industry pretty well launched on the recovery codes, it can be expected the administration is about ready to start full steam ahead.

And this will involve price-raising whether by inflation or other methods. It is logical to expect further dollar depreciation before long, to protect the higher price level which NRA will establish.

BOSTON BUYING IN CENTRAL

Considerable buying is coming into the rails in anticipation of the July earnings reports, which will be published in volume this week. . . . The improvement over July last year will be as big as was reported in June . . . Boston continues to pick up N. Y. Central on dips.

Collections of some of the farm equipment companies last month were 50 per cent above budgeted estimates. This reflects the higher grain prices which ruled then and the heavy sales made by farmers of carry-over cereals from the last crop.

Informed interests expect wheat to do a smart about face once distress liquidation is over . . . They're talking $3 a share earnings on Great Western Sugar this year . . . Loew's, it is reported, will show $2 a share for the fiscal year ended August 31.

One group that made 11 cents an ounce in the last play in silver has been accumulating the metal again . . . Wall St. hears the British and Dutch will act together on a 30 per cent curtailment of rubber production, though the last try for this crashed.

Holders of Pennsy. Stocks Are Fewer

Pennsylvania R. R. stockholders August 1 totaled 242,113, against 244,295 July 1, off 2182, and 251,961 August 1, 1932, off 9848. July marked the fourth consecutive month to show a decrease from preceding month, June having shown a decrease of 1706, May 2103 and April 674. March showed an increase of 33.

Peak was reached September 1, 1932, at 252,142, so that the August 1 figure shows a net reduction in 11 months of 10,029. Total August 1 was also the lowest since October 1, 1931, at 241,391. Average holding August 1 was 54.39 shares against 53.90 July 1, 1933, and 52.26 August 1, 1932. Average holding September 1, 1932, at peak, was 52.22 shares, representing widest distribution of the shares. Outstanding stock August 1 was 13,167,696 shares, against 13,167,614 a year ago, increase 82.

Cotton Spinning Is Far Over Year Ago

Washington, Aug. 22 (AP).—The cotton spinning industry was reported today by the Census Bureau to have operated during July at 117.5 per cent of capacity, on a single shift basis, compared with 129.1 per cent during June this year and 51.7 per cent during July last year.

AUTO INDUSTRY OUTPUT FOR WEEK IS UP

Surprise Figures on Production Are Given by Cram

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor Boston American

Estimates by some of the statistical services were that output of the automotive industry showed a decline in the past week as compared with the previous week's total, but the authoritative figure supplied us by Benjamin H. Cram, editor of Cram's automotive Reports, show that the output was actually a little larger, furnishing a pleasant surprise. Mr. Cram tells us:

E. F. Bemis

"Approximate production figures aggregated 53,920 units, an increase of 53 over the total of 53,867 recorded in the previous week. In all, 13 passenger car producers showed changes in schedules. Increases predominated, eight concerns reporting heavier output and five showing declines.

"Chevrolet revised upward its projected August production schedule to 72,000 units."

Postmaster General Farley told us last week that the recovery movement in the United States was being extended abroad. E. F. Bemis, in charge of activities at the Boston offices of the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, furnishes us with concrete instances. Mr. Bemis gives us this information:

"Expansion in ITALIAN business continues. Minor gains in POLISH economic conditions have been largely offset by adverse foreign trade and financial developments. Encouraging factors in AUSTRIA include smaller unemployment, good crops, and minor industrial gains. TRUKISH imports declined in May, reducing the unfavorable balance. The crop outlook in the IRISH FREE STATE is excellent. Trade of the UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA with the United States shows considerable revival."

The new Castype machine that sets up and casts type from a typewriter keyboard is a New England product, inasmuch as the inventor was a Bostonian, the operating capital was furnished by Boston financiers and lastly, although working under the most adverse circumstances, it is through the efforts of the H. E. Mellon Co., Milk st. brokers, that the manufacture of these machines is being kept in New England, thus retaining a new industry for this territory. This industry is expected to give employment to hundreds of mechanics, engineers and various other trades-people.

Incidentally, the directors of the Castype Corporation promoted their enterprise at the height of the 1932 bank closings, thus displaying by their action confidence. We hear New England business leaders are tendering a warm welcome to this new aid to business stimulation.

Rubber Barely Steady

New York, Aug. 22.—Crude rubber futures today were barely steady. Sept. 7.20 bid; Dec. 7.66-70; Jan. 7.75 bid; March 7.99.

Repeal of Prohibition To Aid Real Estate

Purchase of downtrodden bonds of popular resort centers are seen as promising speculations, and one big bond house believes that resort real estate will be greatly aided by the repeal of prohibition, now possible to be consummated within 78 days. The house says:

"The repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment this year seems almost a certainty. The effect of the return to legitimate sale of liquor on municipal finances, both directly and indirectly, has almost been lost sight of. Through license fees, increased rentals and the returning into the hands of responsible people the enormous sums now spent on speakeasy liquor, will make for increased and prompter tax paying.

"Some cities will naturally benefit more than others; amongst these are the larger resort cities of which probably the most outstanding is Atlantic City.

"Even after thirteen years of prohibition with diminishing revenues due to people feeling more inclined to spend their vacation periods where liquor was sold legitimately, Atlantic City continued to meet her debt service until February this year when all but one of the local banks suspended and froze $1,900,000 of the city's deposits. The city was compelled then temporarily to suspend her debt service.

"With the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment Atlantic City should re-act to this stimulus more than any other city as her major industry is recreation. Her hotels and stores which are the largest taxpayers, will find additional revenue to meet this overhead and the increased employment will also prove highly beneficial.

"The city administration and local business men feel that Atlantic City should easily return to her former popularity as her location and accommodations are unexcelled. This improvement would be felt even under conditions prevailing during the last three years and with the evident revival of business all over the country they feel doubly confident.

"The bonds of Atlantic City now are selling at 44 to 50 according to the coupon rate and maturity. All of these bonds were originally sold at 100 or better, and even during the first part of this year the bonds sold from 65 to 80, according to maturity and rate."

PRICE CHANGES FOR LEADERS ARE NARROW

New York, Aug. 22—With the spur of bullish action in the grain pits lacking, share prices on the New York Stock Exchange today drifted rather narrowly as trading progressed.

The motor group, aided reports of increased activity within the industry, enjoyed some continued aggressive buying, led by Chrysler and General Motors. General Motors moved close to its year's high and Chrysler set a new peak. Du Pont moved along with General Motors, and Chrysler and Nash were firm.

Liquor shares, which led the advance yesterday, bore the brunt of the realizing today. Rail shares were mixed. Lackawanna started the session fractionally higher.

United States Steel, Bethlehem and the other steel stocks showed little change from the previous closing.

Utility socks were subjected to rentwid prissure with Consolidated fractionally. Allied Chemical, Gas, and Public Service easing Western Union and other volatile issues were quiet and slightly higher.

Cotton prices off about 25 cents a balt from ytstiday's closing on southen liquidation. Gains moved naowly. Pices in the bond division wee inclined upwad.

Sales to 11 a. m. approximated 430,000 shares.

In the first hour prices were mixed for the general list after a steady and moderately active opening, with trading turning dull back to its recently customary dullness.

Some scattered offerings put in their appearance, particularly in the repeal shares. National Distillers was down almost 2 points. Schenley lost a point, and American Commercial Alcohol over a point.

Woolworth continued weak, sagging 2 points. Issues off a point or more included Simmons, First National and Chesapeake Corp. Hercules Powder was down 2.

American Locomotive and Chrysler were up a point or better. General Motors, Auburn and du Pont rose slightly, reflecting the auto industry's continued improvement. American Telephone and U. S. Steel were easy.

The dollar strengthened slightly, with sterling at $4.49½ for cables, off 1½ cents, and French francs at 5.33 cents, off 2 points.

Wall street's mood at the moment, judging by brokerage house comment, is one of cautious optimism. With Labor Day, the so-called turning point between summer and fall, only a fortnight distant, the financial community is watching closely for signs of coming seasonal changes. A new element has been introduced into the situation this year by the industrial codes and it is expected that their first results will soon become apparent.

An increase of $45,000,000 in loans was shown in he weekly condition statement of reporting Federal Reserve member banks. Loans other than those on securities rose $18,000,000. Other chcanges included a net expansion of $139,000,000 in investments, attributed to sales of new securities by the treasury, and a decrease of $132,000,000 in ne demand deposits.

To Distribute Net Building Proceeds

New York, Aug. 22—Chase National Bank Trustees, is notifying holders of certificates of interest in Lincoln Forty-Second Street Corporation first mortgage 5½ per cent sinking fund gold loan, and, or interest warrants appertaining thereto, that it is ready to make distribution of the net proceeds of the sale of this property on such certificates and interest warrants as were not surrendered in part payment at the foreclosure.

Econostat Index of Business Is Up

The Econostat's index of basic industries, made public today, shows gains in merchandise and commodity carloadings for the past week as compared with the previous week. Soft coal and crude oil production increases as also shown. Cotton consumption is given as showing a bit under the previous week. Construction contracts and electric power output are held unchanged.

American Dollar Narrowly Traded

London, Aug. 22 (AP) — The American dollar moved in a narrow range in a quiet market today the rate strenthening slightly from the opening of $4.51 to the pound to a close of $4.49½. This was more than two points better than yesterday's close of $4.52.

Gold currencies were steady on sterling with the French franc incined to strength. The franc's close was 84.28.

Chevrolet Motor Co. Adds 11,000 Workers

Chevrolet Motor Co. has added 11,000 men to factory payrolls since June 10, according to H. J. Kringer, vice-president and general sales manager. He said more than 47,000 men, a greater number than at any time since the peak in 1929, are at work in the factories, and their wages are approximately 20 per cent higher than in March of this year.

Postage Meter Co. Profit Is $103,256

Pitney-Bowes Postage Meter Co. reports for six months ended June 30, 1933, profit of $103,256 after charges, but before federal taxes, against $120,045 in the first half of 1932.

Paramount Publix certificate 6s were strong in the domestic division, chalkin gup a gain of 2 points at 32. The Paramount Certificate 5½s gained 1½ at 32; and the International Telephone 4-½s of '39 were up ½ at 58-½.

High grade utilities did better, with the Consolidated Gas 5½s up ½ at 106; and American Telephone 5s of '65 up ¼ at 105.

United States governments were mixed, with minor gains in the Treasury 4s and Liberty 1st 4¼s, offset by similarly unimportant declines in the Treasury 3¾s and Treasury 4¼s.

Foreign governments were easier, with the German 7s off ½ at 72½; and United Kingdom 5½s down ⅛ at 118⅞.

North American Air Lines Set Records

The transport lines grouped under North American Aviation, Inc., each established a record for passengers carried in the first seven months of the year, according to Ernest R. Breech, president. He said the lines transported a total of 55,173 revenue passengers, compared with 32,887 in the same period of 1932, an increase of 68 per cent.

Express pounds carried for the first seven months of 1933 amounted to 207,485 pounds, as against 54,006 for the same period of 1932, or an increase of 284 per cent.

U. S. Autos Sought Abroad

Overseas demand for American passenger cars and commercial vehicles showed a marked improvement in the first half of the current year as compared with the corresponding period of 1932, according to a survey just made by P. R. Mattix of the Commerce Department's Automotive-Aeronautics Trade Division.

Exports in the first six months of 1933 amounted to 49,605 units, valued at $23,346,347 as compared with 38,049 units valued at $21,051,593 in the 1932 period.

U. S. Leather Trade Helped

The depreciation of the U. S. dollar in terms of rupees has reacted favorably on American leather export trade to India, according to a report to the Commerce Department from its Calcutta office.

A few months ago, the report states it was the general belief in Indian trade circles that German exports would succeed in capturing a part of the patent leather trade which had been going to the United States.

Now, however, dealers state that it will be practically impossible for German tanners to obtain any substantial business in India as long as their prices remain at the present level and rupee-dollar exchange continues to make American leather as attractive as it is today.

Oil Production Off Little

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 22 (AP)—Reductions in oil production in Oklahoma and increases in Texas almost balanced last week and total daily average output of the United States varied little, dropping 9902 barrels from 2,801,629 to 2,791,727 barrels.

In Oklahoma the decrease was from 664,605 to 620,815 barrels, while in Texas the increase was from 1,201,964 to 1,235,099. East Texas output advanced from 584,660 to 629,650 barrels.

Roosevelt Success Hoped For

Paris, Aug. 22—Growing belief that President Roosevelt has determined to exhaust all other means before risking "the perils of monetary inflation," held the continent in an attitude of expectancy as the new week opened.

Even the most conservative now admit that "the American experiment is the predominant reason for Europe's present uncertainies."

It is significant that those who until recently scoffed at Roosevelt's efforts are now manifesting marked interest and hoping for his success.

Fair Aids Travel by Air

Hornblower & Weeks in their current "Weekly Observations" note the recent progress made in aviation. They emphasize the increase in air passenger travel, stimulated by the Chicago World's Fair, the longer average flights and increase in passenger miles flown and large gain in air mail and air express. This progress, they believe, presages a doubling of passenger service schedule between New York and Chicago next ummer induced by the remarkable comfort, silence and speed of the new planes. They also believe that a great number of those who had flown to Chicago, more or less as a stunt, have been permanently converted into regular passengers of airplane service.

Gray Cloth Market Easier

Gray cloth market is again weaker, with more mills showing a disposition to shade prices. Second-hand quotations were lower and some goods were moved at those levels.

Reimbursement From Government

Manufacturers and other contractors now filling government orders will have to look to Congress for reimbursement for any losses incurred by reason of compliance with recovery codes, according to terms of decision by Comptroller General McCarl.

N. Y. Postoffice to Retire 441

Largest number of employes to leave the service of the New York postoffice at one time, 441 in all, will retire at the end of this month. These men have been employed for 30 years or more and under the Economy Act of last June are entitled now to receive their pensions, which average around $1200.

TEXTILE COST STUDY PLANNED

Washington, Aug. 22—Certain representatives of the cotton textile industry are asserting that their increased labor costs under the NRA Code, added to the cotton processing tax at its present rate, is compelling them to increase the prices of manufactured goods to such an extent that consumption is about to fall off, with the consequence that the industry will be compelled to close their mills and throw men out of employment.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration, it was stated today, is seriously considering calling a hearing under the Agricultural Adjustment Act, at which representatives of the textile industry will be called as witnesses and asked to testify to these facts under oath, at the same time presenting their books for examination. The purpose of the inquiry will be to determine the facts.

Certain purchasers of cotton textile goods maintain that the industry is able to make very substantial profits at lower prices than those which the industry at present is quoting. They state that the cotton manufacturers are attempting to make abnormal profits by pyramiding their labor ccosts and the processing tax.

If this public hearing is held both sides to this controversy will have ample opportunity to put forward facts and figures to demonstrate their respective positions, it was said by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Westinghouse Is to Open Sales Drive

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, through its sales executive, Vice-President M. G. Symonds, has called executives of all branches of the company's distribution system to a conference here August 21, 22 and 23, and at Chicago August 28, 29 and 30, for a round table discussion on how and where to get more business.

"This action, he said, "definitely negates rumors that competition in selling, advertising and promotion would be stifled or limited and that much of such activities would be on a co-operative effort under the National Recovery Administration."

Trading in Grain Market Is Quiet

Chicago, Aug. 22 (AP)—Trading was almost at a standstill in the grain pits today, after a transient flurry at the opening. A few selling orders, accumulated overnight, served to ease prices slightly and operations ten halted.

Wheat opened ¼-⅜ cents lower and then fluctuated narrowly. Corn started steady to ½ cent lower and showed little change.

Recovery of Auto Industry Is Fast

John W. Scoville, chief statistician of the Chrysler Corp., predicts that in a return of prosperity the automobile industry will come back faster and farther than most other lines. He said a 4,000,000-car year is not far distant, and estimated new car sales for the industry this year at approximately 1,500,000 cars. Business in the fall is expected to be well sustained by increased sales to farmers. Peak week this year for Chrysler was Aug. 5, while usually it is reached in April or May. Usually sales in August are 25 per cent below May, while this year they are running 53 per cent above.

If the revision comes, it will mark the fourth advance since last automobile industry will come back well above those of early 1933, it is said.

Public Buying Is Increased, Says Gen. Foods Head

An increase of 48 per cent in unit sales was shown in July this year compared with July last year by General Foods Corporation, according to C. M. Chester, president.

"Improvement in our unit sales began last December," said Mr. Chester. "As a result of the improvement the first seven months of this year showed a gain of 15 per cent over the same period of 1932. Results for the early part of August show a continuance of the favorable trend.

"While some of the increased business is no doubt due to replenishing low inventories of jobbers and retailers," said Mr. Chester, "we have indications that much of the gain is accounted for by increased purchases by the public. During the last several months the public has showed a strengthened interest in nationally advertised products."

New Gold Find in Chibougamau Noted

Toronto, Aug. 22—The Northern Miner says that good progress and favorable results from surface work on the property in Pascalis township, Quebec, is reported by officials of Chibougamau Prospectors, Ltd. BUYING FOUND MORE ACTIVE IN SOUTH

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 22 (US)—The recent "waiting attitude" of retailers, except for immediate requirements, has resulted in increased buying activity.

Production has been stepped up due to the dwindling of supplies during the past few weeks, pending final trade agreements. Anticipations are that a further increase in employment will continue to thin out the ranks of jobless.

The halt in declining cotton prices last week brightened faces of farmers in the fields, preparing their crops for market. They have not given up hopes of 12 cent cotton. The statement of C. A. Cobb, agriculture adjustment administrator, Saturday in promising early relief with a new acreage program, strengthened their confidence in the "New Deal."

A slow, but steady return of workers to payrolls of companies operating under the Blue Eagle has put additional new money into circulation. Reports from reliable sources state department stores have succeeded in reducing summer stocks and early fall merchandise is on display.

Sharp advances in prices of groceries have slowed up, allowing stores to book a larger volume of business.

Bank clearings here and in other southern states last week continued to show substantial gains over a year ago.

September Maturities Set a Low For Year

Total bond maturities for September amount to only $13,112,179, of which $6,991,541 are railroads, $5,200,500 are industrials and $920,138 are public utilities. This compares with a total of $18,550,553 for August of this year, and $72,531,096 for September, 1932, according to Poor's Publishing Company.

The total for September of this year is even smaller than that for August which was the smallest month to date in 1933. A much larger total for September, 1932 was due, principally, on account of the $55,235,500 public utility maturities, which included an issue of $31,999,100 Interborough Rapid Transit Co. notes, which came due September 1, 1932, and was defaulted, Poor's states.

The following table, compiled for the Boston Evening American by Poor's from their manuals, lists the maturities in each of the three principal fields:

Lime Advertising in East Planed

Washington, Aug. 22 — Faced with over-production and declining consumption, lime growers in British West Indies propose to conduct advertising campaigns in the British and American markets, according to advices from Vice-Consul A. L. Demorest, made public by the Commerce Department.

The suggestion has been made that the proposed campaign in the United States, which will be concentrated in the eastern part of the country, should be financed by an export tax of 20 cents a barrel on all green limes shipped from the islands.

Vancouver's Grain Exports Set Peak

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 22—The grain season of 1932-33 for the port of Vancouver officially closed at midnight July 31 after having created a new al-time record for the port. From Aug. 1, 1932 to July 31, 1933, 97,000,00 bushels of grain were handled for export through the port, according to the Canadian National Railways. This exceeds by about 1,500,00 bushels the best previous record, which was 1928-29.

Survey of Banks Still Shut Issued

The Committee for the Nation to Rebuild Prices and Purchasing Power, of which J. H. Rand, Jr., is chairman, has just issued a folder on "Frozen Bank Deposits, a Drag on Recovery," in which it has compiled a statistical analysis of bank reopenings and closings since the March holiday, and presented an analysis which shows the degree to which liquidation of the banks still closed must retard business recovery.

The survey declares that there is not still an adequate organization at the Treasury Department to handle the burden of bank reopenings which was thrown upon it in March. It points out that sums far greater than the 3,500,000,000 which are to be spent for public works are tied up in depositors' frozen accounts in closed banks.

Herman Shoe Co. Is Awarded Contract

The Joseph M. Herman Shoe Co., of Millis was the low bidder for contract to manufacture 251,856 pairs of shoes to be used by members of reforestation camps. Company only recently completed manufacture of 110,000 pairs of the same type shoes, prices of which range from $3.17 to $3.38 a pair. New contract will keep the plant's 500 employees busy for the next six months.

NRA PROGRAM FACTS GIVEN FOR INVESTOR

In the last week or two there has been a great deal of uncertainty over just what and who the NRA (industrial and agricultural) programs will benefit.

For some, it is evident, they will be a boon, while for others they may work hardships. They are also found to result in inequalities. It is hard to make a shoe fit all feet and not have it pinch some.

On the benefit side of the ledger may be listed as fruits already in hand or about to be tasted:

1—Higher income for the farmer, or, to put it another way, greater farm purchasing power.

2—More leisure for the masses through the 35 or 40-hour week. This means more spending for pleasure, etc. A person idle always spends more than a person working.

3—Increased wages for workers receiving less than $35 a week. The bulk of the employed population fits in this class, so this means increased purchasing for the masses, providing costs do not rise too fast.

4—A reduction in unemployment, through the forced shorter hours and spreading of work. This also means an increased purchasing power.

5—End of child labor.

6—End of production below cost in the basic industries. This should help save the nation's natural resources, and end losses by corporations in these fields.

7—End of sweatshops and their uneconomic and unfair competition with legitimate enterprises. This should mean increased profits for companies in lines at present undermined by sweatshop competition.

On the other side of the ledger are these not so favorable indicated fruits of the program:

1—Higher living costs. This will pinch the "white collar" worker earning more than $35 a week, who at the moment seems to be outside the code, except possibly on hours. Wages are not being raised for this class, which has suffered slashes up to 50 per cent since 1929.

2—Increased overhead for business. This will mean smaller profits and smaller dividends and other capital return, especially in these lines where it is next to impossible to pass the added expense on to the consumer.

3—Increased government debt, through the workings of the various recovery agencies.

4—Increased taxes to meet the greater expenses of government.

So, for the investor, purchases should be selected with some of the above facts in mind.

Business in Texas Is Rising Steadily

Through the central part of the state movement of the cotton crop is reviving trade.

In anticipation of the first episode publication of "Operator 13" as scheduled in this newspaper tomorrow, the New England air audiene will hear a colorful radio presentation, based on the famous Robert W. Chambers story. It is being wafted out over the far flung waves of WBZ-WBZA tonight, between 9:30 and 10 o'clock.

* * *

CAPABLE CAST

An all star cast of Boston microphone players are portraying the characters. Miss Ruth Moss, popular air actress and well known voice hereabouts, assumes the leading feminine role. Margaret Burlen, likewise talented personality heard in many WEEI dramatic offerings, also occupies a prominent place in the studio spotlight. Bob Burlen of the WEEI forces, Jim Hadfield and Edward W. Young complete a capable cast of principal male characters holding forth. Attending music throughout the half hour is to be under the direction of Sammy Sklar. Something truly splendid is promised.

* * *

There's a unique Yankee Network offering just ahead of the above attraction—a Negro Guild and Cleff Choir program (WAAB) from 9 until 9:15 p. m. A small church where a colored congregation worships is the setting. It's a typical southern bit called "Old Time Religion" with careful dramatic and vocal treatment.

Al Smith is taking a Network turn late tonight (WNAC) at 11:15, rooting for Recovery under the Blue Eagle emblem.

'KNAVE'S GIRL' ⁂ By Joan Clayton

Concluded from Yesterday

THE STORM was shrieking with a thousand tongues. The foyer was brilliantly illuminated and the long and curving stairs. A man was coming downstairs, a flashlight in his hand. The girl saw him and he saw her. The man was Bill McGee. His sinister triumphal smile was the last thing Patricia saw. The walls seemed to melt beneath her feet. She sighed, swayed and slid unconscious to the floor.

Somewhere far off Patricia heard a dull and muffled engine throbbing, like the purring of a giant engine. Her head ached, ached. She opened vague eyes, tried to rise moaned and sank back again. A bar of sunlight shone on a bright green carpet.

There was a door, locked. The girl hammered, pounded, shouted to exhaustion. No one answered. How had she got here? Who had brought her here?

"Kidnaped," Patricia said aloud.

They were coming in to shore. She had first seen the twinkling lights of land with a wild hope that had long since vanished. She was trapped below. Suddenly, after a long time, there was a bumping and a scraping, the stateroom rocked to and fro, the engine ceased its throbbing. They had docked! Bill was aboard, was coming below. She heard his footsteps outside her door. He was in the room.

FACED HIM

Springing to her feet, she faced him, her eyes glittered in an ashen face, both hands held out as if to ward him off.

There was a newspaper beneath his arm. Deliberately he spread it flat. Patricia saw her own pictured face, saw a flaming headline:

"Patricia Warren Sought for the Murder of Julian Haverholt."

The newspaper slipped from Patricia's nerveless fingers and fell rustling to the floor. She had read the story of Julian's murder. The final lines she thought would be forever printed on her brain.

"This is the set-up," he said. "You can hide out with me until the storm blows over. With me you're safe. Away from me, the police will nail you in a minute. Do you get it? Old Bill is your friend. He's doing you a service."

She moved then, swiftly, moved in his direction. The bottle was in her hand. Before, in his befuddled state, he could comprehend her intention she had brought the bottle down upon his head. All her strength and fear and fury went into that blow. Bill gave a short, half choking cry. He half rose, sank back.

Patricia darted through the door. She missed the water by inches. She ran on and on. A woman running was no novelty in such a neighborhood. There were few to see her.

Clark Tracy! Patricia saw him and he saw her.

Before she realized what was happening, Clark had grasped her by the wrist, had pulled her from the sidewalk to the street. Bodily he lifted her into his own car, the low-slung roadster where she had sat so many times in happier days.

The police, the newspapers, the whole world believed her guilty of murder, but Clark knew that she was innocent; his faith had never wavered. One of his hands was on the wheel, the other now held her hand tightly as if he would never let it go. And Patricia told her story and was silent.

Winding along the water front, dodging in and out of sleeping streets, their car brought Clark and Patricia five minutes later to the green lights of a police station.

Clark was already telling his story. Bill McGee—yes, they knew Bill McGee by reputation—had murdered Julian Haverholt, the bridge expert. It could be proved. And Bill McGee was now cruising up the East River, possibly pointed out toward the Sound, possibly lolling in the ice of one of the city islands.

The police launch was a slim, rakish craft. Patricia, concealed now in a slicker three sizes too large, trembled with chill and excitement as they swept away from the dock, turned sharply in the rising waves, and swung up the river with steadily increasing speed. Clark was beside her.

"It's the Lazy Mary!"

The Sergeant snatched a megaphone and held it to his lips.

"Stand by," he shouted through the rain and the storm and the darkness. "Stand by."

There was a flash of red and then another. A burst of gunfire had answered his hail.

"Where's Bill McGee?" he demanded.

Bill McGee gave his own answer.

"Come and get me," he snarled.

Patricia never knew the details of the gun fight. She never wanted to know. A policeman carried her below, tossed her into a neatly made police bunk, and locked the door behind him.

Bill, his boat sinking under him and all hope lost, fought to the end. And then when the foundering Lazy Mary—a hole in her side—was almost ready to carry the launch to the bottom with her, he was brought dying aboard and carried, with more tendernes than might have been expected, to a tiny cabin where futile emergency treatment was given. Bill McGee, unshriven and unmourned, died with seven bullets in his body.

BILL CONFESSED

"Bill McGee confessed before he died," Clark said.

"It's over," she said.

"All over," he agreed wearily, contentedly, and said, "Get into the car, Patricia. You're ready to drop."

"I guess," said the girl a little faintly, "you had better take me to some hotel."

"A hotel! My darling, are you mad?"

She was in his arms. His lips were searching for her lips. He tipped back her chin. She surrendered utterly to the glory of his kiss.

"Do you love me, Clark?"

"Do I love you! I have loved you forever, darling; I shall love you forever."

"That sounds like a long time," she could say from the security of his arms.

"It's not nearly long enough."

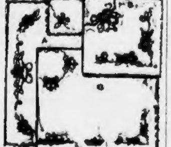
Cross-Stitch Linens

—By Laura Wheeler—

Cross stitch linens are smart—smart to have and smart to make. Simple to do, the resulting linens have lasting value for they are always in good taste. In this pattern, which is to be done in three colors, the large crosses make the design grow quickly. Embroidering is also simplified by distinct color marking on the pattern itself, which eliminates the need for a color chart. Each of the two patterns shown can be used separately or can be combined to make handsome linens.

A—Pattern 522 includes four motifs 4½x15 inches, four motifs 8x8¼ inches, and eight 3½x4½ inch napkin motifs.



B—Pattern 523 includes four 1½-inch corner motifs, four 6x8½-inch motifs, and four napkin motifs same as those in Pattern 522.

A and B each show one arrangement of the motifs. C shows the two patterns combined to make a handsome tablecloth 60x72 inches. There are many other ways of combining the two patterns. Each pattern includes sketches with yardages for a variety of linens; sketches with yardages for linens to be made of the combined patterns are also given.

Send 10c for each pattern (20c for both) to Boston Evening American Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Ave., New York City.

BIG COUNT UNDERWAY

More than 50 girls are at work at the offices of A & P Food Stores counting the thousands and thousands of votes which have been sent in by Massachusetts boys and girls in the "On-to-Chicago" Contest of the A & P Stores which has just ended.

There have been literally millions of votes sent in by the contestants and their friends—and as is usual in such contests, many of the contestants have held their votes until the last minute before sending them in.

This has resulted in a veritable avalanche of votes in the last few days, but the contest staff is at work counting every one of the coupons so that winners can be announced in the very near future. It is the hope of the contest manager, Mr. Franklin S. Smith, that he will be able to announce their names on Tuesday, or Wednesday at the latest.

Voice of Broadway

—By Louis Sobol—

Snapshots at Random!

Not so many indigo Mondays ago I expressed a wish for some sort of magical conveyance that could annihilate time and space and transport me to parts of the globe where events of interest were taking place and people of interest were foregathered . . . There ain't no sech thing, and I have to be satisfied with what I read in the papers . . . However, a friend now in Cannes comes to my aid by "snapshooting" Juan-Les-Pins—the people and the activities there, with names well known to Broadway and Park Ave. . . . Some of his puns are a trifle puerile, to be euphemistic, but I convey the picture as he presents it and beg off: "Lady Mendl, whose husband failed to keep de Wolfe from the door and hasn't regretted it (Ed.'s note: Lady Mendl was the former Elsie de Wolfe) . . . Maxine Elliott, who has a railroad house . . . H. R. H. Prince George, 'Prince Chamant' as ever and surrounded by admirers . . . Elsa Maxwell and company entertaining as usual . . Bebe Daniels, who found herself in the den of a Lyon and has Ben there ever since . . . Freddie Proctor, who won the Dublin Sweepstakes and his wife, who collected a speedboat . . . Jimmy Walker, who lost the New York sweep, and his wife, Betty Compton . . . Marlene Dietrich, now the Riviera's greatest actress . . .

Wednesday night at the premiere of the "Power and the Glory" at the Gaiety . . . A moving drama, and I am not so much impressed with the much-touted device the film people tag "narratage," for it does not appear to be so novel or new to me, as I am with the subtle direction and the splendid characterization presented by Spencer Tracy and the excellent performance of Miss Colleen Moore . . . Leaving the theater, I run into an old-time screen favorite of mine, Dorothy Dalton, now Mrs. Arthur Hammerstein, and farther down the street, Al Smith, who is most certainly putting on weight around the middle . . . Tuesday night, at the Maison Royal, I settle down with Georges Sanchez, Cuban Sugar millionaire, and Mayito Menocal, son of the former President, and am almost carried away with the enthusiasm of these gentlemen, who predict that great things are in store for Cuba with the downfall of Machado—great things. I conclude, for at least the Senors Sanchez and Menocal . . . Mayito has a wide scar on his forehead, and it occurs to me that perhaps it's the result of one of his battles in Cuba, but I learn differently . . . It appears that when he first came to New York some six years ago, his idea of seeing the town was to get on a 6th ave. trolley car, which he did, and as it was moving he stuck his head out of the side and ran it smack into an "El" pillar . . . Over at a corner table I spot Massageur, famous Cuban cartoonist and newspaper man—and he, too, seems somewhat elated.

Monday night at the Cotton Club, where I am informed that the new show will be the combined effort of seven or eight songwriters—that in addition to Harold Arlen and Ted Koehler, who will be represented by at least one number; Irving Berlin, Lew Brown, Walter Donaldson, Jimmy McHugh and Dorothy Fields and several others will write at least one song each . . . Thursday night, I take a ride with Janet McLeay, heroine in the revived "Tommy" and her husband, Harold Herbert.

LOW BLOOD PRESSURE

Mrs. Catherine O'Sullivan, 81 Brooks St., E. Boston Mass., says: "I would become dizzy so much so that I fell down. I consulted a doctor who said I had High Blood Pressure. I also was treated at the hospital, but neither helped me. I had Dr. Walsh treat me and he said that my blood pressure was low. Under Dr. Walsh's treatment I was helped from the first. Now I feel good, thanks to Dr. Walsh. My idea in publishing this testimonial is to help others who suffer as I did. Signed (Mrs.) Catherine O'Sullivan.

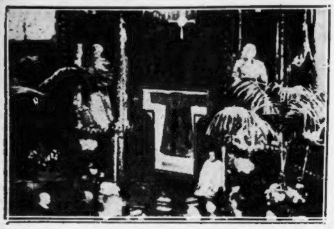
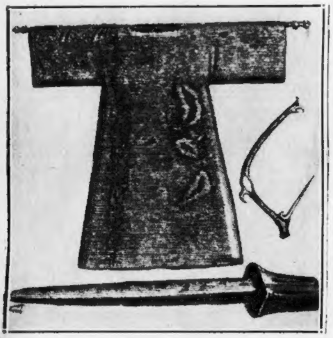
The Holy Coat of Treves
Thousands See It in This "Holy Year"



THE HOLY COAT, SHOWN IN TREVES CATHEDRAL, WITH PILGRIMS WORSHIPPING

Millions, deeply religious, will be interested in these pictures, which show the Holy Coat of Treves, now exhibited in Treves Cathedral for the first time in forty-two years. It was last exhibited in 1891 and during the short period of its exhibition "it was venerated by nearly two million pilgrims."



AN OLD DRAWING OF THE FAMOUS RELIC

Great crowds will see and venerate this relic during the Present Extraordinary Holy Year and Great Jubilee which terminates on April 2, 1934.

This Holy Year celebrates the nineteenth centenary of the Crucifixion.

Last month the Queen of the Belgians visited Treves Cathedral to see the relics, going as an ordinary pilgrim, accompanied only by her chaplain and a lady-in-waiting.

According to tradition this holy relic is the identical "sleeveless coat" worn by Christ for which the Roman soldiers cast lots at the foot of the Cross. The lower picture, showing an old drawing of this coat, shows also on the right one of the original thorns taken from the crown of thorns.

An Empty Pledge
Banks and the NRA

In connection with the regimenting of economic groups under the Blue Eagle by the National Recovery Administration, the big New York banks promised to hit the trail.

There was much ballyhoo over their pledge to quicken the flow of goods and services by furnishing credit to business men.

But when their letter to General Hugh S. Johnson, National Business Administrator, is analyzed, it means very little.

Even in the darkest days of the depression, the solvent, well managed banks were willing to make commercial loans to Grade A borrowers.

But on account of the uncertainty in respect to withdrawals and the business trend, the banks in effect tended to withhold credit from Grade B and Grade C borrowers, whom they used to encourage in normal times.

There will be a real loosening of bank credit when and if the banks again become more venturesome in their dealings with borrowers other than those of the highest grade.

In being lenient with such borrowers in boom times, the banks exaggerate the peaks in business cycles, whereas in pulling in their horns completely in adverse periods, banks tend to deepen the depression.

It goes without saying that at no stage of the business cycle should banks entrust depositors' funds to the inefficient or to those without an adequate capital setup.

But if banks are to be socially useful, they should apply the brakes before abnormal expansion runs its course and should loosen up after liquidation has been substantially completed.

In its pledge of co-operation with NRA, the banks sidestepped the issue by saying:

> "Such (commercial) loans should be granted, of course, only where the credit of the borrowers justifies it, and each loan must be considered on its own merits, but all loan applications which pass this ordinary banking requirement should, and undoubtedly will, have sympathetic consideration from the banks."

This merely states that the banks will be kindly disposed to ACCEPTABLE loans.

It fails to say that the broadening in consumption, through re-employment and through the relative rise in prices of farm products and other aspects of recovery, will make the banks more willing to accept normal business risks.

Since the bank holiday, loans and investments of reporting member banks in ninety leading cities have increased only from $16,017,000,000 on March 15 to $16,557,000,000 on August 2.

If the bankers want to give more than lip service to the Administration program, they will express their new enthusiasm in larger commercial loans, especially to the smaller applicants to whom they have turned unwilling ears in the last three years.

Otherwise, the Government may have to function in their place.

The Market— In the Doldrums

A Striking Figure

NEW YORK, Aug. 22—The most striking figure among artists continues to be the black and white master, Charles Dana Gibson. Wherever he appears in public heads turn, even among those who are unconscious of his identity. I am told he is even better known in London.

O. O. McIntyre

Over there people follow in the manner of the small boy trailing a ring champion. Of enormous but well proportioned bulk, he has a patrician profile and heavy brow magnificent with the majesty of Michelangelo. His walk is a stride without self-consciousness of celebrity.

His wife is one of the famous Langhorne beauties of Virginia, and as he is seldom seen without her, her matured stateliness adds panache to the mass attraction. Few successful artists have displayed such keen interest in the embryo artist struggling up. He has been a father confessor.

Like E. Berry Wall, Gibson clings to the extravagantly wide wing collar. While he contributes a pen sketch now and then to "Life," which he owns, he has little enthusiasm for the Gibson girl and tip-teeing Mr. Pipp which made him famous. His metier is now a broader palette with oils.

Theatrical press agents have thinned to a handful. Most of the energetic guild have turned to other callings until there is a revival of the theatre. And such a revival grows increasingly debatable. In the days when Joe Drum, Leon Friedman, Wells Hawks, Nellie Revell and Walter Kingsley headlighted the scene, there were more than 100 p. a's drawing salaries from $75 to $400 a week.

* * *

The most accomplished in the art of extravagant three sheeting—certainly the most highly paid—was the late and nervously energetic Harry Reichenbach. His income at one time was in excess of $2000 a week. He was the instigator of "plants" which often flowered on page one and caused city editors to wring their hands.

* * *

The most hilarious left-over in the theatrical field is the effervescing Dick Maney, a jovial and derbied weight with a black cigar and much barrack-room ribaldry. He was dramatized as the boisterous ballyhooer in "20th Century," a dramatization transferred to the film version. The latest yarn concerns his casual dropping in at a cafe on the lower East Side. As a gesture of pleasantry he gave three cheers for Hitler. It was the wrong spot for such exuberance and he found himself buried in chairs, dishes and sundry knick-knacks. Lifting his head from the debris, he chirped: "Custer in the Ghetto!"

* * *

It was Maney, on guard at the suite of one of his theatrical stars, who received four newspapermen for an interview. Picking up the phone, he relayed to his principal: "Three reporters and a gentleman from the Boston Transcript."

* * *

I dropped in at one of the last of the decaying brick homes on Park avenue yesterday to see a writer of books, who has just taken it over. The hall was large and echoey. From his study we went into a small flagged court. Wind rustled ivy on the brick wall and a canary indulged vague chirping as we approached. A rheumatic old fellow in blue shirt with hat abaft was cutting spikes of weeds here and there with a hand scythe. No telephone in the house and the old-fasioned lid-up and drippy ice chest on the back porch. I had a feeling, a very comfortable feeling, this was what Park avenue and most of New York were like before grandeur went to their heads.

The venerable Robert Bridges, 75-year-old editor of Scribner's, is one of the most ardent film fans in town. Almost every night, he may be seen puttering in and out of a movie, Taj Mahals, beard, tailcoat, silver headed cane and all. He is said to be especially interested in dashing crook films.

I was telling Paul Whiteman today of my desire for new bookcases in modern decor could I afford them.. "Why no?" inquired Howard Acton across the room, "take it out of your next year's yearnings!"

Listen, World!
By Elsie Robinson

Love Is Not Continuous

LOVE IS NOT a continuous experience.

Elsie Robinson

You cannot always feel warmly even toward those you profess to love best—your nearest and dearest. Inevitably, there come times when your heart seems empty and apart. A strange indifference sweeps over you. You are no longer enthusiastic, nor sympathetic . . . nor even tender. Indeed, you seem incapable of any feeling save a vague hostility which is apt to flame into active resentment if others press too close.

An hour ago, this familiar face seemed as near and dear as your own flesh. Now it seems as alien as any stranger's! And you see faults which yesterday you did not notice. Tiresome little mannerisms . . . irritating stupidity and clumsiness—

Suddenly you're frightened. What has happened? Your heart feels frozen . . . finished. Is love really over? Has the glamour gone, forever? You're sure it has. You couldn't possibly feel this way if a spark of love were left. Nor could any love survive having seen them like this—as disagreeable strangers.

Yes, you are sure that love is over! And a dreadful loneliness falls upon you. Life no longer seems worth while. For now you will have to go on alone—always alone.

So, for a space, you walk alone—bitter and hopeless. Then suddenly, without reason or warning, love comes flooding back! You see your dear ones through the old sweet glamour. You long to serve them. You no longer notice or resent their foolish faults. You love each other—that is enough! Your heart is warm again and all the world is bright.

But why is this? How can this be? Can we really love—yet know such periods of indifference and disgust . . . or even spite? The answer's simple—

WE LOVE LIKE THIS BECAUSE LOVE IS, AS YET, AN IMPERFECT PERFORMANCE.

Love isn't a natural habit for any animal. Mating, with its periodical enthusiasm, is a natural habit, but the love which carries on "for better or worse," through family life and friendship is not natural. It is an acquired habit—part of our civilized program which we still perform poorly and irregularly.

So love isn't a continuous performance for any of us. We are able to love for a longer or shorter period, according to our natures. But sooner or later we all slump into the old, animal selfishness and indifference.

These slumps would be perfectly harmless if we knew what was happening. But we don't. No one has ever told the truth about love. No one has ever told us what to expect of love . . . how much or how little we are able to love . . . how much of a strain human love can, as yet, stand. To the contrary, we have been told a number of delightful, but perfectly idiotic fairy tales. We have been told that True Love Never Dies . . . That Two Hearts Will Always Beat As One, if they really love each other . . . that "Nothing Can Quench The Fires Of Love." So, naturally, at the first quenching, we decide that love is over—or never really happened. And forthwith we proceed to say or do things to each other which mar our lives forever.

Which is as tragically silly as it would be to cut off a baby's feet because it toddles before it walks!

Then what should we do when love goes into a slump? We should do what we do when our interest cools in any other department of our civilized lives. What do we do when we grow sick of our jobs . . . long to turn tramp again? WE CARRY ON. We keep up a good front. We go through the gestures, even though we feel no interest in them. Presently our interest will revive and our work will once more be interesting.

We should do exactly the same with love. Love, like all other civilized arrangements, is bound to prove a dull and irksome business every so often. But that's no proof that it is a failure—it is only a proof that we're not yet grown-up. So when that time comes for you—don't be surprised and horrified. Don't decide that you, or the other fellow, aren't fit for love. Be glad and proud, rather, that you're able to love at all, even for short periods. So CARRY ON! Keep up a good front. Go through the gestures, whether you're interested or not. Presently, your heart will click into action again—once more the world will be bright!

Just Folks

A Man's Way

In matters like this little judgment have I:
"May we go to the store chocolate candy to buy?
May we go swimming or may we have gum?
The ice cream man's coming, please may we have some?"
Those are questions I dodge every hour of the day
With: "Go to your mother and see what she'll say!"

Some matters of policy I must decide.
But from "May we have popcorn?" I step right aside.
"May we go bare-footed? May we have cake?
May we go picnicking down by the lake?"
Are questions from which I retreat in dismay
With: "Go to your mother and see what she'll say!"

Let something arise that's of vital concern
I'll ponder it through till the right course I learn,
But "May we have peanuts?" and "May we have pop?"
Are problems which instantly cause me to stop.
So I straddle the issue in a man's wisest way
With: "Go to your mother and see what she'll say!"

States Must Hurry to Pass Liquor Laws
By James T. Williams, Jr.

With the repeal of the 18th amendment, national prohibition will end, and every state in the union will face again the problem of how best to control the liquor traffic.

Ratification of the proposed 21st amendment to the Federal Constitution, which will repeal the prohibition amendment, will probably be completed before the end of the year.

Missouri is the 22d state to approve repeal, and when 14 more states give their legislative consent, ratification of the repeal amendment will have been voted by 36 states, which is the number of states required to make the repeal of the prohibition amendment effective.

This indicates that the several states will have only about four months in which to assemble their machinery to control the liquor traffic within their respective boundaries.

FACES A PROBLEM

Four months is an extremely short time in which to enact the legislation and organize the agencies for the control of the liquor traffic in the way in which the people of each of the 48 states prefer.

This is a problem on which the attention of the authorities of every state in the union ought now to be concentrated. But in only ten states of the union is the matter being studied today by boards appointed for that purpose.

The states which had the foresight to begin this study are Massachusetts, New York, Connecticut, Delaware, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Missouri.

There remain 38 states that apparent' are making no preparations yet to discharge the grave responsibilities which will come to them with the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

After the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment the only responsibility for the regulation of the liquor traffic which the Federal government will retain is thus defined in section 2 of the proposed 21st amendment soon to be ratified:

"The transportation or importation into any state, territory or possession of the United States for delivery or use therein of intoxicating liquors, in violation of the laws thereof, is hereby prohibited."

AGAINST SALOONS

This means that any state which refuses to repeal its own prohibitory laws will be entitled by the terms of the 21st amendment to the assistance of the Federal government in preventing of importation into the state of intoxicating liquors from states which permit their sale.

The Roosevelt administration will not only be obligated to give this protection to the states which retain prohibition but also to carry out the policy declared in its platform of opposing the return of the saloon.

Both as President and as the power, Mr. Roosevelt will be well within his rights if he calls soon upon the governors of the several states to be prepared to assume control of the liquor traffic "when, as and if" the repeal of the 18th ammendment becomes effective, and to provide for such control as will "prevent the return of the saloon" anywhere under the flag.

In thus addressing the governors, the President would only be reminding them that when the American people gave Congress a mandate to repeal the 18th amendment they gave also to the State Legislature a mandate no less emphatic "to prevent the return of the saloon."

Human Side of the News
The Negro, Cheerful in Depression—He Gets More Out of Life Than the White Man
By Edwin C. Hill

One of the most remarkable facts of the long depression is the way the Negro race in America has stood up under it. They were the first and almost the hardest to be hit, because they do the work that has fallen through the long ages to the sons of Ham—the lowly tasks.

In a great city like New York they tend the furnaces and run the elevators and carry the burdens, and of course these were almost the first jobs of all to go into the dicard when employers began to cut expenses. No population center in America has suffered the privation that has been felt the past three years in New York's Dark Harlem, that vast spread of the Negro race over two miles north and south and three-quarters of a mile east and west in northern Manhattan, a community of 250,000.

But one finds more cheerfulness there today than anywhere else in the city, certainly far more than along Park ave., or Fifth. I think it is because, as Archibald Rutledge recently wrote in the Readers' Digest, that the Negroes are America's kindliest race, surpassing all other races in downright kindliness and mercy toward one another. The Negro has a kind of instinctive phisosophy of life which makes the milk of human kindness a more natural product of his heart than it is of ours. Their very lowliness of station creates a sense of mutual dependence and of fellowship. They share their worldly possessions, which are pitifully few, and what is far more important for such times as these, they share their hearts and spirits.

We, who are supposed to be thrifty and industrious, are wont, as Mr. Rutledge says, to lament the Negro's love of ease, his readiness to relax, his habit of taking nothing seriously. But these are natural evidences of his deep-seated philosophy.

To the Negro the end of existence is not the accumulation of wealth, but the enjoyment of life. The Epicurean said: "Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die." The Negro says: "Eat, drink and be merry" . . . As for dying, his faith in an after life is so complete that it illumines for him even the Valley of the Shadow. His religion is effective, not because it keeps him from what we term sin, but because it reconciles him to the twin enigmas of life and death. He takes the shocks of existence as he takes the storm, the rain and the cold. Gentle acceptance of the myriad chances of life, a rich spiritual background, a cheerful facing of the future—all these are parts of the Negro's philosophy.

These are the traits which have enabled him to face the desperate and endless days of the past three years and stand up under them with a laugh as he plunks his banjo and pours out his rich voice in the spirituals which have in their very hearts the chants of the African forest. Possibly by accident, the Negro has followed closer than many of us the Master's injunction about caring little for the accumulation of money. It is not so much laziness as it is a doubt as to the worth of it all. The Negro prefers to BE, rather than to ACHIEVE. He knows that life is all on this earth we have, and that there are other ways of enjoying it than by incessant toil and the pursuit of the mirage of wealth. I quote freely from Mr. Rutledge, with much appreciation of his beautiful thought and language.

There are Negroes who go about in rags, but who are superb successes because they manifest the triumph of the spirit by gentleness and good manners and kind words and fortitude against all the shafts and arrows of outrageous fortune. The tourist who drives through the rural South is always amazed to see at crossroads, railroad stations or country stores groups of Negroes who are idling away in the sunshine. Doing nothing at all. But what the tourist doesn't see—what it is impossible for him ever to see—is that these Negroes are just living, talking, laughing, teasing one another, breaking out into song, getting enjoyment out of life.

Business men retire after ceaseless years of labor and look about and wonder what life is all about and often wind up by being miserable and dying years younger than they should. But the Negro, never having been in business, and not looking at life that way at all, is always retired from its perplexities and its tyranny. He never lacks abundant company, and he keeps in the full current of life. Accepting it from childhood as fruit to be enjoyed, he does not hoard, he has no plans for the future. Each new day is a thing in itself, rather than a mere stage in the scheme of making a living.

And, despite the material hardships of his life, he gets more out of it than the white man. He drifts along amiably. He loafs and invites his soul in a way that Walt Whitman thoroughly understood. The untutored Negro, poor as he may be, has a just pride—the subdued pride of the humble—the pride of one who has come to a certain mastery of life—who masters it and does not let it master him. He is not in endless agitation of spirit, as so many white people constantly are.

Negroes have delicate perceptions—more delicate than many comprehend who have not observed them closely. They know the virtue of reticence. Their feet may trudge, but their souls are winged. The mental advancement may be important, but no gain there should be at the cost of their spiritual values—their spiritual values as manifested in their kindliness. The kindliness that breathes in their songs and shines in their eyes; the kindliness in the tips of an old mammy's fingers; the kindliness that touches with tender radiance the shadows of their lowly life.
